High school grads will find jobs hard to get this year

By MOSES NEWSON

Job - hunting high school graduates of Baltimore are going to have it pretty rough this year.

Of the approximately 3,400 June graduates, an estimated 1,360 about 40 percent, a decidedly conservative number, will want permanent - type work.

About 350 of these will come from Carver Vocational and Douglass and Dunbar High Schools.

These figures do not include students who will be knocking on doors asking for summer work.

The situation is going to be doubly tough because there are now 86,000 Marylanders already unemployed and looking for work.

DR. LORNE H. WOOLLATT, director of the board of education's bureau of research, says that less than 40 percent of the city's high school graduates go on to college.

This is what happened last year: when there were 4,162 graduates, Dr. Woollatt said,

The colleges got 1,320. Another 151 studied full time at specialized institutions; 139 worked and attended school part time.

The armed services are 400. 279 got married or are deceased, and 1,820 went in the job market.

What do they do?

Well, Dr. Woollatt's office took a sample using 930 of those who went to work.

It shows 137 in general clerical field; 38 bookkeepers; 113 bank tellers, 32 junior drafting men, 51 office machine operators, 2 domestic workers, 5 self employed, and 2 stenographic clerks with telephone company; 155 clerk - typists, 4 waitresses, 4 waiters and 1 unpolished porter.

But there were not quite so many unemployed persons last summer and business attitudes were somewhat different.

"Their immediate prospects are not good," said a spokesman for the Department of Employment Security.

"These youngsters will be competing with broadening men who have experience," he explained.

There are some openings and students are going to get some of them, he said, adding that "others are going to have to do a lot of looking and face up to the fact we are in a recession."

Students seeking permanent jobs are lumped right along with others when they apply for work through the employment agency.

HOWEVER, students seeking summer jobs apply through the Summer Placement Unit at 41 Hopkins Pl.

This unit, which placed 1,209 of last year's 5,500 summer job seekers, is already receiving applications at a faster rate than last year, the office reports.

Few graduates of vocational schools such as Carver go on to college.

A Carver counselor, Sinclair Swan, says the recession will certainly affect the placement of students.

If, as he says, graduates have better chances than the others, it will probably be those in secretarial, commercial and vocational schools - students usually have training for specific jobs especially for them, work. The college course is free of certain grades.

But, he added, not such finding a job is going to be a thing there for most of the students.

MRS. Elizabeth Matthews was choreographer; Mrs. Louise Sheppard, dramatic coach, and Mrs. Margaret Bass, flute accompanist. Mrs. Genevieve Wisner, music teacher, was director of the play and also accompanist.

Sixth grade teachers are Mrs. Florence Nutter, Mrs. Elsie Carter, and Glascoe Baker.

Mrs. Viola Jackson is principal of the school and Mrs. Carrie Carter, the vice principal.

President attends local graduation

The free world must work together to prevent its military defense from being outflanked on the economic front, warns Great Britain's Prime Minister Harold McMillan.

An estimated 8,000 persons heard the Prime Minister call for closer relations of the western countries' economic institution's as he delivered the commencement address on Tuesday at Johns Hopkins University.

Mcmillan and President Eisenhower, who accompanied him here from Washington in a helicopter, received honorary doctor of laws degrees.

The degrees were conferred by Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of the university, and brother of President Eisenhower.

AMONG THE guests were Gov. Theodore McKeldin and Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro.

THIRTEEN colored graduates were among the 760 students receiving degrees in the 82nd commencement exercises.

The two - hour exercises unfolded beneath a hazy sky that at times permitted a bright sun to shine through the overcast.

They were held in Wyman Quadrangle facing Shriver Hall on the Homewood Campus.

Music, including "God Save the Queen" and "The Star-Spangled Banner," was provided by the U.S. Army Band of Washington, D.C., Major Hugh Curry, director.

Prime Minister Mcmillan and President Eisenhower interrupted important talks in Washington to participate in the commencement program.

Russia's expanding economic program among under-developed countries and the long-talked Summit meeting are certainly among the agenda items they discussed.

THE DESTINIES of the English - speaking countries are "inextricably intertwined," the Prime Minister told the graduates.

He credited the alliances of the western world as having "preserved peace for 12 years."

These alliances, he said must be maintained as we make progress towards the relaxation to tensions.

Mcmillan said he did not believe five or six men at a four or five - day Summit meeting could at once breach the gap between East and West.

But with favorable conditions, he said, such a meeting might lead to a break in the stalemate and into an era of negotiation.

The economic sphere is Communism's "chosen battle ground" and we cannot win this fight "without tactical mobility" and "sound strategical concepts," he said.

The free world has the challenge of maintaining a rising standard of living while helping the under - developed areas develop their resources, and find a market "with reasonable prices" for their primary products, the Prime Minister said.

The 13 colored graduates were:

Tony Adona of Wellpaint, Md., James Henry Baker III of Baltimore, and Ernest Alphonso Bates of Peekskill, N.Y., bachelor of arts degrees.

Gregory Page Bagley of Baltimore, bachelor of engineering science.

Mesdames Mildred Mae Hall, Elva Mae Minnis Quarles, Jeanne Dale Robinson, Mrs. James M. Fleetwood Steele, of Baltimore, masters of education.

Mesdames Alice Celeste Harris, Edna Alice Payne and Blanche Redmond Powell, all of Baltimore, certificates of advanced study in education.

Michael Phillip Tilford, of McAlester, Okla., master of arts in teaching.

Mrs. Elaine Varsley Davis, of Baltimore, doctor of philosophy.

Annapolis pupils write state poetry

By ELOISE RICHARDSON

ANNAPOLIS — During the study of the geography of Maryland, fifth graders at Stanton Elementary School, in their social studies, under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. Irene Mills, have shown marked progress through various activities.

There have been a number of projects such as letter writing and evaluations, the making of charts, graphs and booklets, in order to give free expression.

The following poems were written by some members of this class:

MARYLAND WEALTH

Maryland has wealth
All of her crops keep, you
in good health.
The Chesapeake Bay is Maryland's greatest delight.
For work opportunities and a beautiful sight.

CAROLYN REYNOLDS

COASTAL PLAIN CROPS

Many crops are grown on the Coastal Plain.
The crops grow well in sun and rain.
Canning these crops gives work to do.
The growing of crops is big business, too.

BRENDA M. GROSS

MARYLAND IS DIVIDED

Maryland is divided by the Chesapeake Bay.
To the west of the Bay the Western Shore Bay.
To the east of the Bay the Eastern Shore is found.
Where there's lots of low and level ground.

GEORGE WENN

APPALACHIAN REGION

On the west of Frederick County
Washington County is found
On the west of Washington County, Allegany and Garrett Counties are found.
In this region there are mountains as far as you can see.
And on the other side what could be but Maryland.
Seen by day or evening light.
These lofty peaks give us delight.
Wildlife and forests so beautiful, people will say,
A region so beautiful you would love to stay.

EDDIE NELSON

HISTORICAL ANNAPOLIS

We live in the city of Annapolis
It has much beautiful scenery
Tall buildings and ancient houses
And flowers of pretty green.
We always have lots of visitors,
To sight see around the town.
And see the ancient houses
Where historical things are found.

VIVIAN CROWNER

SOME WORK IN MARYLAND

We make a living in our home state.
There are farmers working early and late.
Some choose to work on the Chesapeake Bay.
Where men oyster and fish day after day.
Many industries require labor, too.
These give skilled and unskilled helpers work to do.
Minerals in parts of the state are found.
Keeping men busy digging in the ground.
Maryland has other kinds of work to do, too.
These, at another day, will do.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Holland of Oyster Harbor (Mac and Minnie) had as their guests week end guests, Mr. and Mrs. James White (well known caterers) and their grandson Jay Locks and Mrs. Shelena Vonne Howard High school marm, all of Wilmington, Del., and Mr. and Mrs. Melburn Woodland of Baltimore.

Other who showed courtesies to the guests of the Hollands were:

Mr. and Mrs. Astor Colbert, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bader, Jr., and Mrs. Mary Chew, all of Capitol Hill Manor, the Misses (Bill and Eleanor) Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt Bailey, Willie Smith and Charles Gibbs of Annapolis.

The Hollands entertained with movies on their spacious porch and their little son entertained Bruce Colbert and his little Wilmington guest.

WEST RIVER NEWS

Holy Communion was observed at Chews Memorial Church on Sunday by the pastor, the Rev. Charles V. Smith officiating.

On May 18 Neals Day was held for the benefit of a new organization. The program included solos by Herman Neal, and Harrison Gross of Baltimore and the pastor delivered the sermon.

The collection amounted to $175.

The Gospel Choir honored the pastor and his family at a banquet on May 16. At this time an interesting program was held when Mrs. Willie Hall presided.

MEMBERS OF THE Senior Choir of Davidsonville were guests recently of the Gospel Choir Philip Collins, son of the Rev. S. T. Collins, was the instructor.

Student Day was observed on June 8 at which time Philip Collins was the speaker. He used as his subject "Preparing the Youth for This Changing World."

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mandell of Harwood, Md. honored them with a house warming party at their new home recently. A number of useful gifts were received and the bridal bed was a beautiful cake iscribed with "Housewarming Party," presented by Mrs. Emile Bowie, Mrs. Mortha Boston of Washington, D.C.

Other out - of - town guests were:

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Offer and grandson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Offer, their sister, Miss Mary Agers and Mrs. Myrtle Johnson of other friends, all of Baltimore.

Mrs. Matilda Wilson, Mrs. Emma Taylor, Mrs. Annie Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson, Mrs. Genestine Collier and Mrs. Rachel Lacey, all of Washington.

THREE YEARS OLD TODAY

Mack triplets forsake babyhood — join ranks with 'big boys'

THEIR YOUNGER DAYS — This is how the Mack triplets looked three years ago when they were born and caused quite a 'stir' at City Hospital.

Arthur (left) and Alfred are shown above snoozing with mother, Mrs. Alice Mack, while Benjamin, below, was playing 'possom' in an incubator.

At the time, since they too are living in the rock and roll age, they may do a little dancing.

"It's just shaking, but they call it dancing," Mrs. Mack says.

BUT, WHEN it comes down to brass tacks, the triplets are just part of the family. Home in addition to Nathaniel are Carolyn, 6; Betty, 5; Diane, 2, and Sylvia 10 months. Both Nathaniel and Carolyn are students at Elementary School No. 12.

With vacation time approaching, they will soon join the triplets and the younger children at home for Summer fun.

"I can tell you just how it will be," Mrs. Mack says displaying a mother's ability to foretell the future.

"They'll get up early — too early — about 5 or 6 o'clock in the morning. They'll begin by looking out the window. They'll play all day — no naps. And when bedtime comes, they'll protest. They don't like to give up. They never like to go to bed."

Although the lively trio may be a bit young to know anything about 'luck' be it favorable or unfavorable, one thing is certain.

This third birthday marks a turning point in their young lives.

As they say good bye to babyhood and all things infantile, Alfred, Arthur and Benjamin are today officially 'regular' boys.

In fact, according to their mother, they have been showing signs for the past few months of getting rougher by the minute.

THEIR BIRTHDAY will celebrated in a manner befitting boys who have been doing all weekend long, romping, stomping and playing the Indian away as all boys do.

AS DIFFERENT as chalk and cheese Alfred, Arthur and Benjamin are possibly not aware they are 'triplets' and that their birth at City Hospital three years ago caused quite a stir.

Alfred, the eldest, was born first. He is also the larger of the three boys. Benjamin, who spent his first few days in an incubator, is the youngest and the less hearty.

Now, according to their mother who has four boys and four girls in her brood, the triplets have different habits, attitudes and moods.

About the only thing they definitely agree upon is the fact that the best time for a good time is when they're asleep.

Said Mrs. Mack two days before their birthday:

"One of them will say 'Come get into it.' And, wouldn't you know it, they enjoy it.

"But that's boys for you," she adds.

Eating everything and anything is an hourly pastime although it doesn't always mean "death on hot dogs."

"He would eat hot dogs, every meal," his mother exclaims.

NOW YET school age and with plenty time on their hands Alfred, Arthur and Benjamin will play inside on rainy days and out of doors when weather permits.

They especially like it when their big brother, Nathaniel, age 8, can join them.

Arthur was a recent victim of a climbing episode while the four were scaling Pikes Peak located at that time among the living room chairs.

He's now minus a few front teeth.

More quiet moments bring a special expression of 'praise the Lord' from mother and witness the triplets listening to the radio.

Booker T. pupils at city games

By SALLY SIMS

Pupils from Booker T. Washington Junior High School, No. 136, participated in the municipal games at Clifton Park Saturday.

Quizmasters were teachers William Tapscott, and Mesdames Maxwell and Joyner.

Mrs. Blount, head of the social studies department, presented the awards.

ANNAPOLIS WEDDINGS

By ELOISE RICHARDSON

A wedding of much interest to this community and Havre De Grace was that of Miss Delores Blackstone and Isaac William Cole on Saturday at Asbury Methodist Church, where the pastor, the Rev. Isaac R. Berry performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride, the daughter of the late Lawrence Blackstone and Mrs. Lovie Blackstone, was given away by her brother, Edward Blackstone.

Pre - nuptial music was offered by Mrs. Catherine Stansbury of Gaithersburg, Md., who sang "Ava Maria" and "Through the Years."

"The Lord's Prayer" was sung after the ceremony by the bride's sister, Mrs. James C. Calvin (Teresa) of Shreveport, La. Both soloists were accompanied by Miss Gloria Ford of Baltimore, who also played Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

The bride was very lovely in a white long - pointed-sleeved gown of white silk organza fashioned to resemble gowns of the Elizabethan era in style.

Appliqued leaves reached from the yoke line, through the midriff and down through the hemline, and the back of her neckline was decolletege.

Her short, tulle veil was caught by silk leaves and Mother-of-Pearl. Her only jewelry was a single strand of natural pearls and she carried a nosegay of white orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. Harvey Ennis (Jalene) was the matron of honor. Other attendants were Mrs. Carmela Blackstone (her sister-in-law), Miss Cynthia Holmes (a neice), Mrs. Jacqueline Hull and Misses Barbara White and Sarah Gaines of Philadelphia, and Miss Ella Johnson of Rockville, Md.

THE ENTIRE group was most charming in gowns of white embroidered organdy, fashioned along bouffant lines with jewelry length sleeves.

Colored flowers were embroidered around the skirt, which was scalloped above the extremely wide colored hemline.

The neckline was round and plain and each dress had a wide taffeta colored sash. Three of the gowns were trimmed in yellow while three more were in blue.

The one worn by the matron of honor was enhanced by pink. Their head coverings were semi - halos of silk leaves and Mother-of - Pearl trim with, rose veils.

All the attendants carried wire fans covered in wide satin ribbon matching the color of their dress trim to which was attended narrow strips of ribbon carrying white stephanotis.

The little flower girls, who wore matching dresses of pink organdy, were Lynese Holmes and James Etta and Ann Calvin, neices of the bride, and Tiny Johnson, neice of the bridegroom. Little Gregory Blackstone, a nephew of the bride, was the ring bearer.

THE BRIDEGROOM, who is the son of Mrs. Ella Cole of Havre De Grace, had as his best man, Clayton Stansbury, a cousin of Havre de Grace.

Ushers were Messrs. Alfred Blackstone, brother of the bride, Howard Little, John Covart and Stewart Brown of Havre De Grace.

The reception immediately followed the wedding at the Blackstone residence in Admiral Drive.

Those who stood in the receiving line with the bride and bridegroom were the attendants and the mothers of the couple. Mrs. Blackstone and Mrs. Cole were attractive in blue lace and wore orchid corsages.

Hostesses were Mesdames Flora Andrews sister of the bride, Edward Williams, Joseph Williams of Baltimore and John Covert.

The bride's book was kept by Misses Rhesia Brooks and Ann Hudson, while Mrs. Lovie Jacobs and Mrs. Lillian Hawkins were in charge of the gifts.

The bride, who comes from one of the first families in Annapolis, has a B.S. degree from Morgan College and is acting librarian of the Wiley H. Bates High School.

The bridegroom, also a graduate of Morgan, is on the staff of the Mathematical Research Laboratory in New York State.

AMONG OUT-OF - TOWN guests were:

Messrs. and Mesdames Arthur L. Anthony, Washington; Edward Black, Washington; Merlin Banks, Baltimore; James Binns, Lothian, Md., John Bryce, Washington; Elmer Bullock, Havre De Grace; William R. Brown, Aberdeen; Charles Bagley, Baltimore, Edwin Cole, Syracuse, N.Y.

Messrs. and Mesdames Isaac Cole II, Havre de Grace, Horace E. Cromwell, Havre De Grace; John Carroll, Mt. Amithville, Long Island, N.Y.; Joe Carroll, Cromwville, Md.; Joseph Carter, Egg Harbor City, N.J.; Jack Dennis, Baltimore; Ralph Davis, Havre De Grace; Abe Davis, Havre De Grace.

Messrs. and Mesdames Howard Dorsey, Baltimore; George Ford, Baltimore; Herbert Graham, Washington; Charles Gibbs, Douglas S. King and Cecil Burton, Arundel - on-the-Bay, James Goodman, Glen Burnie, Md.; Samuel Green, Harwood; Martin Giles, Baltimore; Lawrence Griffin, Arnold.

Messrs. and Mesdames Marvin Holland, Havre De Grace; Henry Hodgins, Havre De Grace; Richard Harris, Washington; Jeremiah Hawkins, Fort Benning, Ga.; Henry Johnson, Baltimore; J. Leo Jones, Havre De Grace; William Jenkins, Havre De Grace; Burton Lisby, Baltimore; Charles LeGarr, Philadelphia.

ATTENDED commencement exercises at the University of Maryland on Saturday in company with Mesdames Joseph Hardesty (Lulu) and Matilda Harrison and Miss Mary V. Wiseman.

It was at this time that Lulu received her Master's degree in education. It was inspiring to see Lulu march for it. We know you know she had realized one of her life's ambitions.

There were others too we recognized in the march. Ivy Nelson, a nurse at Crownsville, received her B.S. in Education. Also Edith Cornelia Wade, a nurse at Provident Hospital in Baltimore. Both majored in teacher training for their profession.

Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University was the speaker and had bestowed upon him the honorary degree, Doctor of Laws.

Quite a nice free lunch was served to guests of all the graduates in the university dining room.

MADELEINE GRATTAN, French writer and author of children's books, was guest of students of the Wiley H. Bates Junior High School when they held their final assembly for the year.

Mrs. Grattan, a native of Bordeaux, France, is a graduate of the University of Bordeaux and attended Sorbonne in Paris and University College in England. She also taught in this country at Wells College in Aurora, N.Y.

Mrs. Grattan talked to the group about the setting of her book, "Jasmin Island," and the background of the story.

"Jasmin Island" was reviewed by Raymond Herbert, who proved he could develop into a professional story teller. He was introduced by Lorenzo Trotter.

Mrs. Eloise Richardson, children's librarian of the Annapolis and Anne Arundel County Public Library, introduced the speaker. She was presented by Ada Spencer.

A feature of the program was the presenting of DAR Awards to Raymond Herbert and Barbara Thompson for their strides in "good character, leadership ability, and general attitude."

The awards were made by Miss Esther Hamilton, guidance teacher. Barbara presided over the program.

Other numbers on the program included music, two songs, "Chiapanecas," a Mexican folk song, and "Rosalinda" Hildegarde Gaither read the "Gettysburg Address." Remarks were made by the principal, Herbert S. Hillard.

PAUL D. HAUGHTON, director of the Northwest St. YMCA, will be the speaker at closing exercises for the sixth grade of Stanton Elementary School on Monday, June 16.

At the exercises, which will be held at First Baptist Church at 2 p.m., the school principal, Frances L. Noel, will present awards to members of the class and will introduce other guests.

Miss Sarah V. Jones, supervisor of the elementary schools in Anne Arundel County, will present certificates to the graduates.

Pupils in the class are:
