Charlie Burns is State witness in stalled trial

Charles T. Burns, former owner of the 2017 Club night spot, and Henry J. Parks, president of the Parks Sausage Co., were scheduled as State's witnesses in the Forrester - Goldstein subornation of perjury case on Tuesday, but did not get to testify.

The mush heralded case which involved two high-ranking police officers was declared a mistrial shortly before the Tuesday mid - day court recess.

According to Judge Reuben S. Oppenheimer, a "deliberately and criminal attempt" had been made to influence a jury.

The jurist called for State's Attorney J. Harold Grady, to make "a vigorous investigation of this criminal act."

Other state's witnesses listed for testimony along with Mr. Parks and Mr. Burns were Philip Taylor, 2300 block Auchentoroly Ter.; Mrs. Juanita Jones, 2400 block Auchentoroly Ter.; and the Rev. Clifford A. Green, 2200 block Ruskin Ave.

Also, Alfred A. Green, 2200 block N. Fulton Ave.; Miss Barbara Jean Scott, 1000 N. Stricker St.; Luther Johnson, 100 N. Mount St., and Miss Etta Mae Johnson, 1800 Presstman St.

* * *

THE STALLED trial involved Inspector Clarence O. Forrester and Capt. Hyman A. Goldfein of the Police Rackets Division who are charged with inducing two police sergeants under their command to give false testimony in a numbers trial.

Key witnesses are Mr. Taylor and Mr. Burns, who were arrested in the 1957 numbers raid but later released in 1958 during an investigation which amounted to a "police department shake-up."

Although Mr. Grady announced that the investigation of "jury tampering" would begin at once, it is expected that the trial will not be called until fall.

EEOC seeks research aide

Applications for the position of Employment Opportunity Educational and Research Assistant with Baltimore's Equal Employment Opportunity Commission will be accepted at 22 Thomas June St. at the Civil Service Commission, City Hall.

The position carries an annual salary ranging from $5,600 to $6,780.

EEOC officials requested and were granted the staff addition at this new post by the Board of Estimates, in lieu of a former approved post of investigator.

Philip Camponeschi, EEOC executive secretary, has stated that the commission members felt the educational and research assistant post more important at this time than that of an investigator.

A decision of the Board of Estimates that the new position could not be added to the EEOC staff along with that of investigator, unless an emergency existed, prompted the substitution.

Clean-up drive started in Harlem Park area

An intensified clean-up campaign was launched in the Harlem Park Urban Renewal Area Monday by the Baltimore Urban Renewal and Housing Agency, with the cooperation of the Harlem Park Neighborhood Council.

This is a primary step in the agency's renewal plans for the 32 block area, bounded by Lafayette Ave. on the north; Fremont Ave. east; Mulberry St. south; and Monroe St. on the west.

The first sector being tackled in the three square blocks bounded by Harlem Ave.; Gilmor St.; Edmondson Ave., and Monroe St.

This initial selection came through the recommendation of the Harlem Park Neighborhood Council, according to Robert Moyer, director of BURHA's Information Services Division.

* * *

AN INSPECTION group of three men, headed by the brother of William Sallow, chief of the agency's inspection and Code Enforcement Division, are currently canvassing this three-block sector.

The inspectors are concerned with exterior health and sanitation conditions of each property.

They want to see proper garbage containers, rear fences in good repair, yards clean and grass cut, proper storage of outside materials, removal of conditions which would encourage rats, and repairs to dangerous outside building defects.

The inspectors are empowered to enforce their clean-up recommendations, if necessary, by having violators summoned to Housing Court for possible fines.

Following a completion of an exterior inspection of properties in the Harlem Park Urban Renewal Area, plans are to turn attention to the interiors of dwellings and business establishments.

Soldiers' Armory honors Civil War volunteers

Soldiers' Armory, the new military science building at Morgan State College, was formally dedicated Tuesday in a highlight of the college's tenth annual ROTC Day.

In a colorful ceremony held in the W. A. C. Hughes Memorial Stadium, James J. O'Donnell, director of the Department of Public Improvements, presented the key to the building to Josiah F. Henry Jr., chairman of the Building Committee of the Morgan Board of Trustees.

Mr. Henry, presiding at the ceremony which was witnessed by a full-dressed assembly of Morgan's 430-man cadet corps, in turn presented the key to Dr. Bliss Forbush, who accepted the building for the Trustee Board.

The Board, said Dr. Forbush, accepts the building for the practical reasons that the building will help make Morgan men of the ROTC a part of that great deterrent force necessary to prevent future wars and that it will make us better citizens."

* * *

THE BUILDING was dedicated as a "shrine" to the 8,178 men of Afro-American lineage who served as Maryland volunteers with the Union forces in the Civil War in the dedicatory address delivered by Dr. Roland C. McConnell, professor of history.

Speaking on "The Soldiers," for whom the armory has been named, Dr. McConnell said that the men fought for the advancement of freedom and made possible the preservation of the Union and the eradication of slavery.

By such action, he said, the soldiers — to paraphrase Lincoln at Gettysburg — dedicated this building for above our poor power to add or detract."

"If the building is to be a shrine to the Maryland volunteers, it must serve the cause of the advancement of democracy, Dr McConnell said, and he declared:

"This is the larger meaning of this occasion. If we dedicate ourselves . . . to the advancement of the democracy to which these soldiers contributed and helped make possible, they will not have fought and died in vain.

"And this building will become a shrine for the guardianship of democracy — a sign for the ongoing of liberty, freedom, justice and equality, and an inspiration for all who pass through its portals."

HE OUTLINED the heroic exploits of the Maryland soldiers, who fought in six regiments three of which were organized primarily of Baltimoreans.

"Each regiment acquitted itself with honor and credit" and each suffered casualties proportionately," Dr. McConnell said.

He explained that if officers and those who died of service incurred wounds or illness were added to those killed in action, the total would amount to 1,799.

He said that considering the heroic record of the soldiers and the cause for which they fought, he is of the opinion that carrying on their mission requires that first of all "this armory honor all soldiers of all races and creeds who fought for freedom and democracy — especially the Maryland soldiers and Morgan men who fought in the Spanish-American War, World War I, World War II, and the Korean Police Action — and those of you who will fight in wars to come to save our country."

Secondly, he said, carrying on their mission requires that citizens realize the "reciprocal relationships between our culture and the military."

Thirdly, he said, it requires a realization that today's soldier must be well educated and fourthly, it requires realization that the modern soldier must be a citizen-soldier.

* * *

"FINALLY," he said, "I think they would want us to realize that the modern soldier must be an eclectic type, one who combines the best features of all soldiers of the past." And he said:

"He must have the military fitness and flawless bravery of the Spartan but not his worship of the military; the soldier-statesmanship and soldier-administratorship of the imperial soldiers of Caesar and Alexander but not their ambitions for power.

"The chivalry of the Knights of the Middle Ages but not their frivolity; the discipline and precision of the Prussian system but not its intolerance and arrogance.

"The imperishable patriotic loyalty of the Frenchman during the French Revolution but not his excesses; and finally faith in himself and his God and the rightness of his cause as had the soldiers for whom this building was named."

Expressions of appreciations for the building were given by Lt. Col. Edward C. Johnson, PMST of the college; Dean George C. Grant for the faculty; and Cadet Colonel Butler B. Greene for the students.

Col. Edwin M. Van Bibber, Special Assistant to the Chief of Staff, Second U.S. Army, also made remarks.

In briefly describing the building which stands on the south campus adjacent to Hurt Gymnasium, architect Albert I. Cassell described the present structure covering some 200,000 feet as "the first section of a military science development" the college envisions.

The building was used for classes at the opening of the current academic year and houses classes in reading and geography as well as in military science.

Miss Fowlkes crowned as 'Miss Coppin of 1958'

The Activities Banquet, which has become a feature of Coppin's program for the spring semester, was held in the dining hall, last Friday evening with a capacity attendance of students and faculty members.

This year's banquet, sponsored by the Student Senate, had as its theme "The Last Round Up." Betty Showell, of the senior class, was mistress of ceremonies.

Among the features of the program was the announcement of the selection of Lillian Fowlkes, of the senior year, as "Miss Coppin" for 1958, who reigned at the crowning ceremony, held May 9, as part of the Coppin Week program.

A representative for each of the four class organizations and of the various clubs gave a report of the group's activities for the year. Mr. Cyril O. Byron, as basketball coach, presented sweaters and letters to the members of the team.

* * *

AFTER THE BANQUET, a piano duet was presented by Mr. Henry Freeman, of Coppin's music department, and junior year, and the Senior Miss Sarah Williams, of the Class "Preludes", sang "All the Things You Are."

Janette Lake, of the senior class, presented a reading entitled "Orchids and Onions," the "orchids" being for the classes and individuals who had done the right things, and the "onions" for those who hadn't.

A series of large drawings in color, representing the various clubs, was prepared for the occasion by Maureen Johnson and Elinor Bell. The faculty advisors to the banquet committee were Mrs. Louise Perrin, Mrs. Corinda Waters, and Miss V. Mae Gray.

MRS. PHYLLIS McKINNEY, registrar of Coppin, reports that she is glad to be back at her desk after some seven weeks of absence necessitated by illness, including a period of hospitalization.

Coppin faculty members and students welcome her back and congratulate her on her recovery.

Dr. Leenea B. Dudley is highly commended in the Coppin Weekly Bulletin of April 28 for the calibre of service which she rendered to the Tubman High School, when she addressed the students at their Career Day Exercises.

Dr. Dudley's citation includes excerpts from a letter received from the Tubman High School counselor which indicates the school's high estimate of Dr. Dudley's messages.

"As our keynote speaker she awakened our students and faculty, thus creating an atmosphere of responsiveness which was felt throughout the day . . . Our students have attested to the fact that they could never forget her speech and our consultants stated how happy they were to have heard such a remarkable speaker. It was really an inspiration to all who heard her. . . We think the students, faculty and administration of her college should certainly be congratulated in having a lady of her calibre with such high standards and ideals to be a part of their educational program."

Rabbi Leonard Poller of Temple Oheb Shalom, Park Heights Avenue, addressed the Coppin student assembly last Friday on "Jewish Customs and Ceremonies."

Rabbi Poller spoke as a representative of the Jewish Chautauqua Society, an organization sponsored by the National Federation of Temple. . . Brotherhoods, for the dissemination of authentic information about Judaism.

Rabbi Poller had been scheduled to address the Coppin assembly early in the semester, but his talk had to be postponed on account of a heavy snowstorm.

Douglass senior holds reins to the city for two days

By ELIZABETH M. OLIVER

Baltimore had as its mayor for two days last week, 18-year-old Miss Emily Carolyn Ford.

She is a Douglass High School senior, an honor student and studies voice at Peabody Institute of Music on a Deiches Scholarship.

Her Honor Mayor Ford lives at 2307 Longwood St. with her father, George E. Ford, a Walbrook Post Office clerk for 20 years, her mother Mrs. Irene M. Ford, and three sisters, Gloria, 22, Cynthia, 16, and Denise, 3.

Tall, stately and attractive and wearing a pair of violet-rimmed spectacles, Mayor Ford kept the city going "without a hitch" for 11½ hours.

THE OCCASION was the Fifth Annual Legislative Session of the Model Youth City Government sponsored by the city's public schools; Mayor Thomas D'Alexandro Jr., and the City Council.

On Thursday morning at 8:45 Mayor Ford entered City Hall with 60 members of the Model Youth City Council and their school teacher-sponsors.

At 9:45 a.m. she was given the oath of office by Mayor D'Alessandro himself.

The end of the young woman's administration came Friday at 2:30 p.m. with benediction given by the Very Rev. Msgr. Leo J. McCormick, superintendent of the Department of Catholic Education, Archdiocese of Baltimore.

HOWEVER, BEFORE Her Honor stepped down from Baltimore's highest government post, she approved many bills and used her power to veto only one.

Mayor Ford also sat in on the Youth City Council and heard the 60 members from six city high schools argue for and against 45 ordinances and resolutions.

With Miss Nancy Leckie, Eastern High School, as president, the City Council was composed of 10 elected members from Forest Park, Douglass, Eastern, Poly, Western and Patterson Park High Schools.

TRUE TO the mood and fashion of their day and age, Mayor Ford's boy-and-girl legislators took over the city government in an atmosphere of sack dresses, short bobs, crew cut hair, black rimmed glasses, long-toed red shoes and fluffy skirts.

The group did their politicking in the third floor council room of the City Hall, with lunch-time sessions featuring rock-and-roll music from their own portable, pocket-sized radios.

However, when the legislature resumed its session at 1 p.m., each City Council member and each Youth Official came to attention, continued to introduce new bills, debate on earlier bills or bring up deep constitutional points of law.

And according to Senator Joseph A. Bertorelli, (Dem. 1st) who is special assistant to Mayor, D'Alesandro, the youth officials were "okey" by him.

When asked what about this teen-age invasion of the City Hall," he replied:

"It's hot an invasion. It's as much their City Hall as ours.

"It's a wonderful thing that these youngsters have the opportunity to get the real insight into our government.

"They are the future leaders — the leaders of tomorrow."

HER HONOR Mayor Ford celebrated her 18th birthday on Feb. 25 just 11 days after her Feb. 14 election to the office.

The road to becoming Mayor began in her Douglass High model youth class with Mrs. Catherine Mayo as teacher.

Miss Ford was chosen as the candidate to run against a candidate elected from Western High School.

In December, 1957, all candidates gave campaign speeches at the nominating convention.

Mayor Ford spoke on "Qualifications for Mayor" and emphasized her concern for care of the aged and urban renewal.

* * *

ON FEB. 14, in a pre-legislative session, 19 student councilmen from each of the six schools gathered to vote to elect the Youth Mayor of Baltimore.

Miss Ford won with a total of 42 votes out of the 60 votes cast.
