Sweetwater gives Detroit big punch against Monarchs

The switch from basketball to baseball has not been too difficult for Nat (Sweetwater) Clifton, who has been hitting the ball at a terrific clip since joining the traveling Detroit Clowns with his ex-teammate, Goose Tatum.

Clifton and the Clowns will meet the Kansas City Monarchs in a night game at Westport Stadium Friday, Aug. 15th, at 8:15 o'clock.

This will mark the first-time local fans have seen the lanky athlete on a baseball diamond though most of the area's sports followers are familiar with the popular star as a cage standout. He Baseball is not a new sport to the 6-foot-7 star. He played two years of Class A minor league ball and was moved to Triple AAA by the Cleveland Indians before quitting to join the Globetrotters.

SWEETWATER played with Dayton, Ohio in the Central League and Wilkes-Barre in the Eastern League in 1951-52. He topped the Central League with a hefty .347 average and then was advanced to the San Diego Club in the Pacific Coast League, but the lure of the Trotters and the big cash was too great and he quit baseball to take the tour with the Trotters.
