The Duke of Grafton has resigned, and Lord North is in his place as first Lord of the Treasury, and also holds his place of Chancellor of the Exchequer. — the Dk. of G. is for the total repeal; so it is said is Ld. N., and we are told that Ld. H—gh. is the only one of all the Things Servants who opposes it. hope they will bring him to consent, or do it without his Consent. — If a total repeal happens, I believe the D. of G. will take his place again. —

Mr. Mollison joins in best wishes to you, may sometimes think on your friends in Gould Square; who always will think of you with Regard. Adieu & believe me Dear Sir

Your Affectionate friend

Wm. Mollison.
