CHAUTAUQUA NOTES.

Mrs. Gen'l Geo. E. Pickett is slowly recovering at her home in Washington, D.C. It will be remembered that when she came to her Chautauqua engagements in this section she was suffering from a heavy cold which had already developed into pneumonia. She persistently kept her engagements though physicians in each town earnestly advised against it. Finally, after her lecture at Chambersburg, she was taken to the hospital, and now, two months later, she is only able to sit up a couple of hours a day.

Frank Dixon, whose lecture, "The Square Deal," was heard at the eighteen towns of the fall Chautauqua circuit, is by unanimous request of these towns placed on the 1913 program.

Reno B. Welbourne is also placed on the 1913 program by unanimous request of the same eighteen towns which heard him on the fall Chautauqua circuit. Mr. Welbourne is spending the winter in scientific research in Chicago. Few scientists can do what Welbourne accomplishes, persue continued investigation and make popular the results of such investigation. During November Mr. Welbourne is giving extension lectures for Yale University.

Paul M. Pearson, director of the Chautauqua Association, is spending two weeks in Arizona, where he presents a series of six lecture-recitals for the State University, and a series of six for the new Century Club at Phœnix.

Mr. I. A. Downey, field manager of the Chautauqua Association, will spend Thanksgiving week as an instructor at the Sussex County, Delaware, Teachers' Institute.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

A unique feature of the 1913 Chautauqua will be a day of special interest for children to be known as Children's Day, though it will be vastly interesting to grown-ups as well. The afternoon program will begin with music and magic by the Dietricks. Mr. Dietrick is an exceptionally clever magician and a skillful player of the banjo, xylophone and other musical instruments. Mrs. Dietrick assists in the magic, whistles, and presents piano trick playing.

This delightful number will be followed by Rosani, the juggler, who for a dozen years has been a Chautauqua favorite, appearing in all the best Chautauquas. Dexterity, combined with natural skill and a pleasing manner, make Rosani the most artistic, pleasing and amusing entertainer on the platform. He is not a magician, but a manipulator and balancer. Among the difficult feats shown are balancing a plate on an ordinary whip, rolling billards both up and down on an incline without changing the slant of the incline, and many seemingly impossible feats of balancing.

At night, the Dietricks will appear again in magic and musical novelties. This number will be followed by William Sterling Battis, Dickens impersonator, presenting in costume, make-up, and monologue the familiar Dickens characters. These unique character portrayals are wonderfully entertaining and remarkably instructive. Uriah Heep, Micarber, Sidney Carton, Capt. Cuttle, and the other familiar characters walk and talk before the audience as they did three-quarters of a century ago in London. The evening will close with two reels of motion pictures chosen especially to amuse and instruct.

The 1913 program is not yet complete, though practically so. The association is confident that the program is stronger and more attractive. The completed program will be announced before long.

MUSIC.

The opening day of the 1913 Chautauqua will witness two great concerts by the Florentine Concert Band. Everywhere there was a request for Ciricillo's return, but the association believes that they have secured even a better band and they are very happy to announce the result.

The Florentine Concert Band consists of twenty-five people who present the best music in the best way. The director, Signor Lawrence Pentrelli, is a man of unusual grace and skill. In music, in personnel, the band we feel, is in every way superior to the offering of last year. Though it will be hard for a community to think of a better band than Ciricillo's, yet the management insists that the Florentine Concert Band is superior. Take their word for it and hear it.

The Fellows Operatic Company under the leadership of Harry J. Fellows, presents a program of selections from grand and comic opera. Their ensemble work is especially effective and their solo work is notable. Their program will close with selections from the comic opera, Penelope, given in costume and with appropriate stage accessories. This program will be given the closing night and will be a fitting finale for a week of great musical events.

Among the musical numbers is the Commonwealth Quartet presenting vocal and instrumental numbers. This Quartet has been together for six years and presents a pleasing program.

The Tyrolean Alpine Singers consists of seven natives under the direction of Mr. Frank Graus. This is unquestionably the finest thing of the kind that has ever visited this country. During the winter of nineteen hundred eleven and twelve they appeared at the New York Hippodrome in the famous Switzerland scene in "A Trip Around the World." They appear in native Swiss costumes and sing the characteristic national airs. This is one of the most novel and pleasing entertainments that it is possible to arrange.

The Dietricks, musicians, entertainers, will present an interesting program of magic, music and mirth.

One other musical number is to be chosen.

The musical program for 1913 is very superior in quality to that of 1912. It has more variety also, and will prove more interesting.

PROGRAM OF LECTURES FOR 1913.

That is not yet completed but will be presented a little later. Some unusual events are in prospect.

SCORES FARMERS' WIVES.

Government Official Asserts They Follow Lure of "Society."

Washington, Nov. 8.—A sharp arraingment of the farmers' wives and daughters, and incidently their city sisters is contained in a report made today by George K. Holmes, chief of the Division of Production and Distribution of the Agricultural Department.

Although wages have risen steadily during 44 years, Mr. Holmes declares that the women of the present age have forgotten or are too proud to perform household work on the farm. The lure of "society" which has reached out to the farm, he says, is much to blame for the condition, which he describes as "acute."

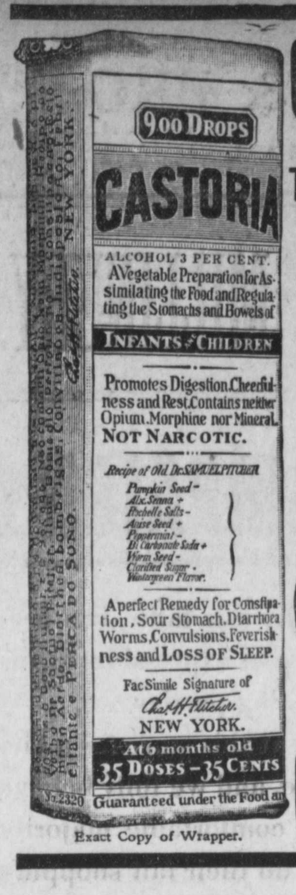

"Country girls as well as city girls," says Mr. Holmes, in reporting to Secretary Wilson "seem to regard household labor for hire as undesirable. Joined with this fact is the other one that the women of the farmer's family are neither able nor willing to repeat the manual labor performances of their grandmothers on the farm."

The raising of the standard of living on the farm, the report continues, is responsible in a measure for the women now engaging in "social functions," which the Government expert holds to be "incompatible with the performance of household labor." The passing of the old-time domestic industries is deplored and Mr. Holmes adds that "it is rare that one of the younger women know how to knit."

"Throughout large areas," he says, "the pride of the housewife in great stores of preserves,, dried and pickled fruits, berries and vegetable exists chiefly in history, and dependance is placed mostly upon the local store for the products of the cannery and the evaporator."

Within the period mentioned Mr. Holmes reports that wages paid to men laborers on the farm have risen as high as 79 per cent. and that harvest hands are now paid upward of $20 a month, with board.

For the farm laborer who lives on the farm the year around, Mr. Holmes declares, the money paid does not represent the real value of his renumeration, for the "cost of living" virtually is solved for him.
