Wall Papers and Paints.

Wall Paper

Our stock of new Wall Papers is nearly all in—over 9000 rolls. We purchased at a lower price and will sell at a lower price than ever before. The cash discounts on this bill is enough profit for us. We can sell these papers at the same price our competitors pay for what they buy. The starting price is but come and see these papers and prices will surprise you. We'll sell paper. We sell you the paper outright or send you a competent man to hang it. No charge for our team.

2½c Per Single Roll up to 10c Per Roll,

Paint

Big Reduction in the price of B. P. S. Paint.

The Patterson Sargent Co. are using what they call their Universal Label on all their different products. So to keep in touch with this move, we have decided to sell all gallon cans bearing old labels at cost

$1.75 Per Gallon.

Also Hirschberg Hollander & Co.'s Stag Semi-Paste Paint; 1 gallon makes 2 gallons at $1.75. This reduction comes in season, don't wait as these prices won't last. Back they go when this lot is gone.

TICKET BOUND TO WIN.

Former Governor Frank Brown in commenting upon the nomination of Gov. Wilson and Gov. Marshall by the Democrats says:

"It is a ticket that is bound to win. Wilson has the confidence of the people. He is a student of public affairs and governments. He has studied the structures and workings of foreign governments as well as his own. He thinks deeply and thoroughly and generally decides wisely. He will take into the White House a mental equipment that has rarely had its superior.

"Early in May I gave an interview which was published in nearly all the county papers of the State, setting forth my opinion that Wilson was the best man to nominate. One reason I advanced was that he, better than anyone else, could cope with Roosevelt, for I thought then that Roosevelt would be the Republican nominee. Since then my faith in the man has been growing, and I found others all about me sharing my faith."

PROFIT IN POULTRY.

Success in Overcoming Obstacles as Narrated by Mrs. Arthur L. Harris, of near Betterton, in Sunday Sun.

Mrs. Arthur L. Harris, one of the county's leading grangers, and a most practical farmer's wife, gives the following interesting "talk" on poultry raising in last Sunday's Sun:

"I married a farmer," she said, "and he kept chickens. Mind you, I say he kept them. I make them keep themselves and us too.

"My chief obstacles were a mean, rotten, 5-year-old henhouse, chickens that roosted and laid out—and advice. For the first year I put up with the two and tried to follow the latter. Then I firmly resolved that if I was to raise chickens, all three would have to be changed.

"The first year I set the hens in the henhouse, where they insisted on setting two or three deep. They broke lots of eggs, got infected with vermin, and I got mad. I put the hen and chicks in coops as per advice, and those that did not get lost or die the rats and weasels ate. In fact, my husband shot a big, fat possum right in the henhouse, where he had just made a hole under one side and walked in.

"We lost a good many chicks, but in spite of all these things at the end of the year I found that we had eaten all the eggs and chickens we wanted and had sold $25 worth and had three times as many hens to start the year with.

"But I made up my mind that I would not raise chickens unless I had better things to work with. My husband, when he lived the year before as a bachelor, often could not find an egg, and had sold only $1 or $2 worth of poultry. Now he began to realize that there was money in poultry. During the winter I made plans for a new henhouse. It is 32 feet across the front, 10 feet high in front and 7 feet high in the rear. It is divided into three rooms. There is one large one, 16 feet by 8 feet, with roosts. The whole end of this is open, but it is covered with wire netting and has a canvas curtain to drop in the winter time. There is a window and door in the front. The second room is eight feet square, has roosts in it and a door and a window, both of which are covered with netting for the summer. The third room is 8 feet by 8 feet and has a double row of nests all around it, with a door and window in it. All the rooms connect with each other by small slides on the floor. There is a small opening in the middle room to the outside, so that I can keep all the doors locked, and yet the hens can go in and out. I find that the hens lay better when I take this precaution, and I have more chickens at the end of the year. The henhouse is built on ground that slopes, and it is one foot above the ground in front and two feet behind, making it ratproof, because the cats get underneath and there is no show for the rats."

Last year Mrs. Harris had an addition built to this hen house. It is 16 feet long, 8 feet wide and 7 feet high, divided into two rooms. One is open front and the other closed. These are used for little chicks when needed, and make fine scratching sheds in winter.

Mrs. Harris also says:

"A woman planning to go into the poultry business had better first get a man who is interested in that kind of work, so that she can have help when she needs it. Postively this is necessary, whether it be a man that she marries or one that she just hires. But he must be willing to help her. A woman cannot do all the work alone. A man who is handy with tools can save lots of worry, work and money. And if a man of this kind is a hand and can be called on once in a while to help, poultry raising is a success even on a large scale.

"I am keeping strict account of every egg laid, sold, set and used. Last year 120 hens of ordinary mixed breed laid 9,125 eggs. This year I have 140 hens and I think I will get at least 14,000 eggs.

"I do not use any special feed. In fact they pick up most of their food themselves, for we have a large fruit farm and there are many bugs and insects injurious to the trees that are eaten by the chickens. I am planning to raise 1,000 chicks. Poultry keeping is fine work, not play. But if you work and read books, keep watch over everything—and, above all, get locks, you will make money."

A romance that began at a Betterton picnic several years ago will culminate shortly at Valparaiso, Chile, when Bertha Buscher, who left New York Saturday on a 6,000-mile trip, will become the bride of Charles K. Davis.
