NAVIGATION MUST BE FREE.

Colonel Craighill Warns Against Pound Net and Stake Obstructions.

Lieut.-Col. W. E. Craighill, United States engineer at Baltimore, has sent communications, to a number of persons interested in Chesapeake Bay fisheries and who are known to operate pound nets, stakes and similar devices used in fishing, warning them that any impediment to navigation by such devices will be reported to the United States Attorney and action taken under the laws, governing the placing of any structures in navigable waters.

Colonel Craighill's warning is the result of instructions from the War Department, after complaints had been made by navigation interests concerning obstructions of nets in the bay and tributaries. The trouble is experienced only in the fishing season between March and June and October and the beginning of ice, usually about the end of December.

The penalty stipulated by Federal statue for obstruction of navigable waters is not less than $500 or more than $2,500, or imprisonment not exceeding a year. The instructions were issued by the chief of engineers of the United States Army, who, in his communication to Colonel Craighill, says that, though the importance of the fishing industry in Maryland is appreciated, the presence of stakes and other paraphernalia in such a position as to be dangerous to navigation cannot be tolerated.

Flood at Port Deposit.

The town of Port Deposit with its years of experience with spring floods, had its worst early Sunday morning. Conservative estimates of the damage place it at $200,000, and 500 persons are affected. Moreover many of the groceries and supplies have been damaged and have been at a premium. The chief losers are:

The Roland Manufacturing Company—Planing mill demolished and a large lot of lumber missing down stream.

J. M. Campbell & Co.—Stock of grain, feed, hay, merchandise and a frame warehouse, $3,000.

Tolchester Steamboat Company—Freight house missing altogether.

Mrs. Roy H. Snyder—Three-story stone warehouse demolished and part of walls moved 40 feet.

S. McClenahan Granite Company—Stone transferring plant wiped out of existence.

Pennsylvania Railroad Company—Station wrecked and moved southward from foundations. Ice along track for three miles from 10 to 30 feet deep.

All dwellings on the river side of Main street.

In Lapidum—Spencer & Co.'s warehouse; loss several thousand dollars.

Ten feet of water came down the Susquehanna and damaged everything along or near its banks.

Other losses are: Bell Telep hone Co. $5000; George A. Vannort, $100; Tome M. E. Church, $200; John J. Vannort, $100; Dr. S. G. Fisher, $200; Dr. Elijah Pugh, $7,000.

Heavy damage was also done at Lapidum opposite Port Deposit and at Havre de Grace, where the yacht Reckless was wrecked, and the entire water front of the town was submerged.
