little quiet, but that probably stems from the fact that this is her first time away from home.."

HERE ARE some highlights from Betty's letters to the AFRO:

"I arrived safely at Penn State at 4:45. Mr. Vairo was waiting for me. He took me to his home for dinner with his lovely wife and three fine children.

"After dinner, Mr. Vairo and his family took me on a personally guided tour of the college. . . the campus is aready pretty large, but they are expanding it even more.

"Penn State has homes in which the home economics girls live and take care of a real baby. . . .

"Most of the houses here are made in factories and then shipped here and put together. There are lots of tennis courts and golf greens. There is a new game the kids on the campus are playing. It is called 'Frisby.'

"Our first assembly on Sunday had Mr. Eugene Goodwin, director of journalism, who welcomed us. Mr. James Markin, research; Mr. Wisbero, photography; and Mr. Davis, advertising, also spoke.

"THEN WE went to Hamilton Hall where we had a mixer. We had slips and were told to get as many autographs as we could. Because I was the only one there from out of Penn sylvania, everybody wanted my autograph. . .

"I am the only one too of my race but I don't let that bother me because the kids are very nice and I have made lots of friends."

In another letter, Betty says: "We had our first class after breakfast at 8:30. It was advertising.

"The instructor was Mr. Donald W. Davis. We learned the purpose of advertising in school newspapers. . . how to lay out ads and what the high school market is. . .

"AT THE 11 a.m. assembly, we heard a talk by Bart Richards, editor of the New Castle News. . . Mr. Richards calls a newspaper man a CEDIA because each of the letters in this word has a special meaning:—

C for curiosity; E for enthusiasm; D for dedication; I for integrity and A for ability. He said that the proper training for newspaper work is in a good journalism school. . ."

On Tuesday, Betty tells of learning the following: 'Today we went to production. My instructor was Mr. Markham. In this class, we learned mainly about editing of papers and copyreading.

"Mr. Markham told us all the steps that are taken in the production of a newspaper. Just about everything he told us I remember seeing when you carried me on a tour of the AFRO plant. . .

"WE ALSO learned how to make effective headlines for our school paper and the different kinds of type. . .

"In the assembly, the speaker was Mr. J. A. Dame, sales manager for Station WMAJ, who told of job opportunities available for boys and girls today.

"He emphasized that college training is needed and told of scholarships which are available.

"After this we went back to production workshop where we completed our assignments on page layouts.

"Then we had a two-hour demonstration on machines used to print school newspapers.

"After that we had a recreation period. . ."

Crawford, said the Poet coach blacked out, apparently from internal bleeding, and had to be carried to the hospital in a taxicab.

Mrs. Minnie Cain, Cain's mother, told the AFRO Thursday that he is "progressing nicely" but that the operation which had been scheduled for later in the day had been postponed by Johns Hopkins surgeons. She said they did not give any reason for the postponement, but assured her that the operation still would be performed.

CAIN IS well known in Eastern sports circles. In addition to coaching football, basketball and baseball at the local high school, Sugar was a former professional basketball player in both Washington and Baltimore.

He starred at Armstrong High School, Washington, before becoming an all-CIAA standard in football and basketball at Morgan State College.

Cain's Dunbar quint captured the 1957 Maryland Scholastic Association cage title with an unbeaten record.

State's witnesses to get better handling

By STEVE W. DUNCAN

An important adjunct to the successful apprehension and conviction of criminals is the cooperation private citizens give to authorities.

Many persons who witness crimes or have important information on them — both major and minor offenses — are reluctant to come forth with this knowledge for one reason or another.

Because of this reluctance to cooperate with police and other authorities, a large number of criminals go unpunished.

LIKE VOTERS, witnesses for the prosecution are performing a necessary duty to the betterment of the community.

And, because of their value to the cause of justice, no State's witness should be accorded the kind of treatment given Willie Robert Suber.

Mr. Suber, 38, of 609 Pierce St., last April voluntarily called police to the scene of an altercation which later developed into a homicide case.

The next day — on April 27— Mr. Suber was ordered held as a State's witness and remanded to jail when he was unable to post bail.

There he languished nearly eight weeks until his plight came to public attention at a homicide hearing at Central Police Court last Fridays.

THE SUBER case has focused attention on this blind spot in the judicial process.

1. Police Commissioner James M. Hepbron and State's Attorney J. Harold Grady met early this week to map out means which would keep State's witnesses from getting lost in jail while waiting to testify in pending cases.

Later, Commissioner Hepbron issued a 3-point order to members of his department calling for:

1. Officers to get approval of their commanding officers before requesting a police magistrate to have a State's witness post bail or be committed to jail in lieu of bail;

2. The commanding officer to submit copies of reports to proper authorities on all persons held as State's witnesses;

3. The chief inspector to submit an additional copy of the report to the State's Attorney's office.

MR. SUBER told the AFRO after his release on $500 bail: "They just put me there and I never heard anymore. . ."

If the double - check worked out by the police commissioner and the state's attorney is properly enforced, other state's witnesses will not live to suffer the fate of Mr. Suber.

when I got to Norfolk.

"He had $8 and some change on him at the time. He had stayed out he would have spent more than 52 cents.

"If I had only known God knows I wouldn't have left him. Why anyone would want to do anything to him I don't know." Mrs. Cobb cried.

WHEN ASKED IF Mr. Cobb could have gone for a swim, the distraught woman replied:

"No. He didn't like water at all. He cried so when he had to go overseas."

She explained that Mr. Cobb served 30 months in the Army and spent part of that time in the Pacific.

"I'll always believe someone did something to him. The undertaker has just told me they won't be able to open the casket for me to see him" she said.

Services for Mr. Cobb were held today (Friday) at an Orleans St., funeral home.

Survivors include a brother, Horace Cobb and two sisters, Mrs. Hattie Hall and Mrs. Olivia Banks, both of Hoskins, N.C.

WOMEN IN MD. LEGISLATURE?

Senator Cole needs 14,863 votes

By JOHN JASPER
BALTIMORE

How many votes will Harry Cole need to win reelection as state senator from the Fourth Maryland District?

The AFRO's political reporter said he could guess. He came up with a figure of 14,863.

Here's how he worked it out:

In 1954 registration in the Fourth District was 46,346 voters and 31,127 (67 percent) of them actually voted in the election.

Eighty-seven percent of those who voted in the election voted for state senatorial candidates. That figure was 27,070.

Registration in the Fourth District today is 49,061. It will be still more when registration books are closed on Sept. 22.

SO THE AFRO's political reporter used the figure 50,000.

Assuming that 67 percent of them will actually vote as in 1954, the number of votes cast this November, 1958, will be 33,500.

And if 87 percent of them vote as they did four years ago for the candidates for Fourth District state senators, the figure will be 29,145.

This 29,145 will be divided between Harry Cole and Alvin Jones.

Assuming the winner gets 51 percent of the votes cast, you come up with 14,863 votes, and there you are.

These figures look reasonable, too. McKeldin carried the Fourth District in his race for the governorship. He polled 14,083 votes in 1954.

Walter Dixon led the Fourth District councilmanic race in 1955 polling 13,766 votes.

THERE IS tremendous interest in this year's election and the Fourth District registration figures of 26,000 colored registrants prove it.

Registration is one half the picture. The other half is actual voting.

Candidates and issues are expected to make this November's election one of the most exciting political campaigns in years.

In 1951, Cole ran for City Council in the Fourth District, polled 10,623 votes and lost by 437 votes. Top man on the council ticket got 11,943 votes.

Cole's 1954 race for state senator was featured by the near scandal in which he was counted out because registrars overlooked 100 Cole ballots in one precinct.

After a week of suspense, the missing ballots were found and Cole was in for his first term as senator.

ASIDE FROM the interest in Harry Cole's reelection and the expectations of more shananigans, the Fourth District has three women candidates for the state legislature.

The Fourth District has never elected a woman candidate, although women voters exceed the men in the district.

It could be a real surprise if timid, modest women asserted themselves in the district and elected a delegation of three women and three men to the next legislature.

All three women are widely known. Mrs. Bertha Winston, a widow of a Baptist clergyman, is a veteran.

She polled 10,195 votes in her race for the legislature four years ago and lost by only 437 votes. She is in the race again and should run extremely well.

Mrs. Verda Welcome, widely known as a civic worker, is a tremendous campaigner and won her primary as an independent.

Mrs. Irma Dixon is a successful businesswoman and a regular organization candidate.

Should strong support materialize among civic organizations interested in the long neglected need of women in the Assembly, all three may be elected.

3. Either extend the present term of the court or order a special term to be convened to hear arguments and dispose of the case.

JUDGE LEMLEY issued his ruling on June 20, NAACP attorneys three days later appeared to the Court of Appeals.

The NAACP is seeking a review by the Supreme Court under the rule which provides that a writ to review a case pending in the Court of Appeals be granted upon a showing that the case is of such imperative importance as to require immediate settlement in the Supreme Court.

The court is urged to grant a review because the Lemley decision is in direct conflict with the decisions of the court outlawing racial segregation in public schools.

IN THE Little Rock case, the school board sought and the court granted an order suspending a previous order approving the plan of desegregation of Little Rock public schools.

The solo purpose of the suspension was to obtain a "cooling off" period for segregation.

While purporting to follow the decision of the Supreme Court, the NAACP asserts, Judge Lemley ruled that the school segregation cases did not cover opposition after a desegregation plan had been approved and was in operation.

LEMLEY'S DECISION can be interpreted only as a concession that while threats of violence are not grounds for denying constitutional rights, the NAACP says, actual violence and its consequences are grounds for denying basic freedoms.

"Such a position is but an invitation to violence and to substitute a government of mob for one of laws," the NAACP's brief states.

Another ground for granting a review advanced by the NAACP is that the Little Rock case is of such imperative public importance as to justify deviation from normal Appellate procedures and to require immediate decision by the Supreme Court.

The brief states that the public interest in this case transcends the interest of any of the parties to this litigation.

THE ORDER which is sought to be reviewed, the brief points out, provides for the suspension of a school desegregation plan in effect for an entire school year after it had been approved by the Court of Appeals.

Desegregation is now in effect in 764 out of 2,889 school districts in the 17 southern states and the District of Columbia. There have been some 150 court cases with desegregation questions since the decision of May 17, 1954. Many are still pending.

The Lemley order, says the NAACP, will certainly create instability with or without a court case.

To follow the usual procedure, the brief states, will mean that the case cannot be decided by the Supreme Court prior to the next school term.

The brief is signed by Thurgood Marshall of New York and Wiley A. Branton of Pine Bluff, Ark. Also on the brief are Constance Baker Motley, Jack Greenberg and Irvin Robbins Fisher.

his freedom proved a lonesome experience.

"You get to laying up in a place like that and it's mighty lonesome," he said. "Some time you could have a little fun but it wouldn't last long."

MR. SUBER'S long stay in jail has been deplored by top officials.

These include Alvin J. T. Zumbrun, managing director of the Criminal Justice Commission; Police Commissioner James Hepbron and State's Attorney J. Harold Grady.

A conference was immediately called to tighten the rules set up to prevent such a thing happening.

Rules set up in 1956 after a similar case did not prevent the Suber case.

Mr. Suber's plight came to light last week when he came before Magistrate Milton Talkin in Homicide Court.

Magistrate Talkin heard that the man had been held in $1,000 bail since April 26. One reason was that he was not a resident but Mr. Suber has lived here more than 20 years.

Magistrate Talkin cut the bail to $500 and after Mr. Zumbrun interceded, the bail was posted by a professional bondsman.

ny passports to citizens because of their beliefs and associations, laid the groundwork for the famed baritone to regain his travel rights.

The Court ruled five to four in favor of Rockwell Kent, artist; Dr. Walter Briehl, psychiatrist, and Weldon Dayton, physicist, that:

"We must remember that we are dealing with citizens who have neither been accused of crimes or found guilty.

"THEY ARE BEING denied solely because of their refusal to be subjected to inquiry into their beliefs and associations.

"They do not seek to escape the law or to violate it."

Mr. Robeson's attorney immediately re-applied to the State Department on the basis of this ruling.

A re - application was also made last week on behalf of William Worthy, AFRO-AMERICAN correspondent. Mr. Worthy's passport was revoked following his defiance of a state department ban on travel to Red China.

MR. ROBESON has had no passport since Aug. 1, 1950 when then Secretary of State Dean Acheson revoked the one he had.

He has fought to get it back since Jan. 30, 1953.

During his lengthy battle, he said that his passport was lifted because of his political beliefs and associations and his refusal to answer the question of whether or not he had ever been a member of the Communist Party.

In his suit, he was represented by Leonard B. Boudin of New York and David Rein, Washington.

He named Secretary of State John Foster Dulles as defendant.

HE SAID in denying him a passport, Mr. Dulles violated his Constitutional rights, including the right to travel outside the United States.

Mr. Robeson said further that Mr. Dulles was interfering with his liberty and property without the due process of law.

He asked the court to declare the Secretary of State's interference illegal and to further declare that the State Department's passport regulation for a number of years lawful, and invalid.

IN MAY, 1957, Mr. Dulles told Mr. Robeson that his passport application had been denied for the following reasons:

1. Mr. Robeson's "close, continuing and sympathetic" association for a number of years with leading Communist Party functionaries in the United States and abroad;

2. His participation in the Council of African Affairs, the American Peace Crusade, the Civil Rights Congress, the Jefferson School of Social Science, the United May - Day Committee, the National Council of American - Soviet Friendship and a number of organizations listed by the Attorney General as subversive;

3. Mr. Robeson's 1948 address at the World Peace Congress in Paris, sponsored by the Communist Party, in which he said colored Americans would never fight against the Soviet Union.

4. His 1949 Moscow address at the Communist Party-sponsored Continental Congress of Peace in which he said he loved the Soviet Union more than any other country.

5. His message to the Afro-Asian Conference at Bandung, Indonesia which pointed to Russia, Eastern Europe and Communist China as examples of social progress, and,

6. His singing of communist anthems on a concert tour abroad and criticism of treatment of colored persons in America.

The restrictions on Mr. Robeson's passport were lifted in 1956 to allow him to travel in the Western Hemisphere, Canada, however, refused to allow him to enter the country.

AFRO editor 'improving'

Officials of the Fort Howard Veterans Hospital, Fort Howard, Md., reported "some improvement, though not as much as hoped for," Wednesday, in the condition of Arthur Randall, AFRO - AMERICAN assistant managing editor, who was admitted to the hospital two weeks ago in critical condition from high blood pressure.

Although his condition is still serious, doctors said that he may have single visitors for brief periods.

Wm. Christopher, the moving man, dies; rites Saturday at Enon Baptist

William Christopher, one of the oldest living furniture movers in Baltimore, died Tuesday morning at his home, 323 E. 22nd St. He was 79.

Mr. Christopher formerly lived at 1224 Park Ave., where he conducted his business for 45 years until his retirement two years ago because of illness.

A son, Randolph, found Mr. Christopher dead in bed about noon on Tuesday. The body was removed to the city morgue where it was estimated Mr. Christopher had been dead about four hours.

A NATIVE of Northumberland County Va., the deceased was the son of Charles and Sophie Christopher. He moved to Baltimore as a young boy of 17.

OFF TO ENGLAND

ATLANTA, Ga. — Mrs. Madelyn Charles will attend an International Educational Workshop in England this summer.

In 1911, he started the business called Hall and Christopher Transfer.

Mr. Hall was the late Dennis Hall, who later left the firm.

When the business first started, there was one horse and wagon.

Later, there was one truck and then three large moving vans, a familiar sight on Baltimore streets.

For many years Christopher Movers had the express and hauling business of the town's substantial citizens.

Mr. Christopher was a 50-year member of Enon Baptist Church, where he was an usher for a number of years. He was a Prince Hall Mason.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday at 1 p.m. at Enon Baptist, Edmondson Ave. and Schroeder St.

In addition to his son Randolph, Mr. Christopher is survived by his wife Emely McConn Christopher. They celebrated their 54 wedding anniversary on June 1.

Also surviving are a daughter Mrs. Beatrice Roye of the E. 22nd St. address; two other sons, Ernest and Charles Christopher; a brother, Edward Christopher, and five granddaughters and two great-granddaughters, all of Baltimore.

A sister, Mrs. Maggie Terrell of Washington, also survives. The body is on view at the Holland Funeral Home, R.M.P.

Dr. Wilson's No. 1 wife files again

Can' executors of an estate distribute possessions of a deceased person while legal action is pending against the estate?

This question may be resolved in Circuit Court here sometime in July when Judge Joseph Carter is due to rule on a petition or an injunction against the estate of Dr. Marion E. Wilson.

On June 24, Mrs. Margaret S. Holdier, Indianapolis, Ind., who is wife No. 1 of the deceased Baltimore physician, filed suit for an injunction against Louis Silberstein, executor of Dr. Wilson's estate.

IN the request for the injunction this: Holdier, an Indianapolis school nurse, asks that Mr. Silberstein be enjoined from making final distribution of the estate until such time action now pending before the Superior Court of Marion County, Indiana shall have been concluded.

As a result of Mrs. Holdier's bill of complaint for injunction, Judge Joseph H. Carter, has signed an order requiring Louis Silberstein, attorney and executor of the estate, to show cause within 15 days why the final distribution of the estate should not be halted at this time.

Mr. Silberstein was named executor in the deceased physician's will which also gave his possessions to his mother, Mrs. Mattie Wilson, Indianapolis and to his widow, Mrs. Margaret E. Wilson of Baltimore.

Dr. Wilson died in January, 1956 at the age of 49. His death was ruled a suicide.

The physician and his first wife, Mrs. Holdier, were married in 1931 in Greenfield, Illinois.

During the time Dr. Wilson was a resident of Baltimore, a divorce was said to have become final and both he and the first Mrs. Wilson subsequently remarried.

However, Mrs. Holdier states in her complaint that the decree was procured by fraud and she has asked the Indiana Court to set it aside.

In her petition to the Indiana court on June 18, Mrs. Holdier disclosed how the divorce was obtained.

She said: "The purported decree was rendered without my knowledge, presume, or consent. I did not appear in court and testify at any time in connection with the matter nor did any witness do so to my knowledge."

And, Mrs. Holdier added, "These facts were well known to Dr. Wilson."

She continued: "The purported divorce decree was obtained by him in order to perpetuate a fraud upon me and deprive me of my marital status with him as his duly wedded wife."

Mrs. Holdier further contended that she took the action to the Indiana court immediately upon discovering that the divorce was alleged to be fraudulently obtained.

THE REQUEST for the injunction marks the second time Mrs. Holdier has asked Baltimore courts to rule in legal action against Dr. Wilson's estate.

In May the Superior Court of Baltimore determined that a Maryland statute of limitations stands in her way of her collection of money she said Dr. Wilson owed her since his death at college days.

Since the physician's death in 1956 the estimated $100,000 estate has been reduced by 1957 to approximately $30,000 by other claims.

Under Dr. Wilson's will, the chief beneficiary was his mother, Mrs. Wilson who received all real estate with the exception of the physician's 2628 Longwood St. home which went to his widow.

The proceeds from the sale of his Deale, Md. summer home went for payment of debts and administration costs.

According to the first administration account filed in April, 1957, administrators of the estate listed debts to $16,263.27. A total of $16,982.38 had been retained in the estate for further accounting.

The cash chiefly came from the Deale, Md. property which was purchased by a private buyer and a new Cadillac automobile bought shortly before Dr. Wilson's death and three boats.

The physician's will was drawn after the death of his second wife, Mrs. Sadie Wilson, and it gave the entire estate to his mother, Mrs. Margaret Wilson, the last wife claimed dower rights.

WHAT EVERY MOTHER SHOULD KNOW...
• The word "enriched" on the wrapper of Schmidt's Blue Ribbon Bread means The Schmidt Baking Co. has added the "B" vitamins, thiamine and riboflavin, also health-giving niacin and iron, to meet the nutritional standards of the United States government.
Another plus . . . extra milk solids for more calcium and protein.
THIS IS IT
SCHMIDT'S BLUE RIBBON ENRICHED BREAD
THIS MEANS VITAMINS AND MINERALS HAVE BEEN ADDED TO MEET U. S. GOVERNMENT STANDARDS
