Gadabouting in Baltimore

Alphas danced of course, but did you pipe those parties?

With Lula Jones Garrett

'Tis no great news that the Alpha Phi Alphas had a fine dance Friday night.

The Alcazar with its adequate bar, their feminine following with their adequate evening fillies clothes and Ben Cohen and his Combo with their more than adequate music insured that.

The n'ews is in those pre and post parties that the Brothers plastered around the dance.

Actually the parties reached major proportions, becoming full - scale affairs in themselves.

There were fifty - odd guests at the one jointly hosted by Frank Ellis, chapter president, and Arthur Spencer . . . who not only were fortified for the prom but returned for their morning bacon and eggs.

Incidentally, that eligible can't-be-pinned - down bachelor (Frank) squired Christine Magette, pretty North Carolinian who has joined this town's teaching force.

There were another half-hundred guests at the Frank Veneys for a cocktail party that grew so mellow that someone started to cast a vote to just skip the dance.

The Clark Davises (he was dance chairman) gathered a goodly gang at their domicile; and the Joseph Braceys Longwood Street place was bursting at the seams with guests both before and after the dance.

The Braceys always have such good food that no one, but no one ever skips a party at their place. The interesting note there is that their teenage daughter, Jo-Ann not old enough to be a party - giver on her own, has such a keen interest that she has become an expert hors d'oeuvres maker. She collects and executes party recipes as most teen-agers do rock and roll records.

Margaret Wilson, Rosemary Johnson, Joseph Obey, the Edward Tartera, Clarence Henderson, the Melvin Johnsons and the Henry Neals gathered at the Orborne Dixons for an intimate and gay party.

The James H. Murphys offered Yvette's special brand of entertaining for their guests at a post - dance cocktail.

The Bruce Edemys were joined by Tom Hawkins in their big - scale entertaining ere the affair. The J. Brown Hardys and the Lloyd Davises were also party givers.

And elegant and intimate was the cocktailer given by the Leonard Underwoods prior to the formal. Along with piping hot hors d'oeuvres they served up gay chatter to the Lawrence Lewis, the Babe Burdnells, the Ed Smiths, Elizabeth Kelley and Charles Darnen.

AND IN the same theme 'tis no great news that the Student Hospital Guild tea on Sunday brought out the biggest flock of fetching hats and flossie frocks that have been assembled under one roof in eons.

But did you gander those tables?

Douglass High School cafeteria housed a great fortune in silver, linen and crystal, to say nothing of flowers, for the affair.

But let me get the figures out of the way. When the Guilders had totaled up the proceeds this week their take had passed $2,500. The money, as you probably know, will go towards scholarships (they aid a student nurse through three years of training) and to a selected need of the hospital.

You talk about the usuals. I'd like to talk about the niceties. For instance, the cooperativeness of the project, which makes a delight of the whole. Those lovely red rosebuds that each lady received as she entered were a gift from Allied Florists, who sent way 2,000 roses as an offering. Those dainty napkins were the gift of Gabriel Maddox.

Pauline Brooks and Nell Sheridan provided the delight ful fashion show . . . and Charm Center Valentine's Beautorama, Exotic Beauty Lounge, Mrs. Bertha Harding, Mrs. Pauline Lee and Frances Chamberlain were among those pitching in with gifts for door prizes.

The Continentals, the Chit-Chats and the Josiah' Diggs Memorial Clubs put cash into the project.

And there was music a-plenty, with Miss Ann Gaskins (accompanied by Miss Colleen Gaskins) contributing her beautiful soprano voice as soloist; the Young Adults Choir of Douglas Memorial Church (Mrs. Juanita Davis, directing) the Wayland Baptist Church Choir directed by Mrs. Florence Copeland, and the Henryton Glee Club of Women's Voices, Miss Drusilla Brooddie, director. The Rivers Chambers group provided background music for the tea.

It said the tables were magnificent. Started with that of Mrs. Audrey Johnson (she's the daughter of Mrs. Rosina Cole and the sister of Senator Harry Cole) who had massed her table in garlands of green, had twin candelabra the tops overflowing with flowers, and such an array of foods as you seldom see.

And directly across the room was another arranged by Mrs. Gertrude Douglass, with beautifully carved foot - high four-prong candelabra holding tall yellow tapers, a great mass of yellow and white glads and chrysanthemums in a high silver bowl as centerpiece.

And this could go for the other 22 tables arranged by Mesdames Nettie Mitchell, Catherine Murphy, Ruth B. Murry, Mae Stewart, Virginia Champ, Mary Jackson, Lorraine Seals;

Mesdames Imogene Douglas, Susie Murphy, Gertrude Douglass, Ruth Tibbs, Catherine Torrence, Beulah Ellis, Vernie Downing, Stretson Gorham;

Mesdames Rosa Jackson, Mae Barnes, Elizabeth Bembry, Rosamond Briggs, Audrey Johnson, Delsie Smith, and Sallie Banks.

There were a number of out-of-towners about. Mrs. Esther Arrington came down from New York. Mrs. Charming in blue chiffon over taffeta and a tiny flower toque.

And when I raved over the chic red chiffon draped turban (the top was filled with tiny posies of the same shade) that Vona Lozan of Philadelphia was wearing, she graciously quipped "I'm so glad I wore it then. I had planned to wear a hat that I think is quite pretty, but the rain was pouring." I started to answer that she could just pass that little "trifle" to me.

Two Washingtonians, Miss Gladys Cutady and Mrs. Blondella Hansford, were guests of Mrs. Nimrod Dodson and sister, Miss Johnson, were also about.

And did you see those wide draped hats the Flacks girls wore? Lilyan's was a Bill Howard original of imported straw, the wide brim pinned up and tucked with a huge rose. Helen's was done by Nell Sheridan and was a "Horn of Plenty" dripping fruits.

Also on the committee were top arranger Marion Jones, Mesdames Pauline Lee, Flassie Finney, Marjorie Moore, Rosina Cole.

DELTA ALPHA chapter of Pi Beta Sigma held its third annual "Afternoon with the Arts" at the Madison Avenue Branch YWCA, Sunday, afternoon.

And Joan Stevenson and her committee (Beulah Tolson, Anne Lawe, Mary R. Carter) did a most capable job.

This year's theme, "Today with Tomorrow's Artists" was a reverse of previous years when seasoned adults were presented.

Instead, all around like the fresh scented green grass enhanced with myriads of floral bouquets, were future artists displaying their varied talents.

Indeed, all facets of the arts were well represented. From the first tinkling melody of the clarinet duet by Roswell Conway Jr. and Walter Garrison to the graceful movements of petite Bernadette Daniels and Karen Grimer in vivid costumes of the Orient interpreting rhythms of Japan, art was truly on display.

Odell Battle, accompanying herself on the autoharp, sang in a smooth, sybrant soprano the "Morning Song" Juanita

What To Use For Oily, Shiny Skin

Q—Dear Mabel: My face is troubled all the time because of oiliness, so much that it just ruins good looks. Do you know anything that will help me? . . . Marjorie.

A—As you know there are more than twice as many oil ducts on the face than anywhere else and this often causes trouble like yours. The best cosmetic help I know is the greaseless bleaching cream called NADINOLA Deluxe that creams off the surface oil from your skin, cleans the skin at the same time and makes it clearer and fresher. NADINOLA De Luxe gives you other beauty benefits too in a brighter, smoother looking complexion. It comes in 2 sizes @ 60¢ and $1.25 and is fully guaranteed. You should use NADINOLA De Luxe night and morning like a cleansing cream. Try this. I think you'll be delighted.
