OUR UNCLE SAM.

His Nickname, It Is Claimed, Originated in Troy, N. Y.

Troy, N. Y., is said to be the place where the name "Uncle Sam" originated, says the New York Sun. After the last declaration of war with England by the colonies a New York contractor, Elbert Anderson, visited Troy and made it his headquarters for the purchase of provisions for the Continental army. The supplies were duly inspected before shipment. One of the inspectors was Samuel Wilson, brother of Ebenezer, also an inspector and known as Uncle Sam to the workmen whom he superintended.

The casks in which the beef and pork were packed were marked with the initials of Elbert Anderson, the contractor, and the United States, thus: "E. A.—U. S." The first pair of initials were of course familiar to the men, but the "U. S." stumped them. The fact was that the name United States was then so new to these countrymen that its initials were a complete puzzle. They turned to the nearest explanation, a humorous one and intended as a joke on their boss. If "E. A." stood for Elbert Anderson, then, they opined, "U. S." must stand for "Uncle Sam" Wilson. The joke spread to the continental army, which carried it to every part of the country.

FLAX WEAVING IS ANCIENT.

And the Process Has Improved but Little in Forty Centuries.

Flax weaving, according to a recent authority, is 4,000 years old as an industry. Egypt was the first country to raise flax. All fine table linen is made from water spun flax, as water is essential to its manufacture. Vapor has been tried, but unsuccessfully. The process of manufacture has improved but little in 4,000 years, the linen made by the Egyptians being often found in an excellent state of preservation, wrapped about the bodies of mummies.

There is no grass bleached linen today, as grass bleaching is too slow a process. Chemicals are used to shorten the work.

Very little flax is raised in the United States because the air contains too little moisture. The finest lawns and handkerchiefs are made in Ireland, and the Scotch linens wear perhaps better than any. Straight line patterns do not wear as well as figures with rounded edges.

In single thread damask the same number of threads run each way. In double thread damask there is double the number of threads in the weft, which doubles the wear.—New York Post.

The Wedding Cake.

The custom of having a special cake at weddings was introduced into England by the Romans. This cake, or, rather, biscuit, signified fruitfulness, hospitality and prosperity. The rice that was showered upon a bride had a similar meaning. For many centuries after the Romans left the custom was to break the biscuit over the bride's head, and then the fragments were picked up and piled before her for distribution to her friends. At the restoration Charles II. returned with a small army of French cooks, who speedily converted the ancient biscuit into a delicious piece of confectionery, iced it with sugar and gradually adorned it with emblematical devices till it towered into the amazing structure which the luxury of later times has developed.—London Chronicle.

Apes and Beards.

Almost all apes have beards. Darwin says that gorillas, chimpanzees and orang outangs have also stiff and bristly hairs upon their upper lips, resembling cats' whiskers. The beards of apes possess a remarkable resemblance to those of men in being almost invariably lighter in color than the hair of the head. In apes the chin growth is most frequently yellow or red, becoming white in age. It is common to both sexes, although more strongly developed in the male. Apes and monkeys also have eyebrows as well, which do not grow thickly together as in human beings, but are scattered through the hair, covering the part of the face which would be called the forehead in man.

Cutting a Hailstorm.

During a severe hailstorm in the Himalayas our native gardener brought out a hatchet and placed it edge upward in the garden to "cut the storm," as he said. Catlin in his "North American Indians" describes a ceremony of the Mandan Indians in which hatchets and edged tools are sacrificed to the "spirits of the waters" to avert a recurrence of the great deluge, of which the tribe has the tradition.—London Notes and Queries.

A Partnership.

"My father and I know everything in the world," said a small boy to his companion.

"All right," said the latter. "Where's Asia?"

It was a stiff question, but the little fellow answered coolly, "That is one of the questions my father knows."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Converted Uses.

Assistant—As we've given up our music department, I may as well throw away this sign reading, "Take This Home and Try It on Your Piano." Manager—Throw it away? Certainly not! Stick it up on the furniture polish counter.—Boston Transcript.

How She Knew.

Mrs. Commuter—But how do you know what kind of people the Brownsare if you have never met them? Mrs. Mutler—I have heard their phonograph selections.—Puck.

Quite Settled.

"Have they been married very long?"

"I guess so. He never talks back to her, and she appears to be satisfied if he gets home after midnight."—Detroit Free Press.

Ask only the well about their health.—Bacon.

JUDGES CONDEMN JUDGE.

Action Against Editor Nelson in Kansas City Called Mistake.

CEASED TO BE JUDGE—ELLIOTT

Courts Should be Subject for Fair Criticism, Says Judge Gorter—Harsh, Says Judge Duncan.

Criticism of the action of Judge J. A. Guthrie, of the circuit court of Kansas City, in sentencing Saturday to a day in jail W. R. Nelson, owner and editor of the Kansas City Star, in a contempt proceeding, was made this week by Judges Elliott and Gorter, of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore, and by Judge Duncan, of the circuit court of Baltimore county.

According to a dispatch from Kansas City to the Sun, the venerable editor of the Star had been sentenced for the publication last Sunday in the Star of the account of a divorce case before Judge Guthrie. The woman who asked for the divorce, said the dispatch, had become reconciled to her husband and asked that the suit be dismissed. On appeal of he lawyers, said the dispatch, the Judge refused to dismiss the case until the counsel fees were paid. These facts were published as a news item in the Star without comment, but a similiar case was cited which had occurred in another court, the account of which Judge Guthrie had considered ambiguous. In rendering his decision against Mr. Nelson Judge Guthrie admitted that he had prepared it before the trial.

CEASED TO BE A JUDGE.

"The only conclusion I could reach after reading the account of the case," said Judge Elliott, "was that this man had become so angry that he had really ceased to be judge. He must have lost, for the time being, his reasoning power. He had meant to 'get' this editor, and anybody who has a sense of fair play can see that he made a big mistake in his procedure.

"In the first place, the judge attributed to the editor something not necessarily implied; he was going back of the publication of the item about the divorce case. An evidence of this was the fact that he had written his decision before the trial, instead of waiting and basing his verdict upon the facts of the case as they developed. This showed an utter lack of that judicial state of mind without which he should not have given a decision.

"The pity of such a case is that it caters to the sentiment of the classes of people who are antagonistic to the courts by giving them grounds for complaints. They take such instances as these to argue the folly of permitting judges the right to punish for contempt.

SHOULD BE FAIR CRITICISM.

"I am in sympathy with the public and the press," said Judge Gorter, "in the effort to remedy any abuse of or to correct any injustice in the administration of the law. The law should be so adjusted and applied as to do justice. Whenever there is a failure to do this, whether from a defect in the law itself or in the way it is applied, the matter is not only a fair subject of criticism but it becomes the duty of the press to call it to the attention of the public.

"Judges are very much more apt to fall into disfavor and to lose the confidence of the people by doing injustice than they are being criticised."

Endorsed at Home.

Such Proof as This Should Convince Any Chestertown Citizen.

The public endorsement of a local citizen is the best proof that can be produced. None better, none stronger can be had. When a man comes forward and testifies to his fellow-citizens, addresses his friends and neighbors, you may be sure he is thoroughly convinced or he would not do so. Telling one's experience when it is for the public good is an act of kindness that should be appreciated. The following statement given by a resident of Chestertown adds one more to the many cases of home endorsement which are being published about Doan's Kidney Pills. Read it.

Harry Hodgkin, merchant, Mill St., Chestertown, Md., says: "I had various symptoms of kidney trouble. There were pains through my loins and the kidney secretions were irregular in passage. My supply of Doan's Kidney Pills was obtained at Toulson's Drug Store and this remedy made me feel better in every way."
