$75,000 asked for death of Miss Lillie Jackson

A suit asking $75,000 for the April 11 auto death of Miss Lillie Jackson, 81, formerly of 1449 Myrtle Ave., was filed in Superior Court Tuesday.

Sam Ruffin, 825 Harlem Ave., was named as the defendant driver of an auto which sturck Miss Jackson in the 700 block of Dolphin St., as she was on her way to visit a niece, Mrs. Elvira E. Harris, 708 Dolphin St.

The suit was filed on behalf of Mrs. Rebecca Carroll, 2138 Pressman St., also a niece and administratrix of Miss Jackson's estate, by W. Emerson Brown, attorney, of Brown, Allen and Waits.

The death of Miss Jackson brought a flood of telephone calls to the AFRO from citizens who wanted to know whether she was Mrs. Lillie M. Jackson, NAACP president.

* * *

THE STAFF of the NAACP offices at 402 Dolphin St. reported the telephones there were jammed with similar calls.

Mrs. Jackson told the AFRO at the time many, many such calls were made to her home and to those of her relatives from anxious citizens.

Miss Jackson was a life-long member of St. Pius Church. She was active in church work until her death, and was a member of the church's Sodality Women and the Third Order of St. Dominic.

Mrs. Carroll and Mrs. Harris are her closest relatives.

3 cleared on charges of cruelty

"We must judge the case directly upon the testimony of these defendants.

I could use my imagination a great deal here."

However, on the basis of the evidence we have here, I must dismiss the case."

With these words Magistrate Linwood G. Koger closed a case in Northwestern Police Court Friday in which three men were charged with cruelty to animals by arranging and allowing dog fights.

His decision was reached after 17 witnesses, produced by Northwestern police to testify against the three men, denied having seen any of them at dog fights, or connected with dog fights.

The men were William Louden, 48, 1700 block of Dittman Court; Joe Brown, 28, 900 block Bennett Place; and Robert James, 22, of 1000 block Ellicott Drive.

Sgt. Irvis Marden who arrested the defendants, accused Mr. Louden of allowing his dog, Butch, a doberman pincher, to be taken to dog fights by Mr. Brown.

Mr. James was alleged to have allowed his dogs, Wolf, a German-shepherd, and Chang, who is part wolf and a mixture of others strains, to participate in premeditated dog fights.

Ark. Citizens Council Leader Repulsed At Polls

The Afro-American
BALTIMORE, MD., AUGUST 9, 1958

MASS IMMERSION — A member of the Jehovah's Witnesses sect is dipped as others await turns during the mass baptismal ceremonies at New York's Orchard Beach in the Bronx, recently. Coming and going in the background are some of the thousands of members taking part in the day long rites, one of the features of the eight-day international assembly that has drawn an estimated 150,000 Jehovah's Witnesses to New York. Slightly more than 7,000 persons were baptised.

Faubus renomination causes press to cry 'shame' on Ark.

While the southern press continued to rejoice the sweeping renomination of Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas, the northern press cried out in the people of Arkansas, "Shame on You."

Here's what the nation's press said:

Newark Evening News:

"Arkansas has Orval Faubus and Orval Faubus has Arkansas, and jolly good luck to both of them.

"One of these fine days, suh, the lights will go on in Arkansas. When they do, they'll go out for Orval Faubus and his kind, and the happy day, now seemingly so distant, can't come too soon."

New York Post:

"The people of Arkansas have placed their stamp of approval on the shame of Little Rock."

Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal:

"The news from Arkansas is as bad as it can be. It is a dark day for Arkansas, for the South, for America."

Newark (N.J.) Star-Ledger:

Faubus' landslide victory "is generally credited to his spectacular stand against school integration and the use of troops by the President to protect colored school pupils from lawlessness."

"Those who view the Faubus victory as an endorsement by the people of Arkansas of his demagoguery will be deeply discouraged. More likely the vote was less an endorsement of his methods than a popular protest against the use of Federal troops."

Elizabeth Daily Journal:

"It is a pity that there has to be such jolting results as the Arkansas election to stir realization that the education millenium is still not at hand and that the inevitable solving of a discrediting problem may yet take some time before all our states will be New Jerseys."

Trenton (N.J.) Evening Times:

The victory by Faubus was "significant and impressive."

"It leaves no doubt that the course followed on the issue of school integration is exactly what the people of Arkansas desire."

Baltimore Evening Sun:

". . . Arkansas Democrats have indorsed a man who stands for nullification by force of the supreme law of the land.

And although only one-third of the Arkansas Democrats voted against Faubus, "there are still enough of them to count."

"In earlier conflicts over great issues, the future has nearly always been with the saving remnant."

Baltimore Morning Sun:

"The nomination of Governor Faubus . . is a powerful encouragement to anti-integrationists in other places to go and do likewise. . . We see trouble ahead for Democratic strategists."

New York Herald Tribune:

The renomination of Governor Faubus is "the shame of Arkansas—a national tragedy."

New York Times:

"We hope he (Faubus) will not be so flushed with his electorial victory as to try to use Arkansas bayonets, as he once did to keep children out of school."

The picture in Arkansas is "a most depressing one."

New York Daily News:

Faubus' "landside victory is an indicator of the Civil War passions revived in the South by the supreme Court's well-meaning decision."

St. Louis Post-Dispatch:

"Gov. Orval Faubus says his renomination in Arkansas is a mandate to resist intergration. If so, it is also a challenge to the Federal Government to assist compliance with the court orders of integration.

"Integration is, after all, the law of the land. The Federal Government— and this means the Eisenhower Administration— cannot permit a governor indefinitely to defy the U.S. Constitution."

Arkansas Gazette, Little Rock:

"Governor Faubus' overwhelming victory . . . stands as Arkansas's endorsement of the course of massive resistance against the desegregation decisions of the U.S. Supreme Court.

". . . Certainly a period of struggle and turmoil lies ahead as the South stands a powerful political minority committed to massive resistance to Federal policies generally approved in the remainder of the nation.

"Mr. Faubus' famous victory at the polls places him, and all of us, in the foreffront of that struggle."

Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser:

"As we have said, Orval Faubus strikes us as a slobbering incompetent. Nevertheless, we would have voted for him had we lived in Arkansas and if the election officials had been nodding, we might have voted for him twice.

"We rejoice in his victory.

"It seems that in the future a few colored children can be rammed into this school and that one, but they cannot get an education in that hostile environment among people who do not want them and there won't be race mixing on large scale."

Moderate retains seat in Congress

LITTLE ROCK—Amis Guthridge, Little Rock White Citizens Council official described as second only to Governor Faubus in responsibility for integration disorders at Central High School, went down to defeat by more than 3-to-2 margin in his efforts to unseat Rep. Brooks Hays as Democratic Congressman from Arkansas' Fifth Congressional District.

Analysis of the Congressional primary described the result as a victory for the cause of Hays, over that of extremism, represented by Guthridge, who served as legal counsel for the Capital Citizens Council and the Central High Mothers' Council in much of the litigation resulting from the Central High School crisis.

* * *

GUTHRIDGE BASED his entire campaign upon the segregation issue; making television and public appearances throughout the district in which he pledged a last-ditch battle to maintain racial separation in the state.

Slight attention was paid to the third man in the race, E. M. Harrington, a Sologhachia (Conway County) farmer.

Instead, Guhridge leveled his television, radio and political rally broadsides at Rep. Hays, now serving his eighth term in Congress, as having "opened the doors to the White House that resulted in bayonets being put in the backs of parents and school children at Central High."

* * *

REPRESENTATIVE HAYS who served as mediator between Governor Faubus and President Eisenhower during the September crisis brought on by Faubus' use of National Guard troops to bar colored pupils from entering Central High School, denied Guthridge's claims declaring:

"Everyone who is at all acquainted with the facts knows that I did everything that I could to prevent it (the use of federal troops at Central High).

When the votes were counted the tally showed 30,034 votes for Hays, 19,246 for Guthridge and 1,075 for Harrington.

In the race for nomination for governor the incumbent, Orval E. Fabus, easily won by a 2-to-1 margin over Jim Lee Ward of Paragould and Chris E. Finkbeiner, a Little Rock meat packer, both of whom had declared themselves segregationists, but had said that they would not defy the orders of a Federal court.

1960 census may 'hire' 9 and 'fire' 14

WASHINGTON

Although under the constitution the House of Representative remains the same size with 435 members, after the 1960 census 14 states are expected to lose and nine other states are expected to gain seats.

The prediction was made by the Census Bureau last week. It was also estimated that the census to be taken on April 1, 1960, will show an estimated population of 180 million people in America.

California is expected to gain seven seats, the same as in 1950, while New York and Pennsylvania are expected to lose three each. Florida is also expected to gain three seats.

MICHIGAN and Texas, it was forecast, will pick up two each while Arizona, Indiana, Maryland, Ohio and Oregon are expected to gain one each.

Expected to lose one each are Maine, Illinois, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, West Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi.

Split boosts Sen. Johnson chances

WASHINGTON

The overwhelming victory of Gov. Orval Faubus in the Arkansas Democratic primary has given a boost to the chances of Sen. Lyndon B. Johson's (D. Texas) getting the nomination for president, many in political circles believe.

Johnson is described as the moderate type acceptable to Southern congressmen in case of a split between the party's two extremes.

The Faubus victory gave a big lift to the hopes of pro-segregationists who would bolt and organize a third party. The majority of southern politicians, however, don't want this to happen.

* * *

SO, THEY can see Sen. Johnson as the man to carry a united Democratic banner into the campaign for 1960.

However, Sen. Johnson is still denying that he has any presidential ambitions, citing health as a reason why he's not available.

The Texas Senator suffered a heart attack recently. His backers can't see this as an excuse, especially since he works about 16 hours a day.

* * *

IT IS predicted that Johnson's big chance to demonstrate his ability at compromise will come at the opening session of the next Congress when civil rights proponents plan to push for a curb on the filibuster rule.

A fellow Democrat said of the Senator's presidential aspirations: "I've seen a lot of men running for president, and the one I'm looking for with eyesight isn't as good as it used to be."

Urges parties in Ga. to back tan candidates

ATLANTA, Ga. — Both Republican and Democratic organizations in the South were urged by Dr. L. D. Reddick, professor of history at Alabama State College, to place colored candidates on their ballots if they expect to win the support of colored voters.

Dr. Reddick was speaking at a dinner of the Fulton County Citizens Democratic Club that is launching a campaign to place C. A. Bacote of Atlanta University and J. C. Daugherty on the party's Executive committee.

The historian complimented the Georgia Republicans for having colored integrated in the party set-up. But declared that the next step should be taken and colored candidates be supported by the party organization for public office.

Likewise, he commended Georgia colored Democrats for electing two colored—A. T. Walden and Dr. Miles Amos to the Executive Committee of Atlanta. This body operates the election machinery for that city.

LEGISLATIVE OVERSIGHT?

HATTIESBURG, Miss. — The legislative investigating committee did not go into its investigation of the NAACP at its last meeting, the chairman reported.

Ga. gubernatorial hopefuls under fire

ATLANTA — The Georgia Voters League resolved not to support any candidate for governor in the September Democratic primary. At a special meeting in Macon, the organization also voted the U.S. to call off hearings of its Un-American Activities Committee in Atlanta.

The two hundred delegates from 33 counties unanimously approved both resolutions. The group also approved recommendation of the statewide registration committee to give awards to organizations participating in voter registration. The awards will be made at the annual meeting in October.

THE DELEGATES pledged themselves to return to their counties and work with leadership in both races for the election of office - seekers who will do the most for all.

John W. Dobbs, president of the League, was urged to ask the investigating Un - American Activities Committee to look into recent bombing and killings in Columbus, Dawson and other places.

The League also moved to set up a youth division, which will be taken up at the annual meeting. It was pointed out that 70 per cent of the members are over 40.

Frank Hutchings, Macon, and Thomas Harris and J. H. Calhoun, Atlanta, took part in a political - action discussion which led to the establishment of the youth division.

* * *

THE MEETING was also addressed by C. A. Scott, editor of the Atlanta Daily World, and treasurer of the League; the Rev. S. H. Pitts, executive secretary of the Georgia Teachers and Education Association.

Non-support in N.O. area angers WCC

NEW ORLEANS (ANP) — Leaders in White Citizens Council activities in New Orleans this week in public meeting deplored the lack of financial support that white people are affording in the New Orleans area.

Emile Wagner, president of the New Orleans council and president of the city school board said that if New Orleans lost its fight in court this week that was the last ditch.

He asked for more support and asked for avoidance of vilification, malice, hatred and persecution but segregation withall.

C. E. Verrett, chairman of the Downtown Area Council, came out in plain words and said that white people are not supporting the segregation movement in New Orleans as he thought they should. He expressed surprise.

Writer calls for ending of discrimination

VALPARAISO, Ind. — "If we want really to play a role for the advancement of human progress as leader of the free world, it certainly behooves us to set our house in order and cease practicing racial discrimination."

So said Dr. Louis P. Lochner, 1936 Pulitzer-Prize-winning foreign correspondent, to the ninth annual Lutheran Human Relations Institute at Valparaiso University.

Dr. Lochner recently toured the world with a United Nations survey team. He asked if it were not better to have the 76,000,000 up and coming Africans "as our friends rather than as potential enemies?"

He said that out of self interest, discrimination should be ended against people whose skin "God in his wisdom has made a different color." Some day "we may need them more than they now need us," he added.

Bennett questions draw protest from NAACP

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — NAACP lawyers acted hours before a legal deadline Monday, to file a protest at a series of more than 25 "interrogatories" presented to the association's Legal Defense and Educational Fund by Attorney General Bruce Bennett in his efforts to drive the organization out of business in Arkansas.

The protest, a legal objection to the queries, alleged that the same questions had been put to Thurgood Marshall, chief NAACP legal counsel, twice before in two previous suits against the NAACP; that they constitute a "burdensome and improper" inquiry into fund activities, and that they constitute "harassment" under terms of Arkansas law.

The notice of objections, filed in Pulaski Circuit Court, asked for a hearing on the propriety of the questions on August 11, the date which Bennett had set for the taking of depositions from NAACP officials and members concerning an alleged "task force" which he claimed the NAACP had sent into Arkansas during 1954-55 to conduct a survey on school integration attitudes.

Clergyman reports USSR religion 'live'

NEW ORLEANS — "Religious enthusiasm is greater in Russia than I have ever witnessed anywhere else. I saw no less than 10,000 worshippers at a single 'service in the Central Cathedral of the Russian Orthodox Church, in Moscow."

This is the report of Dr. Samuel L. Gandy, dean of the chapel of Dillard University, who, with four other clergymen, made a 16 - country tour of Europe and the Middle East.

"And," he went on, "at least 20 per cent of them were young people, including many soldiers in uniform. Services were similarly well - attended at the Baptist and other churches that I visited."

* * *

DR. GANDY reported that the Soviet citizen is free to attend the church of his choice and does so in large numbers, but religious instruction is prohibited, except that parents may teach their children in the home.

However, - Dr. Gandy said, he saw no conflicts between church and state. "The Russian Orthodox Church occupies a preferential position in relation to other churches, even though the government denies religious representation conference of colored and white leaders to help solve the grave problems of school integration."

"It is the only religious institution classified as a church. All other religious groups are known as 'cults,'" Dr. Gandy said.

* * *

THE DILLARD chaplain said there is a sharp contrast in the indifference found in the churches of Western Europe and the seeming fervor found in the churches of Russia. He believes there is no "live" religious movement in the western nations, including the United States.

The clergymen limited their discussions to religious matters, but Dr. Gandy said that everywhere people expressed a strong desire for peace and understanding with America.

He said that racial discrimination in the U.S. is a major stumbling block to international understanding.

The six - week tour was sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Faubus win brings a call for a contab

NEW YORK — In light of the recent political victory of Gov. Orval Faubus in Arkansas, Councilman Earl Brown here last week urged President Eisenhower to call a joint meeting of colored and white leaders to discuss integration.

Brown, running against Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D. N.Y.) for Congress, suggested in a letter to the President that he call the conference at the White House before Sept. 1 "to prevent another tragic Little Rock situation"

Brown stated, "the victory of Gov. Orval Faubus, by an overwhelming margin in Arkansas, has given renewed courage to those who continue to defy the Supreme Court school decision.

"His victory has inspired bigots and racists in other Southern states to fan the flames of race hatred. I appeal to you to immediately call a joint conference of colored and white leaders to help solve the grave problems of school integration."

More freedom expected for Trinidad city

PORT-OF SPAIN, Trinidad—Trinidad's Gov. Edward Beetham is in England discussing constitutional changes that are expected for the first capital of the West Indies Federation, scheduled to be born in October.

Port-of Spain might get almost complete internal self-government in time for the October session of the legislative council, officials believe. Before Gov. Beetham departed he had talks with high government officials, the nature of which were not disclosed.

Protest pay scales for Indies officials

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad—The Trinidad Government formed by the People's National Movement, headed by Dr. Eric Williams, raised objections recently with the Federal Government on the amount of allowances paid to members of Parliament of the New West Indies Federation.

The Trinidad government's claim is that the allowances of $360 per month for a minister with portfolio and $1,200 a year for an ordinary M.P. for travel around his constituency are too high.

These as well as the $1,000 per month salaries paid ministers and the $3,520 (annual) M.P. salaries plus $30 a day subsistence while Parliament is in session, evoked a strong protest from Dr. Williams and others of the Trinidad government.
