No. 63.

An ordinance to make further regulations as to the city markets.

Section 1. Be it enacted and ordained by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, That it shall be unlawful for any person to board in, otherwise enclose, any market-stall above the bench or place on which articles are kept for sale, and all such enclosures now existing shall be forthwith removed by the occupants of said stalls; and every person violating the provisions of this section shall be subject to a penalty of five ($5) dollars for every day such enclosures are allowed to remain after notice has been given by the Clerk of the Market for their removal; but nothing in this ordinance shall prevent occupants of market-stalls using during market hours canvas for the protection of their stalls from the weather, to be removed at the close of market hours on each market day.

Prohibiting the boarding in or enclosing market stalls.

Penalty.

Occupants not to be prevented from using canvas for protection.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted and ordained, That all meat benches and boxes placed in any of the stalls of any of the market-houses shall have underneath them a clear, open space of eight (8) inches in order that the market-houses may be kept properly cleaned; and any person violating the provisions of this section shall be subject to a fine of five ($5) dollars for every day such bench or box shall remain in the stall of such person.

All meat benches and boxes to have space underneath.

Penalty.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted and ordained, That it shall be unlawful for any person to cook any food within any of said markets, or on any stall of any of said markets; and every person offending against the provisions of this section shall be subject to a fine of five ($5) dollars for every such offence.

Prohibiting the cooking of food.

Penalty.

Approved May 9, 1887.
