'RIDE WHERE YOU DRIVE' MOVEMENT SET JUNE 15

Long undecided on senate filibuster

"I haven't made up my mind on that question.

"I'm sympathetic to limiting debate (in the U.S. Senate) but I haven't made up my mind on it."

Dr. Clarence D. Long, candidate for the U.S. Senate in the Democratic primary, made those statements Tuesday at the Frontiers weekly luncheon at the Druid Hill YMCA.

DR. LONG also said he approves federal aid to schools in areas which do not accept the U.S. Supreme Court's mandate against segregated public schools.

The Johns Hopkins University economics professor made both statements in answer to questions by club members after delivering a speech to the group.

Explaining why he has not made up his mind on the Senate's controversial filibuster rule which has resulted in Southerners talking to death most of the civil rights legislation presented in recent years, Dr. Long said:

"I think it might change the structure of the senate, the greatest deliberative body in the world.

"I think it (the filibuster rule) protects the minority group, although it sometimes protects the wrong minority."

MEANWHILE, the other three candidates seeking the May 20 Democratic nomination to the Senate were also busy.

Mayor D'Alesandro addressed a group in East Baltimore Tuesday night and devoted his remarks to a recital of civic improvements during his administration.

He told his audience that they could thank former Presidents Roosevelt and Truman and himself for the progress.

His principal opponent, George P. Mahoney, leveled an attack on the Mayor for alleged statements made during a campaign speech.

Mr. Mahoney accused the Mayor of introducing a "note of bullyism and violence" into the campaign.

The other candidate for the Democratic bid, James Bruce, said the mayor's campaign is part of a plot by Fourth District political boss Jack Pollack to take over the control of the city and state.

WATER TROUBLES—Nathaniel Boston, 61, 1002 Crain Highway in Glen Burnie, stands in knee deep water in mother's back yard at 1004. Mr. Boston blames state for their problem, saying water runs off the highway. Fence was put up to stop water but doesn't. Mrs. Mary Carroll, Mr. Boston's mother, keeps a pump going in basement to keep out water.

Court upholds fine for impure food

Benjamin Cohen, 49, 1600 block Madison Ave., lost an appeal in Criminal Court Monday when Judge Reuben Oppenheimer upheld fines levied against him by Housing Court Magistrate Marshall Levin.

Mr. Cohen was fined $100 and costs on each of two charges of having in his possession impure foods at a restaurant he operates at the Madison Ave. address.

In imposing the fines Judge Oppenheimer said he denied a reversal because the defendant had failed to correct a condition after he was warned to do so and that there were two separate charges against him.

JOHN NEUMAN, health inspector, testified that he inspected the establishment on April 3 after receiving a complaint.

Mr. Neuman said he found a pound and a half of "slimy and moldy" hotdogs, and at that time he left a list of 14 health violations to be corrected.

When he returned on April 11, Mr. Neuman continued, he found a pound and a half of meal on a kitchen range and an analysis disclosed the meal contained "one immature roach, one rodent hair and some roach fragments."

Mr. Cohen, who pleaded no contest at the appeals trial, did not testify.

THEIR GOAL is to persuade as many passengers as possible to stop riding in cabs which don't hire colored drivers, he said.

The committee has established headquarters at 1324 Eutaw Pl. Anyone wishing more information or to offer support may call MA. 3-5663.

* * *

SPOKESMEN FOR THE committee said neither Diamond nor Sun cabs, two of the city's largest firms, hire colored drivers.

Mr. Carver said the situation came to a head when some of the vehicles of the recently dissolved Fleetway Cab company went into the Diamond Association, but none of Fleetway's colored drivers could make this change.

Albert Weinstein, president of Diamond, had previously told the AFRO colored drivers would be hired if an association member brought them in.

Now that William Rothman, formerly of Fleetway, has joined Diamond, the colored drivers say they have been turned down still, although they feel Mr. Rothman would hire them.

* * *

THE QUESTION of whether colored drivers would be hired by Diamond was one that commanded major interest in the weeks preceding the dissolution of the Fleetway firm.

Fleetway, along with Yellow, Belle Isle, Gt. City, and Secial had hired colored drivers.

However, the Public Service Commission, which granted permission for Fleetway to go out of business refused to consider the employment question during the hearing.

To protest cab hiring policies

June 15 has been selected as the effective date for the planned boycott of cab companies which refuse to hire colored drivers.

The date was announced this week by Theodore J. Carver, chairman of the recently formed Cab Drivers' Improvement Committee.

Committee members have already contacted a number of organizations, seeking support for the boycott, Mr. Carver said.

Girl, 3, burned from head to toe, on critical list

An East Baltimore mother made an unsuccessful effort to rescue her three-year-old daughter when flames enveloped her body on Tuesday.

The child, Betty Ann Ransome, 1704 Ashland Ave., was burned from her feet to her neck, when flames from a hot water heater ignited her dress.

The mother was quoted by relatives as saying: When I got to her, her clothes were dropping off."

At AFRO presstime, the youngster was still in critical condition at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

The mother, Mrs. Doretha Ransome, told Northeastern District police she was working on the second floor when she heard the child's screams.

Blond held in assault on driver

"He asked me if he had hurt me and said he was sorry but he had to have a woman."

A 42-year - old female Annapolis cab driver looked directly at a short red - headed blond man accused of criminally assulting her as she so testified Thursday morning before Annapolis Trial Magistrate Robert Dammeyer.

At the end of the hour-long preliminary hearing, Magistrate Dammeyer held Joseph Patrick Bettoney, 27, of the 200 block Rosecroft Drive, without bail for action of the Anne Arundel County grand jury.

On advice of his attorney, Richard E. Painter, the unemployed defendant stated: "I want to plead not guilty."

* * *

POLICE SGT. C. R. Moreland testified that Bettoney was arrested about 3:15 a.m. April 30 at an uncle's home.

The arrest came about three hours after the woman cab driver told police she had been beaten and raped by a passenger when the city's Primrose Acres sector.

Sergeant Moreland read a statement given by the matron in which she said the man grabbed her around the neck, beat her and threatened to kill her unless she submitted.

She was examined at Anne Arundel County General Hospital and the report was positive, police said.

The matron was also treated for eight arm and side wounds by her private physician, it was reported.

* * *

SERGEANT MORELAND testified that part of an ice pick blade was found in the cab and the handle part of the ice pick was found near where the vehicle was parked after the woman told them the man threw away the object he had threatened her with.

Under questioning by Captain J. W. Musterman the defendant, according to testimony, gave a statement he refused to sign in which he said the woman made advances to him.

She denied this during cross examination by Mr. Painter.

The defendant did not testify.

Twice during the lengthy questioning by the attorney, when he asked the woman if she had a criminal record and if she lived with her husband, the magistrate advised her not to answer.

* * *

THE DEFENDANT wore a tan raincoat, gray slacks and a small - checked red, white and black sports shirt open at the collar.

Throughout the hearing he stared at the floor and stood with arms folded or his hands clasped together. From time to time he shifted his stance.

Sergeant Moreland said the defendant was now on parole.

Carolyn Ford is city's mayor

Seventeen - year - old Carolyn Ford, 2307 Longwood St., led a Model Youth Council yesterday and today (Thursday and Friday) as mayor of the City of Baltimore.

The Douglass High School senior was elected in February after her modern problems class selected her to represent them at a nominating convention.

Each year the Department of Education selects different schools to participate in the council.

* * *

THE SCHOOLS this year are Douglass, Polytechnic, Eastern, Western, Forest Park and Patterson Park.

In the Model Council the youngsters go through the motions of actually running the city's governing body.

Bills are introduced into the council, referred to committees discussed and then brought back to the council for either passage or defeat.

Friends in car crash separated

Two teenage boys who were injured while riding in the same automobile, went their separate ways Monday when time arrived for them to enter a hospital.

While a municipal ambulance Queen Ann Rd., to Maryland carried blond 13-year-old James Conolly Jr., of the 2500 block General Hospital, a traffic cruiser dropped Melvin L. Vincent, 18, of the 2100 block Mt. Holly Sts. off at Provident Hospital.

Vincent, whom police identified as the driver of a car involved in three accidents within three minutes was treated for hand and leg injuries.

Conolly suffered a head injury in the third accident at Division St. and Sanford Pl.

* * *

PATROLMAN Charles Clark reported that earlier, Vincent had been involved in two accidents at North and Pennsylvania Aves., around 10:40 p.m.

In the first; the youth allegedly damaged a sports car owned by Nathan Molotch, 40, of the 3600 block Forrest Hill Rd., and one minute later smashed into an automobile operated by Mrs. Margaret Purdy, 59, of the 200 block Rogers Forge Rd.

Mr. Molotch complained of a back injury, but refused treatment, police said.

In the third accident, Vincent allegedly ran his car into a building at 501 Sanford Pl.

IN CONNECTION with the accidents, three charges each of reckless driving and operating an automobile without a license were filed against the youth.

In addition, Vincent was charged with failing to stop at the scene of an accident, with failure to stop for a traffic light, and with failing to identify himself.

The car which the youth was driving was owned by Marrion Carter of the 1800 block W. Fayette St., according to police.

According to Police Commissioner James M. Hepburn, there is no policy within the Police Department regarding hospitalization of colored and white accident patients.

The Commissioner pointed out that should a patient ask to be taken to a specific hospital that request is complied with.

Mrs. Genesta Linberry dies; member old Balto. family

"We say our sister is dead, but we are assured that this separation is only a temporary one."

The Rev. Robert T. Newbold was speaking Monday at funeral services for Mrs. Genesta Reed Linberry, 72, longtime member of Grace Presbyterian Church, who died at her home, 3312 Leighton Ave., on Thursday.

Until her retirement ten years ago, Mrs. Linberry was for 42 years a clerk in the sick and claims department of the Mutual Benefit Society.

In his eulogy, the Rev. Mr. Newbold recalled that Mrs. Linberry's sudden death was a shock to friends and relatives and he asked that God grant to them 'her hope, her faith and her courage.'

A quartet of the church choir sang. Mrs. Dotie B. Russell was soloist.

* * *

OVER 50 floral pieces bank ed the casket. Burial was in Mt. Calvary Cemetery.

Mrs. Linberry, a member of an old Baltimore family, was the last of 13 children born to Andrew and Annie Credit Reed.

Her uncle, Daniel Credit was one of the first Baltimore school principals. Her sister, the late Mrs. Eulalia Reed Calloway Fortune, was the mother of Cab Calloway.

Surviving Mrs. Linberry are her husband, James H. Linberry, retired Pullman employee; two daughters, Mrs. Lenora L. Rigby and Mrs. Mildred Wilkens; and a son, William H. Mitchell, all of Baltimore. Also one grandchild, Neva Wilkens.

* * *

PALLBEARERS were Phillip Savage, Louis Cooper, Robert Alston, R. C. Taylor, James Washington and Lawrence Parker.

The Elroy Wilson Funeral Home was in charge. Others who occupied the 21 cars to the cemetery were:

Mrs. Mabel Hawkins, Randolph Rigby, Mrs. Bernice Monroe, Mrs. Anna Fairfax, Clarence Fairfax, Vernon Reid, Mrs. Alice Reed, Chestine Smith, Paul Lomax, Mrs. Mildred Murphy, Frank Robinson, Mrs. Evelyn Harris;

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wilkins Sr., Roland Brooks, Mrs. Ella Brooks, Mrs. Esther Roberts, Mrs. Alfred Allen, Jack Fortune, Mrs. Vivian Dunston, Mrs. Rosa Tabb, Joseph Neal, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dorsey;

Also, Delmar Davis, Mrs. Elizabeth Fairfax, Mrs. Leah Davis, Mrs. Mildred Butts, Mrs. Vestillia Porter, Mrs. Lillian Lee, Mrs. Ellie Henson, Mrs. Clarice Richardson, Mrs. Susie McKall, Mrs. Doris Smith, Allen Rigby;

Noted lawyer urges Dixon bill passage

By STEVE DUNCAN

"We can't legislate against bigotry but we can legislate against the effects of it."

An emminent civil liberties lawyer made this assertion here Tuesday in urging passage of a city ordinance outlawing discrimination because of race or creed in places of public accommodation in Baltimore.

The lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams, was guest speaker at a noon luncheon sponsored by the steering committee for passage of Public Accommodations Ordinance 1653.

THE ANTI - discrimination measure, introduced by City Councilman Walter T. Dixon, is now before the public relations committee of the City Council. A public hearing on the ordinance is scheduled for May, 28 at 1 p.m.

Mr. Williams, a member of the board of directors of the American Civil Liberties Union, told the more than 200 luncheon guests that discrimination was immoral in any area of human activity.

He noted that some good reasons for passage of the anti - discrimination ordinance were sociological, economical and civic, adding:

"The real reason is a moral reason because it is immoral to practice discrimination on the basis of race and birth."

* * *

BALTIMORE, the speaker said, was the only one of ten leading cities without "a striking down racial discrimination in public places.

He said similar measures are working in 25 states and 150 cities.

"I think Baltimore ought to become big league," said Mr. Williams in noting that 75 per cent of the restaurants, 97 per cent of the theatres and almost 100 per cent of the hotels practiced discrimination.

Desegregation through education is not the best approach to the problem, he told the audience. Attacking the theory of gradualism, Mr. Williams declared:

"One hundred and fifty years is just about as gradual as you can get. If we had waited on gradualism through education there would be no Emancipation Proclamation, no 13th, 14th and 15th amendments."

* * *

THE DYNAMIC attorney, a resident of Montgomery county, was also critical of the Jenner Bill which would place restrictions on the Supreme Court.

He termed the proposal, currently in the Senate Judiciary Committee, "the most unbridled attack on a court in this country."

Maintaining that the present Supreme Court is one of the greatest of our generation, Mr. Williams said:

"Beginning in 1954 with the school desegregation case, it has decided almost a dozen cases in the area of minority rights and in each case it has struck a copper blow."

* * *

APPROXIMATELY 20 organizations, including labor, church and civic groups, had representatives on the steering committee sponsoring the luncheon.

Guests at the speaker's table included:

The Rev. Jack Malpas, pastor of St. Bartholomew Episcopal Church; Samuel Daniels, executive secretary of the Governor's Commission on Interracial Problems; Father Flynn, the Rev. Edward Carroll, pastor of Sharp St. Memorial Church; Mr. Dixon.

Also, Herbert Fedder, steering committee chairman; Dr. Bentley Glass, president of the Maryland ACLU; Foreman Templeton, executive secretary of the Baltimore Urban League; and David Glenn, Urban League's community relations secretary.

Ebenezer group finds new locks on doors

A group identified as supporters of the Rev. I. Logan Kearse, ex-pastor of Ebenezer Baptist Church held a meeting in the church yard Monday night in a downpour of rain.

They held umbrellas and used flashlights. It was reported afterwards that the group re-elected the Rev. Mr. Kearse as pastor.

However, Jefferson Johnson, chairman of the deacon board, told the AFRO that other members of the church did not consider the Monday night meeting a legal one.

* * *

MR. JOHNSON said the locks on the church have been changed to prohibit illegal use of the premises.

He also said that a lawyer would be consulted to determine if the meeting in the church yard was in contempt of the agreement, which had been signed with the former minister.

That agreement saw the Rev. Mr. Kearse voluntarily resign as pastor on April 18 with a $5,000 payment.

The agreement also resulted in the church's dropping a court suit instituted in an effort to force the minister to give up the pulpit.

* * *

SINCE THAT time the church had a call meeting. Certain members questioned the authority of the deacons and trustees to make the financial agreement they did with the Rev. Mr. Kearse.

It ended with a vote being taken to oust the officials of the church.

But, as with the Monday night session, some members held it was not a bona fide meeting, explaining that the vote was taken after the regular meeting had been closed out.

In addition to a number of curiosity seekers, police were also in the vicinity on Monday night.

* * *

MEANTIME, Mr. Johnson said that Sunday attendance for services has been "fine."

This Sunday's speaker will be the Rev. W. D. Leighton of the Elizabeth Baptist Church on Mulberry St., Mr. Johnson said.

'Put head in oven, turned on the gas'

"The woman said he put his head in the oven and turned the gas on. He had to be given artificial respiration."

Officer Joseph Palmerino so testified in Northwestern Police Court Wednesday as James A. Rucker, 28-year-old plumber 2306 block Elgin Ave., was tried on a disorderly conduct charge.

He told Magistrate Linwood G. Koger Sr., "I'm having family troubles, your honor."

Magistrate Koger held him for examination by two doctors.

152 voters off the books

A total of 152 voters in Fourth Precinct of the 11th Ward have been stricken from the books by the Board of Election Supervisors.

The voters were all residents in homes that have been torn down to make way for the State office building in the Preston St.-Madison Ave. area.

The action followed the filing of a suit by Hyman Pressman, to win the right to challenge the names of voters before the primary election.

When Mr. Pressman first challenged the names of persons registered from homes that had been demolished, the elections board said that the challenges could not be made prior to a primary.

* * *

THE OFFICIAL view was that the primary itself would be used as a means of finding new addresses of voters in this area.

Faced with this, Mr. Pressman filed his suit and the Court of Appeals ordered the Board of Election Supervisors to hold a meeting on Tuesday to hear the challenges.

Out of this meeting the 152 names were stricken from the rolls.

Mr. Pressman represented Joseph V. Mach, a candidate for the State Senate nomination and Harold M. Weiss, a candidate for the House of Delegates, both from the Second District.

4 arrested in assault case

Four young men were being held at Southern Police station this week in connection with a Cherry Hill altercation which resulted in a former policeman, now a tunnel guard, being hospitalized.

The injured man, Charles W. Bryant, 27, of the 200 block Bridgeview Rd., was treated at South-Baltimore General Hospital for a fractured skull.

Lawyer Saves 'Ed'

SOLE SURVIVOR—Born Tuesday while her mother, Mrs. Sylvia Carroll (inset) was unconscious with two bullets in the head, this six-pound baby girl is reported doing well at St. Joseph's Hospital where doctors reported the successful birth was "rare." Infant's father committed suicide after he shot mother and killed one-year-old daughter. Mother died after infant was born.

Wounded mother dies; baby lives

A healthy, six - pound baby girl, born while her mother was still unconscious with two bullets in the head, is all that remains of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Carroll.

The infant was born at 7:25 p.m. Tuesday at St. Joseph's Hospital under circumstances described as "rare" by the attending physician, Dr. Herbert Fletcher, who surmised it was "the first such case in Maryland."

The wounded mother, Mrs. Sylvia Carroll, 27, died at 9:45 a.m. Wednesday, fourteen hours after the baby was born. She never regained consciousness.

She had been comatose at the hospital since Friday afternoon when her husband shot her, killed their year - old daughter and shot himself to death.

* * *

BECAUSE DOCTORS at St. Joseph's Hospital were making every effort to save the life of the mother as well as the expected baby, Mrs. Carroll was not moved to a delivery room. The baby, arrived in a normal manner, in the hospital ward.

Even as the new baby was born, funeral services were held for the year - old daughter, Charisse, and the father, Willard, 24, a postal clerk residing in the 2300 block Atlantic Ave.

Both Charisse and her father were dead on arrival at the hospital, May 9, after the father went on a rampage with a .32 calibre pistol.

* * *

THE SHOOTING which claimed the lives of the once happy family occurred around 3:45 p.m. in the living room of Mrs. Carroll's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Dockins, 1426 N. Bethel St.

On Thursday Northeastern District marked its records on the triple slaying "closed" "abated by death"

Two of Mrs. Carroll's younger brothers were present in the house at the time of the shooting.

Investigating officers said that of the three lethal bullets fired, two passed through the child's head and struck the mother.

* * *

RELATIVES of Mrs. Carroll said since the court granted her a legal separation a month ago Mr. Carroll had threatened the life of his wife.

They had no explanation, however, for Friday's sudden outburst during what was thought to be an amiable visit.

Police were told the ex-Air Force man, under court order to provide his family $50 every two weeks, came to the house

'Race no longer considered,' says school official

Race is no longer a factor in any school decision, is the word which came on Thursday from Dr. John H. Fischer, superintendent of Baltimore schools, as the fourth anniversary of the Supreme Court's decision on de - segregation, is that none of the current news about school activities is related to questions of race.

"In our schools, children are treated according to sound educational principles, and in terms of their needs as individuals.

"Race is no longer considered a relevant factor in any decision concerning a child."

Tuesday, May 20th, Primary Election.

Polls open 6a.m., close 7 p.m.

And, remember you're the BOSS inside the voting booth.

Candidates set for primary

The city's political stage is being set for Tuesday's primary.

(See stories Pages 6, 7, and 8)

Polls open 6 a.m. and close 7 p.m.

Only those citizens registered as Republicans and Democrats are eligible to vote.

Those registered as independents may not vote until the general election in November.

* * *

GREATEST INTEREST is in the Democratic U.S. Senate race where James Bruce, Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro Jr., George P. Mahoney and Dr. Clarence Long are opposing each other.

On the Republican side, Senator J. Glenn Beall, whose seat is not coming up, is opposed by Henry J. Lange Jr.

The term of John Marshall Butler, Maryland's senior U.S. Senator, does not expire until 1960.

IN THE BID for governor, the Republicans' James P. S. Devereux is unopposed in the primary.

J. Millard Tawes, the Democrats' organization choice for governor, is opposed by Morgan L. Amaimo, Bruce S. Campbell, Joseph A. Phillips and John H. Reed.

Mr. Tawes heads the Democratic "Harmony ticket" of Tawes for governor; D'Alesandro for U.S. Senate; C. Ferdinand Sybert, attorney general, and Louis L. Goldstein, state comptroller.

The Republicans' Robert A. Wallace and John A. Deer are unopposed in the primary for the respective posts of attorney general and state comptroller.

* * *

THERE IS also unusual interest in the Fourth District, where an unprecedented number of colored candidates are running on both tickets for the General Assembly.

The largest number — six Republicans and five Demo-

Congressman speaks in Baltimore on Monday.

Powell due on Monday

Rep. A. Clayton Powell (D-Ill) will speak in Baltimore on Monday, May 19, at 8:30 p.m., at Enon Baptist Church, Edmondson Ave. and Schroeder St.

The occasion will be the preconvention program of the United Baptist Missionary Convention of Maryland and auxiliaries which meets at Perkins Square Church, 2500 Edmondson Ave., May 20 - through May 23.

Because Congressman Powell agreed to address the meeting last February, and because he was indicted this past week on three tax evasion charges by a N.Y. Federal grand jury, there

Confessed killer gets light term

Faced Gas Chamber in waitress' death

Confessed slayer Edgar T. Dorsey (alias 'Ed' Howard) 33, was sentenced to eight years in the Maryland Penitentiary on Thursday.

Actually, Dorsey could have received a much stiffer penalty in connection with the shotgun death of Mrs. Hester B. Moffatt, a Pennsylvania Ave. waitress, last Feb. 12.

However, Dorsey's attorney, State Sen. Harry A. Cole, pleaded his client guilty to a manslaughter charge and thus avoided the possibility of conviction on a first or second degree murder count.

Conviction of first degree murder carries a penalty of life imprisonment or death in the gas chamber.

The maximum for second degree murder is 18 years in prison.

* * *

IN IMPOSING the eight year term Judge Anselm Sodaro gave Dorsey two years more than the maximum sentence allowed on a manslaughter conviction.

The strategy of Senator Cole in pleading his client guilty to the lesser charge was exceptionally successful, courtroom observers said, because police already had a signed confession from the defendant.

Armed with this, the observers reported, the State could have pushed for and probably obtained, at least a second degree conviction and perhaps even a first degree conviction.

However, with Judge Sodaro accepting the manslaughter

Sharp reaction to Ike's 'patience' talk

By JOHN JASPER

Three hundred and sixteen delegates from 28 states gathered here in a two-day Summit Conference of leaders at the Raleigh Hotel.

Keynote speaker, William O. Walker, of Cleveland, Call Post, president of the National Newspaper Publishers Association, which sponsored the conference, set the tone of the two-day meeting.

Experts and leaders in eleven areas of race relations were to study "where we are and what we shall do next."

THE LUNCHEON address of President Eisenhower was expected to be a high point of the conference.

It wasn't.

Applause was polite when the President entered the Presidential Arms dining room, and when he left it.

Mr. Eisenhower made his oft repeated statement that "laws" (meaning the Supreme Court decision on integrated schools) will solve no problems and colored people "must have patience and forbearance" with the South's refusal to integrate the schools or permit them to vote.

The audience was shocked, affronted and grieved, that Mr. Eisenhower had not learned much more about the realities of race relations in the last six years.

LEADERS KNEW the President had made the "be patient" speech in his campaign, news conferences and throughout the South.

It was common golf course gossip that this was the advice dinned into his ears week after week by some rich Southernors, who are his vacation intimates.

The question in some minds was this:

Was the President so poorly informed as to believe that the way to deal with lawless riots like Little Rock, 47 bombings of homes, schools and synagogues in the South and the shocking kidnapping and lynching of Emmett Till, as to admit that the Department of Justice and FBI cannot secure evidence enough to connect one Little Rock rioter or punish

Mrs. Aulton marks her 100th birthday Saturday

"Life is what you make it, and I've been here long enough to know," she confides

By SHEILA SHIELDS

"I'd like to live for 100 more years as long as I feel like this," says the Rev. Mrs. Mary B. Aulton, 2806 W. Mulberry St.

On Saturday, Mrs. Aulton, who is still vivacious, will celebrate her 100th birthday.

Garbed in a flowing, black gown, Mrs. Aulton sat in the living room of her home this week and recalled "Old Baltimore.

"Why I remember when Baltimore was Baltimore," she says.

"I remember when the first trolley was put on Fayette St. They pulled them with horses. You know the laundry on Mosher and Gilmore? — That was the trolley cable house.

"When the car got down to Pine St., they had a hitch on two more horses to pull it up the hill.

"THIS LIFE is nothing — terrible time — crucial age. But people lived in those days."

The centenarian has another pleasant memory of her "good old days":

"I never went to school a day in my life! Picked up my education. I was quick catch-on. Kids nowadays don't pick up nothing," she says with a quiet smile.

The Rev. Mrs. Aulton says she never smoked or drank but doesn't disapprove of others doing it.

"If they want to, let them do anything they are big enough to do.

"If they want to smoke, let them smoke it. If they want to drink, let them drink it—as long as they don't get up and want to fight everybody.

"I never fight against what ever people want to do.

"God put this world here for us and gave us the knowledge to beautify it. Let's enjoy it."

Nabrit new HU law dean

WASHINGTON

Howard University officially Thursday announced the appointment of new academic deans for two of its ten schools and colleges.

They are Dr. James M. Nabrit Jr., who will head the School of Law, and Dr. Daniel G. Hill, who will direct the works of the School of Religion. Both new administrators formerly served in other capacities at the University.

Dr. Nabrit replaces Dr. George M. Johnson, who recently resigned as law school dean to become Chief of the Division of Research and Planning of the newly-created U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, while Dr. Hill replaces former School of Religion dean Frank T. Wilson, who resigned last

The Winner!!

Mrs. Bernice Moore, 2744 Booker! Drive, the petite young mother of two children, won the $500 Norge refrigerator grand prize given last night (Thursday) at the closing session of the 28th Annual AFRO Cooking School and Home Service Show.

Mrs. Moore was standing to the right of the Coliseum stage when her number was called by D. Arnett Murphy, AFRO advertising director.

The lucky number was 4160.

The Cherry Hill mother, who said she was unaware of what this particular prize would be, clasped her hands to her face and said, "I keep pinching myself," when informed she had won the Norge refrigerator.

This was her first time to attend the AFRO Show. She is the wife of Officer Elmer Moore.

An estimated 6,000 persons attended the three sessions of the show. Lucky ticket holders shared over $5,000 in prizes given by the AFRO and the merchants who held booths and participated in the show.

See details of other prize winners on Page 14 in this edition.

"LOVE FROM LITTLE ROCK"—Mrs. Daisy Bates, president, Little Rock (Ark.) NAACP, smiles and gives a double handshake to President Eisenhower as he leaves Summit Meeting at Presidential Arms in Washington Monday. Mrs. Bates told the President "The children of Little Rock send you their love." Mr. Eisenhower thanked her. In center is William O.
