Mass defiance of Florida bus segregation ruling hinted; hundreds may be imprisoned!

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — "If those boys have to serve 60 days and pay $500 fines, we will commence a mass movement on buses here."

The price that they are paying has renewed our determination to oppose without hesitation every form of segregation."

"Those who think we are faltering may look for us in the front seats of every bus in every public place where we have bowed to the stigma of segregation and racial discrimination."

THIS WAS the attitude assumed by the Rev. C. K. Steele, president of the Tallahassee Intercivic Council, Tuesday, following a court order jailing two students who sat in the front seat of a bus here.

Mr. Steele's words came after the U. S. Supreme Court had refused to review the case of three Florida college students convicted in March, 1957 of violation of the Tallahassee "reserve" bus seating law.

Two of the students, Leonard D. Speed and Johnny Herndon of Florida A. and M. University, have been jailed for 60 days under a court order of City Judge John Ruddy.

A white University of Florida student, involved, Joseph Spagna, was out of the state when the arrest order was issued, according to the Rev. Mr. Steele who said:

"Francisco Rodriguez, attorney of Tampa, has entered a writ of habeas corpus to get the students out of jail."

The Rev. Mr. Steele said a hearing in the case has been slated for April 7 in the Florida State Supreme Court.

The three scholars were given jail terms and fined $500 each in the case originally and when the U.S. Supreme Court refused to review the matter, City Judge John Ruddy ordered the students jailed immediately.

Observers expressed belief that the Supreme Court's ruling did not mean that the Tallahassee seating assignment law was constitutional.

THEY SAID the ruling was apparently the result of failure to raise the constitutional issue at the original trial in city court.

The students and three others arrested at the same time claimed that the law was "unconstitutional and a subterfuge to evade an earlier Supreme Court ruling that outlawed racial segregation of Tallahassee buses."

The "reserve" seating law was enacted after the U.S. Supreme Court declared bus seating segregation unconstitutional.

"We have received no reason as to why the court refused to review the case," the Rev. Mr. Steele stated, insisting:

"A constitutional question was raised at the first hearing in regard to this seating law.

"We plan to fight this case out and bring about another one if we have to. We will definitely seek a statement as widespread as possible against the buses if those boys have to stay in jail and pay fines.

"This week will live in infamy. Mr. Speed and Mr. Herndon are serving rigorous sentences because they refused to agree with a foolish law enacted by the city of Tallahassee which states:

"The driver of the bus may assign seats to passengers for health, weight and safety of its passengers.

"THOUGH WE expect to ultimately triumph, we here and now assert our determination to continue our opposition without violence to any measure we consider undemocratic and un-Christian, even if it means that many more of us will have to serve sentences."

Before going to the U. S. Supreme Court, an appeal of Judge Ruddy's decision before Circuit Court Judge W. May Walker, resulted in that ruling being upheld.

The high court appeal was filed after U.S. District Judge Bozier Devane refused to intervene, saying he was restrained by Federal law from entering cases within the jurisdiction of municipal courts.

No mention of race is made in the Tallahassee seating assignment law, but the bus driver has authority to assign each passenger to a numbered seat, and says to it that he occupies that seat.

The flaw was adopted after a seven-month boycott by residents when two Florida A. and M. University coeds were arrested for violating the city's original segregation seating law.

Some 22 leaders of the Tallahassee Interciv Council were arrested and fined during the boycott and a car pool to provide transportation for boycotters was banned by a city law.

The Rev. Mr. Steele said Circuit Judge Walker last week took the car pool case under advisement. Rev. Mr. Steele said a ruling on that case is expected within two weeks.

His co-clergyman said Mr. Rodriguez, NAACP attorney, will represent the students in Monday's hearing before the state high court.

Mr. Speed has a wife and four children. Mr. Herndon has a small daughter. We are going to do everything in our power for them," the Rev. Mr. Steele concluded.

young man, that most human beings spend their lives doing work which they hate and work which the world does not need. It is therefore of prime importance that you learn early what you want to do; how far you are fit to do it and whether or not the world needs this service.

HERE, in the next 20 years, your parents can be of use to you. You will often be left to wonder just what parents are for, besides interfering with your natural wishes.

Let me, therefore, tell you: parents are inflicted upon you in order to show you what kind of a person you are, what sort of world you live in and what the persons who dwell here need for their happiness and well-being.

It was my unusual good fortune in the first 25 years of my life, to learn by effort and hard competition, just what I could do; then to get a fairly good idea of what the world was in which I must work.

In these years I have seen the United States, North and South, I have lived in England, France, Germany and Italy; I had listened to the advice of some of the world's greatest minds and I had heard from the lips of human beings just what their problems were. Beside this, I had seen the Atlantic Ocean, the high Alps at Berne, the Vepirs of Milo and the Sistine Madonna.

THEN I CAME home prepared to work. It was then the summer of 1892. 66 years ago, that I made a quite unconscious choice. I chose to begin my life work for the future of doing it and the need of its being done and not for the money I was going to be paid for it.

This was no great and advertised decision. I asked no advice and none was proferred. I chose without hesitancy or question.

It was in this wise: after borrowing money to pay for postage stamps, I wrote the nation and offered my services. The response was slow and unenthusiastic. But at least three offers came.

A colored college in Ohio offered me $10 a year as a teacher. A state school in Missouri offered me $1,800. I went to Wilberforce, Ohio, not because of any martyr complex but because I knew something about Wilberforce.

I KNEW that in 1787, when this nation was declaring all men equal, two black men were in their knees praying to God in the tabernacle church of St. George's in Philadelphia. While St. George's was glad to see colored people practice the true religion, they did not like them to clutter up the aisles of this church and to assail God with such vehemence.

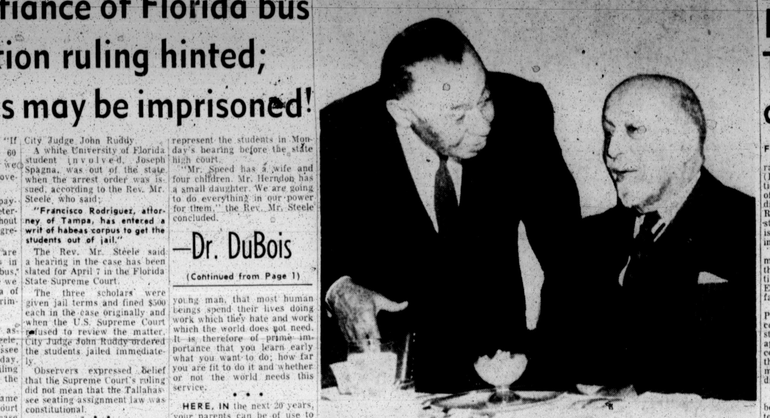
TWO DEACONS therefore approached these black men and whispered gently that it would be more seemly if they would finish their prayers in the balcony. The balcony was much nearer heaven than the main floor.

But these men were stubborn. They said, "No, we are going to finish our prayers right here and now. Then we are going to get up and leave this church and we are never coming back."

So one of these men, Richard Allen, left the white Methodist church and founded the African Methodist Episcopal church.



WORLD AFFAIRS — Dr. Rayford W. Logan, chairman of the history department at Howard University, exchanges views with Dr. William E. B. DuBois during luncheon at Howard Monday. Dr. DuBois lectured there Monday night.

IN LECTURE AT HOWARD

'America fighting world progress,' DuBois declares

WASHINGTON — "The nation is headed wrong. It is not the first time a nation has been wrong, but it may be the last."

This declared Dr. William E. B. DuBois, noted scholar, author and pioneer in the battle for equal rights for more minute lecture at Howard Unities, as he concluded a 30-ately sixty a movement as widespread as possible against the buses if those boys have to stay in jail and pay fines.

"This week will live in infamy. Mr. Speed and Mr. Herndon are serving rigorous sentences because they refused to agree with a foolish law enacted by the city of Tallahassee which states:

The Rev. Mr. Steele said Circuit Judge Walker last week took the car pool case under advisement. Rev. Mr. Steele said a ruling on that case is expected within two weeks.

His clergyman said Mr. Rodriguez, NAACP attorney, will communism dictatorship or by democracy, its aim of giving to each what he needs and demanding what best he can give is the inevitable aim of civilization and sooner or later will triumph."

Answering his own question, "Where now do colored people stand?" Dr. DuBois declared "If we aim to be Americans, willing to do only what America does, think as it thinks and say what it says we are stupid."

"If, on the other hand," he continued, "we are determined to reach the highest standards of the world and broaden and lift those standards by developing the best parts of our own American colored culture, cleansed by blood and slavery, poverty and insult, we may save the world."

"If, on the other hand, we are bribed by high salaries to our talents, if we are seduced by privilege to our rich, while our millions crawl by publicity for our rich while our millions and our youth rot in jail, then we are lost," he concluded.

DR. DuBOIS traced the history of the period 1917 to 1957, which he said had been of "unprecedented change and which has been the interpretation of their meaning. At the outset he declared that his "underlying thesis is that the history of those eventful years is not what most of you have been taught. It is not what most of you believe. It is what I believe.

"I charged that "during World War I, America gained 23,000 millionaries, displaced Great Britain as banker of the world and became the chief figure in world trade. "Our new wealth and power changed our attitude toward Russia," which was revolting against the tsarist dynasty, Dr. DuBois asserted.

Then he traced the historical events from 1929 to the Depression in 1929 in the United States, the rise of Stalin Russia, a new state founded on socialistic principles, and the gain of control by Hitler in Germany.

DURING THIS period, Dr. DuBois said "socialism began to spread from Russia to Scandinavia, to Britain, Germany and Italy; to France and the United States."

He emphasized that Franklin D. Roosevelt was "not a conscious socialist," but faced the unemployment of 14 million Americans, ruined farms, closed banks and disrupted industry, and "adopted the socialist program of Harry Hopkins."

"Hitler in Germany and Mussolini in Italy, facing conditions as bad or worse than America, also turned toward socialism," the renowned author said, "but used social control to serve capital rather than labor."

SHORTLY afterwards came World War II, which Dr. DuBois declared was "not a fight between democracy and fascism or between socialism and free enterprize." "It was," he asserted, "an attempt of Europe to restore its control of the colonial peoples of the world, with Russia as a part, and the exploited area in Germany and Italy displacing France and Britain as the chief directors of world wealth and labor.

"Big Business in the United States was willing to defend Hitler and Mussolini in their own terms which were the death of the New Deal and the passing of colonial imperialism from Europe to America," Dr. DuBois said.

He said "If Roosevelt had not died early in 1945, the future of the world would be different."

"Harry Truman, haberdasher turned politician, was made the "became president, and when the atom bomb was perfected and used to force surrender of Japan became convinced that the United States had the power to stop the spread of socialism in the world."

The post-war plan, he said, was to get "tough" with Russia, and was followed by five years of McCarthyism.

DR. DuBOIS' lecture was sponsored by the Division of Social Sciences at Howard Dr. Eugene C. Holmes, associate professor of philosophy, and chairman of the Division of Social Sciences, said the visit to Howard was a tribute to him on his 90th birthday. He celebrated his 90th birthday last month.

He was introduced by Dr. Rayford W. Logan, chairman of the History Department at Howard, who pointed to Dr. DuBois had been in the forefront of the movements for civil rights during three generations.

Eastland move on Tiffany nomination called 'pointed stall'

By LOUIS LAUTIER
For the NNPA News Service

WASHINGTON — The referral by Sen. James O. Eastland (Dem., Miss.) of the nomination of Gordon MacLean Tiffany of Concord, N.H., to be staff director of the bipartisan Civil Rights Commission to the Constitutional Rights subcommittee is only to delay the commission in getting on with its work.

After consultation with the members of the commission, three of whom are conservative southerners, President Eisenhower nominated Mr. Tiffany on Feb. 20.

The provision requiring the President to consult with the commission before naming a staff director, and making the appointment subject to Senate confirmation, was written into the Civil Rights Act of 1957 to make it difficult to find a staff director.

ANY MAN of standing would be reluctant to subject himself to the insults and taints he would find after he left Eastland and the other Dixiecrats on the Senate Judiciary Committee.

At its first meeting on Jan. 3 the commission agreed upon three names—Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State University, and chairman of the commission, called them "distinguished people." None of them would take the job.

At the second meeting the commission agreed upon another panel of persons who were acceptable. All of them declined.

FINALLY, the commission turned to the Council of State Governments and asked for suggestions.

Frank Bain, executive director of the council, suggested Mr. Tiffany. The former New Hampshire Attorney General, "with some hesitation," accepted.

Eastland permitted the nomination to stay on the committee files from Feb. 20 to March 26, and then referred it to the Constitutional Rights subcommittee, of which Sen. Thomas C. Hennings of Missouri is the chairman.

If the subcommittee promptly approves the nomination, the dirty work will then begin.

Hearings by the full committee will be requested. Eastland will grant the request. These hearings will be prolonged probably, until the end of the session.

Tunisia and France 'bury hatchet' for anniversary

WASHINGTON (ANP) — Tunisia and France joined hands figuratively last week when the French Ambassador joined the merrymakers who assembled at the Tunisian Embassy to celebrate the second anniversary of Tunisia's independence.

Although the official observance of Independence Day was called off in Tunisia because of the present conflict with France, Ambassador Slim's government permitted him to give his scheduled party at the Washington Embassy.

Tunisia's new embassy had undergone complete renovation and decoration making it one of the special jewels of The white stucco mansion of Moorish style, setting atop a high hill off Broad Branch road literally dazzled in the glittering snow.

THE AMBASSADOR was stationed in the center hall to greet the hundreds of guests from as far north as New York and as far south as Texas. Also among the many guests was Mohammed Yazid, Algeria's leader in the fight for independence from France. He appeared optimistic about the independence of his country, claiming that "all revolutionaries are optimistic."

The near and Middle East were well represented at the reception. Among the heads of missions attending were the Ambassadors of Morocco, Libya, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Afghanistan, Sudan and Turkey. Also the ministers of Saudi Arabia, Jordan and the Yemen Charge d'Affaires.

The Tunisian reception came on the heels of the first anniversary celebration given by the Ghana Ambassador a few weeks earlier in the terrace banquet room of the Shoreham Hotel. More than 700 people were greeted at that reception by the Ghanaian Ambassador and Mrs. Chapman.

So gay was that celebration that two well wishers had to be elevated to table level to be heard. They were Representatives Frances Bolton (R., Ohio) and Charles Diggs Jr. (D., Mich.).

ANNAPOLIS DOINGS

By ELOISE RICHARDSON

The Frontiers of America are coming to Annapolis! The body will hold its regional meeting here on April 26.

While many people do know about the Frontiers because of the local club, there are also many who do not know about the aggregation.

The Frontiers of America, a national group, is a movement of pioneers.

It seeks to harness the cooperative influence of the leaders of a minority group (our group), and to direct that influence toward the solution of majori ssues, racial, civic and social.

Changing times demand new techniques. The Frontiers represents a unique approach to the intelligent and objective consideration of problems that confront a minority group.

It seeks to clarify aims, give dynamic force to ideals, and to cement leadership into a solid unit for action.

THE FRONTIERS CLUB does not seek to duplicate efforts of existing agencies such as the Urban League, NAACP, the YMCA and the YWCA.

Instead, it cooperates with these groups and seeks to vitalize them by active individual participation in their programs.

It was on November 10, 1936 that the first Frontiers Club was founded at Columbus, Ohio, by Jymrod B. Allen, executive secretary of the Columbus Urban League.

His move grew out of his idea of the need of a service club, and after a time in discussing this need with a cross section of men who held strategic positions in the city, there was unanimous agreement with the plan.

For more than two years the idea was tried out, and then on the basis of tested gains, the group, in 1938, decided to incorporate as the Frontiers of America with national headquarters.

It was in July, 1948, that the local club was organized and sponsored by the Baltimore chapter.

Its first officers were:

Walter Mills, president; Norwood Brown, vice-president; Jerome Fleming, secretary-treasurer; Dr. Thomas R. Baden Jr., vice president of the Eastern region; chairman of the program and hospitality committees, and Francis L. Noel, secretary of the chapter and co-chairman of the program.

WELL, FRANK SIMMS, personable young man of this community is quietly making strides in his pursuit of a career.

Recently, he was at Crownsville State Hospital, where he was a medical laboratory technician, he is now in the U.S. Naval Academy, Department of Marine Engineering, serving as a laboratory technician in the internal combustion laboratory.

He is the first of our group to hold such a position there.

He was educated at St. Mary's Elementary School and the Wiley H. Bates High School. He played in chemistry at Howard University.

He had two years of service in the Army as a dental hygiene and medical laboratory technician.

After active service, Frank reentered Howard, this time in the field of pharmacy.

Frank is planning the near future to enter medical school, possibly at McGill in Montreal, Canada.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe F. Gross (his mother, the former Helen Dorsey Simms) at 74 Cathedral St., he is married to the former Jean Brashears, and is the proud father of a young daughter, little Dr. Marlene Simms.

THE VOTERS Registration campaign of the Anne Arundel county Branch NAACP is now full swing and workers are calling all unregistered persons to cooperate and be aware of their obligations as citizens in this community.

Unless we are registered and vote, we have no claim to the improvements of the community, state or country.

By registering, you not only help yourself personally in so many ways, but you make it easier to secure things that might be needed in your community such as better lighting, better and cleaner streets, better police protection and many other advantages.

There is nothing difficult or embarrassing connected with registering to vote. Only simple routine questions for necessary information are asked.

At the Supervisor of Elections Office, a courteous staff is there to receive you and give you help in registering.

The ballot is our ticket to freedom. Since one of the aims of the NAACP is to use the ballot as one of the instruments to eradicate all discriminations in American life, the branch needs your help to conduct a vigorous campaign to increase registration and voting among our citizens in Anne Arundel County. Co-chairmen of the register-to-vote drive are Milton Hawkins, and Roland Randall.

TOURING TURNER STATION

By E. S. McDANIEL

Joseph Everett of Rt. 2, Box 298, Jamesville, N.C., in Martin County, died on Sunday, March 30, at noon following a cerebral hemorrhage. He had reached the ripe age of 77.

He was the grandfather of the Rev. James Everett who said he has been active in church as long as he can remember.

He has been chairman of the deacon board and superintendent of the Sunday School at Weeping Mary Baptist Church for over thirty - five years.

His survivors include his wife, Mrs. Mary Jane Everett; one son and three daughters; two grandsons; and two great grandsons, James Everett of the Sollers Point High School and Daniel Everett of the Turner Elementary School.

The community expresses sympathy to the family during these hours of bereavement. The family left for North Carolina on Monday.

Mrs. Louise Morris of 307 Pine Street is ill at the Johns Hopkins Hospital where she has been confined for the past three weeks. She is in Outer 4, room 417.

Let's not forget her during her illness; do your part to cheer her so that she may recover soon.

We can never give too much in praise of a job well done, especially when the job has been done by a child. The big news in recreation this week was made by small boys.

The Turner Station 9 - 12 basketball team composed of boys in the 9 - 12 age group from Turner Station, made its debut in the county-wide tournament.

The team is sponsored by the Turner Station Recreation Council. Tuesday night they defeated Edgemere 54 to 46. Wednesday night they defeated Chesapeake Terrace 30 to 0.

On Thursday night in the larger and older boys and were finals, they played against defeated by a score of 24 to 23. These little fellows played their best game on Thursday night when the odds were against them—and were eliminated by the very narrow margin of one point.

THE TURNER Station team was the smallest team in the tournament, but when they lacked in size, they made up in speed and alertness along with a will to win.

We salute Clarito Brice, Alvin McArthur, Captain James Smith, Ronald Ball, Jessie Johnson, Edward Gipson, William Epps, Everett Burrows, and Jeromie Mack.

These boys were good sports in their manners and conduct through the tournament. They lacked in size, they made up in speed and alertness along with a will to win.

Our thanks to Mr. M. Johnson of 207 Fleming Drive and to Mr. Charles Epps of 307 Pine Street, Sparrows Point for furnishing transportation for the little fellows.

Thanks also to Charles Mack of Sparrows Point who gave much time and effort to round this team into what was adjudged by the sponsors as the best coached team in the tournament.

Two of these boys, Jessie Johnson and Jeromie Mack are AFRO carriers; buy a paper from them because they are only sell the news, they make it.

National Library Week was celebrated at the Turner Station Public Library March 16 through March 22. Thanks to the following people for the use of their windows and bulletin boards for display purpose:

Allmond Grocery, 201 Main Street; Watson Grocery, 121 Sollers Point Road; Burrell's Variety Store, 423 Main Street; Day Village Drug Store, 501 Avondale Road. New Shiloh Baptist Church; The Rev. James Everett pastor; New Life Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Y. McKay Miller, pastor;

Also Union Baptist Church, Sparrows Point, Rev. Carlton O. Jones, pastor.

Thanks to little Sheila Durant of 126 Chestnut Street, a student at the Turner Elementary School who designed the box for the Lucky Library Card Contest.

Winners in the contest were: Ralph Ford, 600 Peach Orchard Lane, student at Bragg; Barbara Ann Parker, 110 Carver Road, student at Bragg; Yolanda Hayes, 300 Fleming Drive, student at Bragg; Christine Gadsden, 205 Sollers Point Road, student at Turner Elementary School.

The committee for the celebration: Mrs. Frances Durant, chairman; Mrs. Maelves Addison; librarian, Turner Station Public Library; Mrs. Hortense Hackett, librarian, Fleming Elementary School, and Mrs. Willard King, librarian, Sollers Point High School.

THE MARYLAND Congress of Parent - Teacher Associations Workshop at Coppin State Teachers College on Saturday, did not go unnoticed by all of the community. There were several persons who found time out of their busy schedules to attend the meeting. The following persons were present:

Mr. Robert L. Abbott, president of Turner PTA; Mrs. Ruth Riddix and Mrs. Klean Springs from the Turner School; Mrs. Thelma Loudon, president of the Fleming PTA, and Mrs. Maude Vaugh, a member; Mrs. Elizabeth Ransom of the Sollers Point High School, and Mr. Roland E. Harris, principal of the Bragg Elementary School.

The Turner Station Health Committee will sponsor the Great Rav-Mond, the magician, at the Sollers Point High School on April 11, at 8 p.m. Admission adults $.90 and school children, $.50. Tickets are on sale at the offices of the housing projects, Mrs. Wilson's store in the Sollers Homes, Mr. Abbott's office — 315 Sollers Point Road, Speed's Barber Shop, the schools, the Anthony Theatre, and from the writer.

The Health Committee is in earnest about raising funds for building purposes.

Since this is a community project, every person in the community should support each of the projects that they put on. Will you give your support by purchasing your tickets early?
