Some of the farmers are planting corn while others say it is too early, and later planting will do better. Grass and wheat are looking fine, and unless it is unseasonable we may hear of some large crops, sometimes a farmer's acreage in wheat is smaller after he threshes than any other time, because a few acres and a large number of bushels makes a better report and no one likes a bad report, after working hard all the year and our farmers think they have to work hard all the year and so do the most of us think the same and yet there is not many that die of working too hard.
