If in consequence of this refusal the debt had been suffered to remain in the hands of that company and had in consequence of it been lost, there would have been some colour for the objection; but as the executor paid no regard to this refusal but called in the debt and wasted it, I see no foundation for the objection – It may be said that the Ex.r set apart this debt for the Sisters, there is no evidence of the fact, but if he did it is certain that he afterwards awoke his intention, called in the debt and wasted it. –

Theo. Parsons

Boston Oct.r 26. 1803.

MdHS 1974 [1112-954]