FIRST RUN FILM JOURNEYS INTO CRIME SHOWING AT ALBERT

Two tense and electrifying journeys into the world of juvenile crime are now at the New Albert Theatre.—Republic's "Young and Wild" and "Juvenile Jungle."

The eye of Mr. Kubrick's camera bores directly into the minds of scheming men and the fears of the men who have to accept orders to die.

KIRK DOUGLAS is cast as a colonel in a battle-weary battalion whose troops are given the impossible task of capturing a German stronghold on the Western Front in 1915.

When they winter under the German firepower, the French General (George Macready) orders that three men be selected and court-martialed as disciplinary examples for the rest of the men. Douglas is abhorred at the action, and elects to defend them at the trial.

It is truly an eloquent film, and everyone connected with it deserves the highest praise.

'DAMN CITIZEN' AT HARLEM THEATRE

"Damn Citizen" starring Keith Andes and Maggie Hayes is now at the Harlem Theatre.

Told by the "damn citizen" himself, Col. Francis Grevemberg, former Superintendent of State Police, this picture has the sheer guts to show you things you never dreamed you'd see on the screen!

Starring with Walker in "Fort Dobbs" is Virginia Mayo.

Natalie Wood, Karl Malden Marsha Hunt and Efrem Zimbalist Jr., star in exciting new drama "Bombers B-52," twin attraction on this bill.

The film in CinemaScope and WarnerColor is a mighty action story that soars non-stop at a mile-a-second pace. A powerful setting of contemporary American life, the air-base that houses the most powerful bomber in the world, the B-52 Stratofortress, has been chosen as a background for the film.

'FORT DOBBS' OFFERS ROYAL STAR OF TV 'CHEYENE'

Clint Walker, the very popular "Cheyenne" of TV, stars in his first motion picture, "Fort Dobbs," now at the Royal.

"Fort Dobbs" is the rough, American film debut in the picture.

A grim, bitter and powerful drama of war, it has been handled with skill and forcefully directed. The acting throughout is brilliant. The story is told with grim anger and realism.

THREE MEN await blast from the firing squad while a priest performs the last rites. This tense scene is from "Paths of Glory," a United Artists release, now playing at the Met Theatre.

Top TV shows cool to artists

By BAKER E. MORTEN
AFRO STAFF WRITER

Having watched television with the audience of a UN trooper guarding the Sinai Peninsula, the writer has noted over the past several months the total absence of colored guest stars on two highly rated TV entertainment shows.

One of these programs, the Dinah Shore Show, has captured an Emmy award for the best continuing female entertainment event for 1957.

The other videogram, "What's My Line?" a quiz deal, operates as a highly trendexed panel show, flooded with prominent personalities.

JOY SUPERNAL flows from both these shows weekly and large colored audiences are attracted as big names appear before the cameras as guests.

This free publicity to guest artists has either escaped colored stars on these shows or has escaped the admittedly poor eyes of this corner.

Were a foreign visitor to watch either of these shows, he could rightly speculate that there were no colored artists of merit in the nation.

To appear on these shows boosts the stock of the guest and keeps him in the public memory.

Not being afforded much opportunity for shows of their own (thanks to sponsors fearful of public buying reaction), guest star appearances on TV do much to enhance the careers of colored artists.

But maybe the Sarah Vaughns, Duke Ellingtons, Count Basies and Geoffrey Holders fall short of the standards of these shows.

Perhaps the Ralph Bunches, Ray Robinsons, Nat Coles, Harry Kings are less prominent than guest stars chosen.

Maybe the Katherine Dunhams, Philleria Sebuylers, Marian Andersons, Mahalia Jacksons and Margaret Rutherfords are not fit to appear on these shows.

Or perhaps there just are no prominent colored personalities in America.

Noteworthy

By HERBERT MANGRUM

Should anyone ever tell you they are never bothered about the little things in life, give them a big laugh. It's not true.

While attending a TV preview this week paid close attention to the crowd and discovered that even a cocktail party has its moments of frustration.

Saw 20 or 30 people all trying to master the art of shaking hands with friends while holding a drink in one hand, a cigarette in the other, and a sandwich and napkins on their knees.

Never knew such a small maneuver could bug so many people.

It's little things like that appearently which keep the dry cleaning people in business.

EVER WONDERED why you have never seen a wild animal act in Memorial Stadium?

While knocking that little point around at their meeting Wednesday afternoon, members of the Park Board revealed that they had always worried about the animals getting lonesome.

Now that some of the members have had a look at one of the big shows which still in operation but no longer plays under the big top, they have changed their minds.

By June, you should be able to see the first wild animal act in the history of Memorial Stadium.

ON THE LOCAL scene also plans are being made by one organization to sponsor a "animal" naming contest each spring.

The winner and his or her family will be given a free trip to South Africa.

In the event some folks that I know happen to win, just think of the trouble that organization will have trying to arrange a trip to another country.
