'. . . so we agreed to live apart . . .'

"We had not been getting along. I was just out of the service. So we sat down, talked it over, and agreed to live apart."

This testimony, given before a Master of Circuit Court, won a divorce for Earl W. Campbell of 1501 N. Appleton St. from Mrs. Evelyn V. Campbell of New York City, recently.

They were married on January 8, 1940, and separated in June, 1946, the husband said.

He was represented by State Senator Harry A. Cole. Mrs. Ruth Troutman was witness for Mr. Campbell.

Their marriage on Nov. 5, 1951 lasted only four months, his wife said.

She told the court that her husband left her on March 1, 1952.

'Joe is fine . . .be seeing us soon—'

In training with the Orioles at the Aberdeen Baseball Club in South Dakota may keep a fellow pretty busy but young Joe Fred Pulliam manages to get a letter home.

"He doesn't write much at a time, but he writes often," said his mother, Mrs. Lillian Pulliam, 1223 Ensor St., Wednesday.

"He wants to know how we are doing and tells us that he is fine."

He said he'll be seeing us soon, she added.

Nineteen-year-old Joe left Baltimore for the Oriole training camp in Aberdeen in July and his mother reported once that he was a little homesick. However, she later said he recovered from this.

AT THE time when young Joe signed the Oriole contract (July), he was elected it over the scholarship offers of six colleges and universities. He graduated from Dunbar High School in Feb. 1958. He was a member of the' basketball team which won the MSA championship.

He received a $5,000 bonus for signing the contract then went off to camp.

Fritz Maisel, Oriole scout, was impressed when he saw Joe and said:

"He is an excellent fielder with a fine arm. . . I'm confident he'll be able to hit major league pitching."

Knock 'em dead, Joe.

Cook charged in slaying of friend

Mrs. Alma Inez Miller, 40-year-old cook, of the 1500 block W. Lexington St., was held for action of the grand jury, without bail, in a Homicide Court hearing before Magistrate James F. Fanseen.

She was charged with the fatal shooting on July 13 of Freddie Johnson, 41, of the 1500 block W. Lexington St.

Also, Burleigh Jenkins, 28, 700 block W. Redwood St., was held in $500 bail for carrying a .22 caliber revolver and in $2,000 on a charge of aiding Mrs. Miller in the hindrance of justice.

Mrs. Miller entered a not guilty plea while Mr. Jenkins pleaded guilty to both charges against him.

DET. SGT. Alexander Baxter read a statement purportedly given by the woman in which she was quoted as saying:

"When he started toward me, I shot him."

At another point she is quoted as saying she shot the pistol out a window "to see how it would feel when I pulled the trigger."

Housewife in auto accident

A bruised right hand, a broken light standard and damaged fenders resulted when a Catholic Church was the prize Mrs. Blanche Lemon of the 700 block E. 23rd St., paid for a drive Tuesday morning, according to police.

Following the accident at Greenmount Ave., and 22nd St., the 40-year-old housewife was taken in a traffic cruiser to St. Joseph's Hospital for treatment.

For Mrs. Lemon the accident temporarily marked the end to two months of driving her new automobile, police said.

'Don't call any more,' dog owners are told

"Don't call any more, we'll call you."

This, says William H. Louden, 48, 1700 block Ditman Ct., is the last answer his wife has been able to get from the Maryland Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals on requests aimed at getting back the family dog, Butch.

Mr. Louden, who was fined in Northwestern Police Court Friday of a charge of cruelty to dogs, claims he was arrested after he refused to swear out warrants for the arrest of two other youths police wanted in connection with dog fight cases.

A disabled veteran of World War II, Mr. Louden said his dog was impounded when another youth who had been out with the dog was arrested.

MR. LOUDEN admits that his dog had been taken from the home and engaged in fights but denied he took any part in it.

He said the boxer-bull had come into the family when it was given to a son and when Mrs. Louden learned it had been in fights she took it and turned it over to the girls in his family.

"The girls would go to the market and get food for him. We took good care of him.

"He has a brick house and you don't see many dogs with a brick house," Mr. Louden said.

"I want him back," he explained, "because my wife wants him so bad. She cries about him, and I feel worse because of her."

Mrs. Louden, who pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct, said she was seeking legal advice in the case. She said the society might be forced to release the dogs by a court order.

The organization has been caring for several other dogs as a result of a case in which five boys were convicted of cruelty charges.

Because of the publicity growing out of the case, Mr. Louden has received several letters from "dog lovers" who hope something bad will happen to the Rev. Mrs. Florence Andrews, 900 block Mount St., told the AFRO.

"I hope they get their dog back. I don't see why they should hold the dog. They had a big case of it and couldn't do anything."

Another minister, the Rev. Samuel Carter, has also interceded on behalf of the Loudens in their effort to get Butch back.

Mr. James was ordered from the premises in the 3300 block Falls Rd. when he tried to get back his dog, according to Houston Frey, agent for the society.

His collie dog was being held despite a veterinarian's decision that scars on the dog were from treatment for an infection, rather than because of fights.

MRS. JAMES H. FERGUSON, society president, said she was seeking legal advice in the case. She said the society might be forced to release the dogs by a court order.

U.S. sues Gatewood for $5,480

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue on Wednesday filed a suit in U.S. District Court to recover $5,480.30 in back taxes allegedly owed by Bland Calvin Gatewood, formerly of the 1100 block Druid Hill Ave.

The suit requests permission to sell Mr. Gatewood's property at 1130 Druid Hill Ave., estimated in the suit to be valued at not less than $8,000.

Named as co-defendants in the suit, are Mrs. Romona Gatewood, 1130 Druid Hill Ave., and Dr. Harold L. Goldberg, 4603 Edmondson Ave., Druid Construction and Electric Co.

MRS. GATEWOOD and Dr. Goldberg are credited with having an interest in the Druid Hill Ave. property.

The suit alleges that the $5,480.30 is the balance due on taxes of Mr Gatewood's income from 1949 through 1956.

Mr. Gatewood is currently serving a House of Correction sentence for a lottery law violation.

St. Mary's admits its first pupil

LEONARDTOWN, Md. — The first transfer of a colored pupil to a formerly all-white school has been approved in St. Mary's County.

The announcement was made Monday and concerned Thomas Conrad Groves, 14, a ninth grade pupil who had sought admittance to the Great Mills Junior High School.

Monday's action, however, did not affect the Federal Court case of the boy's sister, Joan, 16, who had also applied for admittance to the school.

The county board of education had already announced that it would extend integration to the ninth grade in September, which would automatically admit Thomas but would bar Joan who is a tenth grade pupil.

THE LEGAL question which Judge Roszel C. Thomsen is expected to answer in the near future is whether the County Board can legally refuse to admit any child to the tenth grade.

When the case was taken to Federal Court it was contended that the two children had been attending a parochial school, 20 miles from their home, because they could not get the courses they wanted in a non-integrated school.

Great Mills is only four miles from their home.

In announcing that the boy would be admitted to Great Mills, Superintendent Robert E. King Jr. said the action was in line with the school board's policy of gradually extending integration.

New Yorker charged with beating clerk

A 17-year-old New York youth who is accused of beating a clerk in a cleaning shop has been ordered held in bail of $2,000 pending a further hearing.

The youth, Lemuel W. Smith who gave his Baltimore address as the 1400 block W. Mosher St., was charged with striking Miss Edna Johnson, 25, of the 1500 block Moreland Ave., with an iron pipe.

In the Northwestern District Police Court, police said the beating was part of a robbery attempt that was interrupted by a friend who knew Miss Johnson and called her name through the doorway.

Debts bigger than assets in estate of J. Coy Davis

Debts in the estate of J. Coy Davis, East Baltimore realtist, amounted to $1,917.34 more than its worth, records filed in Orphans Court show.

An administration account filed by his widow, Mrs. Ethel Davis of 1638 N. Monroe St. indicate that the estate came to $8,738; while payments made by her amounted to $10,655.34.

Mrs. Davis waived $1,917.34 in cash which she had advanced to the estate.

The records show that Mr. Davis owned, at the time of his death, a 1947 automobile valued at $150; property at 917 N. Caroline St., $3,800; $2,750 from the Veterans Administration; $1,893 in cash; and the estate received a tax refund of $35.

When a new baby comes home from the hospital it's a great day for the family.

Now that Baby-X is home she is as snug as a bug in the rug and her parents brothers, and sister are excited.

Behind are the days when she was dermed an "unwanted, neglected child," and her parents were described by a Juvenile Court master as "the coldest parents I've ever seen."

July 17, the day when she was abandoned in a Pennsylvania Ave. doorway, is now merely a dream that seems unreal.

ON TUESDAY morning just before 11 o'clock an AFRO reporter rang the bell at the Forest Park apartment. The reporter was met by the attractive 25-year - old mother who wore a friendly smile, a cotton housefrock and an apron.

When we asked for "Baby-X," the younger mother took us to a blue nursery room where Woody Woodpecker danced about the wall paper.

She was taking a morning nap.

WE RETURNED to the living room and a chat with Baby-X's mother proved heart-warming.

She stated: "Oh, you don't know how I dreamed about my baby when she was gone. I secretly longed for her to be home here.

"We had problems, so many problems. But now, I'm just glad she's home."

Already spoiled, the infant hushed crying when her mother returned to the living room with her in her arms.

As the AFRO left the scene, the mother stated that the father was asleep. He works the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift at the steel plant, she explained.

LATER IN the evening, the AFRO was able to talk with the father.

At home alone "baby - sitting" the father came to the door with a smile.

He said: "I tease a lot. I often say things I do not mean. If I had known it would go this far, I never would have said the things I said.

"I'm going to take care of them all.

"I'm not going to neglect any of my children. I work hard and I do the best I can. I think I'm a pretty good provider."

16,000 find jobs in Md. during week

Fewer persons filed claims for Unemployment Insurance and fewer persons were hired in industry under the Maryland U.I. Law last week (week ending August 2, 1958) than in the previous week (week ending July 26), Robert B. Kimble, executive director of the Department of Employment Security, has announced.

Some 37,729 persons living in Maryland filed claims against the Maryland Unemployment Trust Fund last week, a decrease of 6.0 percent from the 40,113 of the previous week. Of these, 29,544 actually drew benefits, a decrease of 9.2 percent from the 32,205 of the previous week.

The difference between the number filing claims and the number drawing benefits consists of claimants who are filing their first claims; those ineligible, or disqualified; those whose right to benefits is disputed and must be resolved through appeals hearings, and others.

EMPLOYERS IN insured industry reported to the department during the week the hiring and rehiring of 16,680 workers, a decrease of 15.0 percent from the 19,730 of the previous week. The drop follows an unusually large number of hires the previous week in the food-processing industry.

Another 619 Maryland claimants last week exhausted the full 26 weeks of benefits to which they were entitled, bringing the total since last October 1—when it was first possible to exhaust under the amended Maryland U.I. Law—to 24,265.

Under the Temporary Unemployment Compensation Program, which began in Maryland on June 19, 1958, those exhausitees who are still out M work and who have been unable to establish a new benefit year, are now eligible for an additional 13 weeks of benefits.

THE AMOUNT of benefits paid claimants in Maryland last week dropped to $934,421, a decrease of 8.7 percent from the $1,023,511 of the previous week.

Another $89,339 was paid claimants against the Maryland Fund who are unemployed and now living in other states bolster the Maryland economy by paying benefits to claimants who have moved to Maryland and become unemployed here.

No figures are available on the amount of these incoming benefits, but 2,095 claims were filed against other states by persons unemployed and living in Maryland last week, while 4,356 were filed against the Maryland Fund last week by the jobless living in other states.

IN BALTIMORE City, 26,367 persons filed claims last week, a drop of 3.1 percent from the 27,219 of the previous week. Of these, 21,000 actually drew benefits last week, a decrease of 3.1 percent from the 21,679 of the previous week.

In Maryland's counties, 11,362 persons filed claims last week, down 11.9 percent from the 12,894 of the previous week. Some 8,544 persons actually drew benefits, a decrease of 8.8 percent from the 10,526 of the previous week.

Eyewitness Tells How Longshoreman Was Crushed To Death By Sugar

BLAST MAYOR

It's almost insulting, clergy say

"Mayor D'Alesandro will not see you, that's all."

Urgent efforts of a group of the city's leading ministers to secure an audience with the mayor proved futile last week, reaction among the clergy was immediate.

The Rev. Marion C. Bascom, committee chairman of the Interdenominational Ministers Alliance, who asked the mayor's office for an appointment said the mayor's secretary was adamant.

"When we then appealed to the mayor directly by telegram His Honor's continued unwillingness to counsel with us is an affront to all citizens in this community."

THE REV. I. LOGAN KEARSE, secretary of the Ministers Alliance committee, said the "mayor's secretary was curt, abrupt and almost insulting when I called City Hall.

"I explained that the committee of inter-denominational ministers was headed by the Rev. Mr. Bascom and we wished to confer about civil rights.

"The mayor's secretary said: "Mayor D'Alesandro will not see you. That's all."

The Rev. J. Timothy Boddie, pastor of Shiloh Baptist Church, said: "When the mayor of the city refuses to see a committee of ministers any time they petition him—a committee of pastors from all denominations—then we are in a bad way."

THE REV. A. J. PAYNE, pastor of Enon Baptist Church, Church, said: "It is the mayor's duty to see us, he would not refuse to see a group of Catholic priests, if they were sent to see him."

'I hoisted him from the hold...'

"We had discharged three drafts of sugar and on the fourth draft, the sling broke when it was about 35 feet above him and the whole 20 bags, 2,000 pounds of sugar, fell on him.

"I was driving the winch when it happened. The men went over to Pier 8 and got what we call a "dead man's basket" and I hoisted him up from the ship's hold.

"It was awful."

Archie W. Branham, 51, 931 Baylis St., was giving the AFRO an eyewitness account of how a fellow longshoreman met his death on Tuesday morning.

The dead man is William J. Smith, 39, 1300 block E. Federal St., who was also operator of a GI Cab.

THE SLING from which the sugar was loosed upon Mr. Smith broke at 8:12 a.m. while a gang of 21 longshoremen were starting the task of unloading 5,500 - one - hundred pound bags of sugar from the Norwegian ship S. S. Majorka at Canton.

He was pronounced dead at City Hospitals at 8:30 a.m. He suffered a broken right leg, compound skull fracture, broken back and his left leg was completely severed.

Mr. Smith

The men, members of the International Longshoremen's Union, Local 858, Boyd Hawkins, president, were unloading the ship docked at Pier 7 at the Canton Railroad for the Nacirema Operating Co.

Eight of the men were working in the hold but no one else was injured.

"IT HAPPENED so fast he didn't get a chance to cry out. The fellow working beside him wasn't hurt at all," Mr. Branham said.

"In the ambulance, he didn't say a thing. He opened his eyes

Mrs. Dorsey found dead

Mrs. Mayme T. Dorsey, a city teacher of 1216 Bentalou St., was found dead in the bathtub of her home yesterday (Thursday) afternoon.

He is a Masonic leader and the proprietor of the Cities Service Gas Station, Mosher St. and Pennsylvania Ave.

POLICE REPORT Mrs. Dorsey's body was face down in the tub as though she had suffered an attack as she was about to take a bath.

A friend, Mrs. Helena Edmonds, told the AFRO she had visited with Mrs. Dorsey at noon and left her about 1 p.m.

At that time she said she was going to take a bath and be ready to receive friends who were expected to play-cards.

Mrs. Dorsey had been ill for the past month, first at her home and later at Provident Hospital. However, it was felt she was much improved and on the road to recovery.

THE BODY is at a funeral home in the 1000 block N. Arlington Ave. Final rites are set for Monday at 1 p.m. at the Douglas Memorial Church where she was active in the Women's Guild and other groups.

Powell wins over Brown in Primary

By LOUIS E. LOMAX

NEW YORK — Adam Clayton Powell tamed the Tammany Tiger and made the groveling beast do nip-ups at midnight Tuesday as the popular Harlem minister - politician rampaged to a four-to-one victory over City Councilman Earl Brown in a bitter primary fight to determine the Democratic nominee for U.S. Congressman from New York's 16th Congressional District.

Powell took every election district but the lower 16th A.D., which is largely non-colored.

He called for the defeat of every Tammany leader in Harlem save Lloyd Dickens, who had supported Powell before the Tammany dump and who piled up a staggering victory for Powell in his district.

Shortly after midnight bloody, but unbowed, Tammany leader Carmine DeSapio announced that Tammany Hall would support Powell in the general elections of November now that the Democrats of Harlem have made their choice plain.

THIS PUT DeSapio in the comic-opera position of now opposing his hand - picked candidate Earl Brown, who must go down to the wire under the Liberal Party banner.

But Powell was leary of DeSapio's olive branch. Instead, the fiaming Congressman told his shouting followers:

"Tammany has no leaders in Harlem anymore. The Uncle Toms have let Massa Carmine down just like Uncle Toms always do.

"Now DeSapio must deal with the real leaders of Harlem. Not necessarily me, but the real people of this community; those who have helped in my election."

Jones admitted to the AFRO that he is coming out of political retirement and will seek the

"THE COMING November election will be one of the most important in the history of our city and I visualize that women properly organized can do an effective job in getting out the vote," Mrs. Adams said in issuing the call for the meeting.

"We are particularly interested this year because women have been nominated for the first time to serve in the state legislature. We can take advantage of the importance of this.

"Our plans call for 200 or more women in all sections of the city and state, who will be our in the field working, organizing voters and getting non - registered persons on the books.

"One of the key affairs will be a leadership conference and luncheon which will feature a fashion show, a political workshop for clubs and neighborhood organizations.

"This organization is open to all women who desire to help.

"They can join the group simply by turning out at the August 19th meeting or indicating they plan to affiliate.

"They should call Mrs. Rich at MA. 3-7419 or write her at 1737 Druid Hill Ave.
