THE GRIM REAPER.

Other death on page 3.

MR. WILBUR ELIASON.

Mr. Wilbur Eliason, one of our most prominent and influential citizens, died suddenly on the streets of Philadelphia, at 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning, of heart failure, aged 59 years. Mr. Eliason left here on Tuesday morning and went to Annapolis. He went from Annapolis to Philadelphia on Wednesday morning to visit his sons, and was proceeding from the Walton hotel to see his physician when he fell to the pavement dead. He was identified by letters found in his pocket. The news first reached here through the Baltimore Sun asking information. The remains were sent to his home here by train on Thursday evening.

Mr. Eliason was one of our best citizens. Born and reared in this community, the son of the late Thomas Eliason, one of the town's wealthiest men in his day, he became actively identified with its business and political affairs early in life, and to the day of his death his influence for progress and the moral development of his town was felt in all walks of life. He was among our wealthiest residents and he used his large means for the development of the town's manufacturing interests as well as for its progress generally. He organized a stock company, which built and operated for a number of years, the Strawboard Mill. This large mill was later absorbed by the American Strawboard Company, but Mr. Eliason retained a large block of the stock and served as manager for several years. He finally retired from connection with the company, and devoted his attention to his large agricultural interests.

Mr. Eliason owned a valuable landed estate near town, and it was here that he lived and enjoyed life to the fullest extent. He was a recognized authority on farming, and when peaches were in their glory, Mr. Eliason was one of the county's largest growers and shippers. In politics he was a Republican of influence and prominence, not only in his county but in the State. He had served as a member of the Republican State Central Committee, had been a delegate to State and National Conventions, and though he never aspired to office he consented to run as a candidate for clerk of the court but was defeated. Mr. Eliason was one of the original members of the county auditing committee, and being a man of rare financial ability he was ever mindful of the condition of his county finances, and used his influence to put them upon a simple and systematic basis. For years he was regarded as a leader in his party here, and his counsel and advise were always sought in party caucuses. Since the death of his wife several years ago, he had retired from active participation in affairs, discontinued farming and removed to Chestertown, where he lived quietly with his children. Socially Mr. Eliason was a splendid gentleman and genial companion. He conversed intelligently upon all subjects, and you always left him feeling edified and benefitted by your intercourse with him.

He was identified with the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was a large contributor to its interests, and he was also a member of the committee which planned and superintended the erection of the Chestertown High School building. He is survived by the following children: Wilbur, Jr. and Mrs. Harrison W. Vickers, of Chestertown, Dr. Eldridge, Messrs. John, Holt and Hiram Eliason, of Philadelphia. He was a brother of Mr. Thomas W. Eliason, the towns wealthiest citizen and one of our most representative business men. The deceased was possessed of a very valuable landed estate in this and adjoining counties, and also owned other large interests. Funeral services were held from his late residence on Mt. Vernon at 12 o'clock yesterday conducted by Rev. Dr. L. E. Barrett, assisted by Rev. William Hutchin, who married Mr. Eliason. Interment was made in the family lot in Chester cemetery. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Thomas Massey, Edward Wilkins, Edward W. Emory, James W. Crouch, Wilbur Thomas and Fred G. Usilton. J. E. Ferguson undertaker in charge.

MR. THOMAS W. S. HOWKINS.

Mr. Thomas W. S. Howkins died on Thursday morning on the farm of Mr. Romie Byron, near town, aged 38 years. He leaves a wife and three small children. Funeral services will be held this morning at 11 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Dr. L. E. Barrett. Interment in Wesley Chapel cemetery. Undertaker J. E. Ferguson will have charge of the funeral arrangements.

MRS. SARAH E. DAVIS.

Mrs. Sarah E. Davis, widow of Joshua Davis, died in Wilmington, Del., on February 8th, aged 73 years. Funeral services were held on Saturday evening at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. J. A. Hart, in Wilmington. Interment was made in Chesterville cemetery, this county, on Monday.

Washington College Notes.

Mr. W. D. Allen, of the Junior Class of Wash. College, had the distinction to represent the college in the Oratorical Contest at the Johns Hopkins University yesterday evening on the discussion of the question of Universal Peace. The College also sent a relay team to the Johns Hopkins-Fifth Regiment indoor games. The team was composed of Messrs. Moore, Pfitsch, Leister and the Strong brothers.
