LABORERS IN THE HARVEST.

Mark i, 14-28—March 3.

"The Harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few. Pray ye therefore the Lord of the Harvest that He will send forth laborers into His Harvest."—Matthew ix. 37, 38.

EVERYWHERE the New Testament teaches that the work done by Jesus and His Apostles amongst the Jews eighteen centuries ago was a harvesting work. Thus Jesus said, "I sent you forth to reap that upon which you bestowed no labor; other men labored and ye have entered into their labors"—reapers of the fruits of their labors.

The ripe characters of that Dispensation were ready to receive Messiah and His Message upon terms of full devotion of their time, talents, influence and lives as servants of the New Institution — the New Covenant—which God proposes to inaugurate with Israel in due time, and under which New Covenant all the families of the earth will be blessed.

"Forsook their nets and followed him."

The labors of Jesus and the Apostles found about five hundred brethren worthy of the garnering during His ministry. Subsequently, at Pentecost and after, several thousand more Jews were harvested. But of these there were not a sufficient number to complete the Divine foreordination; hence, the Jewish people were thrust aside from Divine favor for a time, and God's Message of Grace was sent to the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for His Name"—to be associated with the Jews as members of the Mediator of the New Covenant, under the Headship of the glorified Christ.

"To Become Fishers of Men."

The Wisdom of God is foolishness with men, and the wisdom of men is foolishness with God—say the Scriptures. This is exemplified in our Lord's choice of the twelve Apostles, the calling of four of whom is noted in this study: Simon, Andrew, James and John. However able they were as men, they lacked the polish or education which people were accustomed to expect in religious teachers. The Bible record of them is, "People perceived that they were unlearned men."

This reminds us that the Apostle declared that this "high calling" of God to joint-heirship with Jesus influenced merely the poor of this world, rich in faith; that amongst the "elect" will be found "not many wise, not many mighty, not many noble." (I Corinthians i, 26, 27.) Success in life leads to more or less of self-confidence, self-esteem, self-will, whereas the Gospel Message appeals to those who feel their own weakness and imperfection and unworthiness, and who correspondingly with great earnestness lay hold upon the Divine promise—the Divine aid. The words of Jesus, "Woe unto you rich"—in wisdom, property, fame, in learning, in nobility of character—must not be understood to mean that the great, noble, wise and rich are all or nearly all condemned to eternal torment, or to any punishment, on account of their riches of education, character, etc.

Rather, we must remember the standpoint of the Great Teacher's Message—"Woe unto you" as respects the Kingdom—you are less likely to gain this wonderful "high calling" of God than if you were in humbler circumstances. You have your consolation now, and correspondingly have less interest in the glorious things of God's Message. You are so well satisfied with the things of this present life that it will be the more difficult for you to sacrifice all these for the prospect of a share in Messiah's Kingdom.

Jesus casting out demons.

Even Demons Obey Him.

While Jesus was teaching in the Capernaum synagogue a young man obsessed by a demon, "an unclean spirit," cried out. The demon recognized Jesus and His teaching and used the young man as his mouthpiece, his medium, saying, "Art Thou come to destroy us? I know Thee who Thou art, the Holy One of God."

The demons cast out of human beings by our Lord and the Apostles the Bible tells us were once holy angels. They fell from Divine favor through their sinful relationship to humanity in the days of Noah. (Genesis vi, 1-5.) These fallen spirit beings still desire human relationship, and are styled "unclean spirits," because, however they may begin by presenting themselves as angels of light, they, later, reveal their true characters by unchaste, impure suggestions.

As St. Paul refused to allow a young woman medium to proclaim him and Silas servants of God (Acts xvi, 16-18) so Jesus refused to allow this demon to give testimony respecting Himself, even though it was complimentary. He commanded the demon to come out of the man.

R. GROOME PARKS,

Attorney-at-Law,

Chestertown, - Maryland

WILL RECEIVE SEVENTY LASHES

And Undergo Imprisonment in the Workhouse for Fourteen Years.

Dover, Feb. 27.—In General Sessions Court, yesterday, "Dick" Wright entered pleas of guilty to all four indictment for burglary returned against him. Before he entered his first plea, however, Wright asked the court if there were 40 charges against him, as had been reported. Judge Boyce replied that there were but four indictments. He was required to plead to each indictment, and to each his answer was: "Guilty."

The court consumed some time in figuring up the number of years of imprisonment, the restitution money and fines, before imposing sentence. When this had been done, Judge Boyce ordered Wright to stand up and addressed him as follows:

"Charles P. Wright, you must at some time in your life have reflected on your condition which must have caused you pain and suffering and remorse. If you have not, most pitiable is your condition, indeed. For years past you have preyed upon this community, and when we say this community, we not only mean the two lower counties, but this Peninsula. One of the serious things in your case is that you have dragged down with you many others, black and white, men and women. It is well that you have pleaded guilty, for under the laws of this State we could sentence you to a term of 21 years and impose 100 lashes. These four indictments found against you do not represent, by any means, all the charges against you. While the court has taken everything into consideration, also your pleas of guilty, the sentences we are about to impose are about as lenient as we can make them. In passing sentence on you, we must keep in mind the public. You have not hesitated to plunder the public. You have terrorized innocent women and others. We hope when you have served these sentences, if you then be living, that we can look forward for your reformation instead of ravishing the public, but we fear such reformation. You will, however, have the opportunity to make good. In passing these sentences we may say further that there is no ill will with us. We pity you and your depravity; we are doing this as a protection to the public and a detriment to others." The sentences were as follows:

For breaking into and entering the home of Nancy Solloway, near Hollandsville, on the night of December 27th, and robbing her of $98, a fine of $500, 20 lashes on Saturday, March 2d, and imprisonment for five years.

For the larceny of articles from the store of Hufnal Berry Co., Camdem, to be whipped with 20 lashes on Saturday, March 2d, imprisonment for three years, commencing on February, 1917, and ending on February 24th, 1920.

For the larceny of a horse, the property of Daniel B. Murray of Viola, 10 lashes on Saturday, March 9th, and imprisonment for four years, beginning February 24th, 1920, and ending February 23d, 1924.

For the larceny of the runabout of Daniel B. Murray of Viola, 20 lashes on Saturday, March 9th, and imprisonment for two years, beginning February 23d, 1924, and ending February 22d, 1926.

The number of years' imprisonment imposed on Wright amount to 14 and the number of lashes 70.

At the conclusion of the Wright cases, a sigh of relief passed over the court room all present feeling that the county and State, for a time, at least, were to be relieved of Wright's depredations.

Sheriff Raughley and his deputies were given binding instructions to have Wright kept securely in the Kent county jail until landed at the workhouse.

Wright is the man who was arrested for breaking into the Morris store at Golts. He was held in jail for several months, was tried by the court and released. It is thought that he was at the head of the gang which broke into Mr. Ruth's store at Galena; and he was one of the gang that broke into Mr. Clarke's store at Ridgely and for which Sheriff McKee and Deputy Adam Startt picked up two negroes on the Chestertown streets for the same theft and who afterward confessed and implicated Wright, who they said told them that they would have to murder some one, rather than be caught. The capture of Wright removes a dangerous character. He should spend the remainder of his days in prison.

HORSE LEADS RESCUE

When Cyclone Struck Barn Animal Became Free and Awakened Owner.

It has just become known that had it not been for the almost human intelligence of a horse on the farm of John Ennis, at Cowgill's Corner, during the terrific wind storm last week all the farmer's horses would have been killed.

When the cyclone struck the barn and began to reduce it to kindling wood the horse managed to get loose and ran to its master's house, arousing the family by its neighing. The horse led the way back to the barn and the imprisoned animals, with one exception, were rescued.

¶Remember the Farmers' Institutes for the county. Sassafras, March 8th, Kennedyville, Monday March 10th, and Chestertown, Tuesday March 11th. Fine speakers will discuss timely and important agricultural subjects.

Hicks Forecast For March.

A regular storm period will develop and run its regular course from the 4th to the 8th inclusive. The full moon falls on the 3rd, and the center of the Mercury period on the 2nd. The Mars influence will extend to all the early part of March. Hence look for very low barometer, followed by heavy storms on the 4th,5th, 6th, 7th—first in the west, shifting regularly to eastward, with possible lightning and thunder and rain first, followed west by general and damaging sleet, and possibly snow blockades. A cold wave will follow blizzardous storms from the northwest.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 10th and 11th, involving the 9th and 12th. March the 11th, each year, is the central day of a four to six day period in which the earth passes a maximum crisis of electric and magnetic unrest. Electrical storms, streams of solar magnetism, earth-currents, auroral lights, telegraphic interruptions, and seismic tremors are all quite common and natural at this annual crisis. Rain, turning to sleet and snow, will return in force on and touching the 10th and 11th.

A regular storm period covers the 14th to 19th, having its center on the 16th. The barometer will begin falling in the west about the 14th, with cloudy and threatening conditions. By the 15th and 16th these conditions will bring rain areas, moving eastward, and on the 17th, 18th and 19th, a marked low barometer will pass the central Mississipi valley, attended by decided storms of rain and wind, with possibly tornadoes and hurricanes southward. Snow, rising barometer and change to much colder, will push the western flanks of these storms, leaving cold, fair weather over most parts for several days following storm. The new moon on 18th, and on equator 19th, will hold the culmination of this period back until those dates.

A reactionary storm period falls at the center of earth's vernal equinox on the 22nd, 23rd and 24th. Should the barometer fall to very low readings, especially in the south coasts and gulf regions at this period, with high temperature and humid atmosphere, tornadic storms, or West India hurricanes should be apprehended. Rain, turning to snow, will visit many interior parts, followed from the northwest by rising barometer, cold wave and gales from the northwest. Cyclonic storms, likely to have their origin in the West Indies about the 18th, 19th and 20th, may reasonably be expected to reach the gulf regions, with quickened energy, at this reactionary period.

A regular storm period is central on the 28th, pratically covering the last week in March.
