Boat Inspector in Harbor.

Marine Inspector, A. L. Dryden, was in Chester harbor last Friday evening looking for violators of the motorboat laws. He found only one man, and he was a violator simply because he does not read and knew nothing about the law. We would advise our boat owners and pleasure seekers on the water that it is not only a violation of the marine laws to be without necessary equipment on motorboats, but if a rowboat appears on the river after dark without a lighted lantern, the owner is subject to an exceedingly heavy fine. Mr. Dryden caught several boys on the river in a boat without the lantern and he gave them just five minutes to get ashore and get a light. The boys got. The inspector says he intends to enforce the law rigidly and no one knows when he will come again. So be prepared men and don't get caught even if you are in a rowboat.
