JAMES H. WILLIAMS, a suspect in the Easter sex-slaying of seven-year-old Patricia (Pattie) Fox is led into Central Police station by Officer Stanley Clark of the Southwestern District where he was charged the next morning with choking the child to death.

Suspect held in attack on girl, 13

A 30-year-old construction worker was picked up for questioning by Park Police Thursday morning in connection with the attempted criminal assault of a 13-year-old girl.

At the Northern District police station it was discloed that the girl reported the attemped attack to her grandmother following a walk in Druid Hill Park last Friday afternoon.

The teenager, a resident of the 2500 block Brookfield Ave., told the following story according to police.

That around 4:30 p.m. she and her eight-year-old brother were approched by a man near the Washington Monument who offered to give her a dollar to accompany him on a walk through the park.

THE GIRL claims that during the walk, her brother got lost and returned home.

It was then that the man forced her at knifepoint to accompany him into a wooded area.

She told police that when she resisted his advances he threatened to take her life, dropped a pocket knife and fled from the scene.

-Pattie's death

Pattie's mother went to the police station and, she said, was told to find a cop on the beat and report it to him.

Later she telephoned South-western police station and was told to "wait a few hours, she (Pattie) might be watching TV at someone's house."

IRONICALLY, both mothers were on hand when the bodies were found.

I wonder where the Robinson family is today?

If Mrs. Robinson is still around and has read of the Pattie Fox case, she, no doubt, has relived the agonies of that fateful day in April 1947 when her little daughter skipped playfully out of the house never to return.

THE CROWD WATCHES as men from the police Department's crime lab work over the area where Pattie Fox's body was foud. Also seen are reporters and other policemen.

Pool hall operator says small businessman 'taxed out of business'

William K. Clarke, 530 Safford Pl., is one man who agrees with Vice-President Nixon when he said recently that "the small businessman should be helped." According to Mr. Clarke's statement, "The little business needs help now."

And he adds, "It's almost too late for me, I am being taxed out of business."

Mr. Clarke has been in business here for 35 years.

An enterprising man of 52, Clarke was required to pay $29, a jump of 100 percent.

Therefore, Mr. Clarke could not purchase all the licenses he needs.

He could only buy for one half his pool tables.

IN ADDITION, the $20 pool table licenses is not the only fee Mr. Clarke needs to pay.

FOR THE music boxes there is $25 in license fees.

All told Mr. Clarke is faced with 11 different taxes.

"I'm being taxed out of business behind the scenes.

"I don't mind helping my country with taxes but when I have to borrow to make ends meet, I can't stay in business long."

MR. CLARKE has been a favorite with "the gang down on the corner" for more than 40 years.

It's nothing for him to "lend a quarter" or "give a quarter" to many of "the boys" who

Fight cancer with a checkup, a check

"Track Down Cancer with a Checkup and a Check" is again the rallying cry of the Cancer Crusade.

This slogan will be used because it effectively expresses the double-barreled objective of the American Cancer Society's 1958 campaign, according to Emil K. Meacham, campaign chairman for Maryland.

"Our annual fund-raising drive is also an intensive educational effort," declared Mr. Meacham. "We have evidence that repetition of our life-saving slogan is paying off. Slowly, but surely, Americans are becoming check-up conscious. So we know we are saving lives that would otherwise be lost.

"But we still have a long way to go. Last year some 250,000 Americans died of cancer. Of that number 75,000 could have been saved if the cancers had been diagnosed and treated at an early stage.

"That is reason enough to keep on repeating our slogan until every adult in the United States forms the habit of yearly health examinations."

Mr. Meacham went on to explain why regular checkups offer the best protection against cancer, the number two disease killer in the United States today.

Hurrying to get one of North Carolina Mutual's
Low-cost Family Policies

PARK CASULTY — Out of the more than 2,000 persons who descended on Druid Hill Park Easter Monday, Linzell Patterson, 13, of 1528 Bruce St., was the most unlucky. At first it was thought that the youth had suffered a broken ankle in a fall. An examination at Provident Hospital disclosed the injury to be nothing more than a sprain. A total of 40 policemen kept the holiday crowd under control.

N.C. Mutural president says staff aims for firm's best year

President W. J. Kennedy Jr., has announced that both the home office and field personnel of North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company have pledged their utmost efforts to make the year 1958 the best year for the company in its entire history.

On October 20, 1958 the company will observe the 60th anniversary of its origin at which time it is estimated that its total admitted assets will reach the sixty million goal and total life insurance in force will be in excess of one quarter billion dollars.

Of primary interest to policyholders is the fact that during 1957, $4,982,270.43 was paid to policyholders and/or their beneficiaries, bringing the total since organization of $6,870,513.

Contrary to the old concept that life insurance was associated largely with the death of the insured, $4,063,825.26 of the amount paid under policy contracts during 1957 was paid to live policyholders in disability benefits, matured endowments, cash surrender values anddividends.

• • •

DURING LAST year 162,725 new policies were issued bringing the total number of policies in force at the end of the year to 796,463 and total insurance in force of $745,714,972.

The admitted assets of the company as of December 31, 1957 of $57,507,290.62 show an increase of $3,906,257.79 over the previous year.

The increase of $10,098.82 in the combined weekly premium debit during 1957 was the largest since 1947 and $4,573.93 in excess of the increase for the year 1956. The weekly premium hospital policy issued during the last half of 1957 proved to be $500 for each child.

President Kennedy expresses the opinion that 1958 will be another good year for North Carolina Mutual and the life insurance industry as a whole, because of the fact that the people of our nation have come to realize that life insurance serves a basic human need.

Youth gets death

CAMBRIDGE, Md. — A two-day trial came to an end here on Tuesday when two brothers were found guilty of first degree murder in the death of a blonde storekeeper.

Leonard Shockley, 17, was sentenced to die in the gas chamber while his brother, Harold, 22, was given life in prison.

The heavier sentence was given the younger man because of an alleged statement introduced into evidence in which his brother said he (Leonard) had slashed the woman's throat.

• • •

THE VICTIM, Mrs. Sarah Hearne, was slain in her general store in the Worcester County community of Boxiron.

The brothers were granted a change of venue to this city where they were tried by a three judge court.

The Shockleys were arrested seven hours after the woman's death at their home near Frankford, Del.
