THE AFRO'S CREDO

A newspaper succeeds because its management believes in itself, in God and in the present generation. It must always ask itself—
Whether it has kept the faith with the common people;
Whether it has no other goal except to see that their liberties are preserved and their future assured;
Whether it is fighting to get rid of slums, to provide jobs for everybody;
Whether it stays out of politics except to expose corruption and condemn injustice, race prejudice or compromise.

—JOHN MURPHY SR., 1920.

It's the Fourth District's turn next

Adam Clayton Powell, opposing Tammany Hall's regular Democratic organization in New York's 16th Congressional District Tuesday won an overwhelming victory in a bitterly contested primary.

The unofficial figures gave Mr. Powell 14,837 to his opponent's 4,935.

Of the five assembly districts (wards) comprising the 16th Congressional District, Powell took four, while his opponent, City Councilman Earl Brown, was ahead in one. Brown's district contained few colored voters.

Congressman Powell is a liberal, an independent and a non-partisan.

In his district, he counts on both Republican and Democratic votes for his majorities.

No sooner than the election returns were in than Powell's smart campaign manager, Raymond Jones, was calling for the heads of all elected leaders and appointed job-holders who opposed Powell and supported his opponent in the primary.

Powell termed them Uncle Toms and figureheads because they fearfully backed the hand-picked Tammany Hall candidate, although Powell had the majority of the voters in the district.

* * *

POWELL'S fight for Congress in New York has been watched with great interest in Baltimore.

In Baltimore's Fourth District, a non-partisan group led by State Senator Harry Cole seeks to overthrow the regular Democratic machine with its hand-picked candidates.

Cole, like Powell, is an independent even though he runs on the non-partisan ticket, and must depend as he did four years ago on Democratic as well as Republican votes.

There is little difference between Tammany Hall in New York and the Fourth District machine in Baltimore. Both are controlled by a boss, who picks the candidates and who directs them how to vote on special issues important to the machine.

In no case do these machine men enjoy freedom of expression or freedom of decision.

* * *

IF THE TAMMANY machine can be defeated in New York, the Fourth District machine can be defeated in Baltimore.

Cole did it 1954 by 30 votes. The defeat this year must be by an overwhelming plurality.

Tammany poured hundreds of thousands of dollars in its fight to purge Powell.

There have been threats in Baltimore that Cole's refusal to vote for the Potomac River gambling bill will bring $40,000 from the outside into the Fourth District to defeat him.

The Powell victory in New York proves that an aroused electorate is not susceptible to seduction or corruption by political bosses and their machines operating against the people's interests.

New York's 16th District has spoken.

It is now the turn of Baltimore's Fourth District to speak.

It is time for a change in the Fourth District.

Those football tickets

Under the laws of Maryland certain punishments are prescribed for the commission of unlawful offenses.

While the law is generally rather clear on this point, some presiding court officers have substituted their own conception of what a given punishment should be for that established by the General Assembly.

Recently, a number of persons appearing in one of the city's police courts on gambling charges were placed in a position where they had little choice but to purchase tickets to the Colts intra-squad football game.

The defendants were told the cost of the usual fine for gambling and the price of the tickets. The tickets were cheaper and understandably they decided to purchase them, regardless of their personal opinion of football.

Probation before a verdict was imposed.

Several days later two youths appeared in the court on disorderly conduct charges. Given the alternative of contributing to the station house "poor box" or buying Colt tickets, they chose the latter offer.

Such activities might help the sale of tickets, but there is some question as to who benefits.

If defendants appearing before a court are convicted, then they should be punished according to the law, which generally is elastic enough to take care of the various types of law breakers.

If innocent, a defendant should be dismissed with no strings attached.

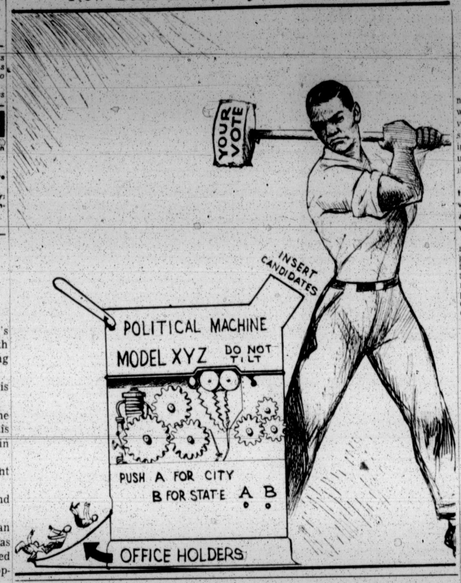
A courtroom is not a market place where bargains are to be struck and freedom from imprisonment or monetary loss is to be purchased by obeying the whim of the presiding officer.

It is not expected that fines collected from defendants will equal the cost of operating the courts of this state.

However, when a jurist waives payment of a fine and allows a person to make a contribution to a poor box or a charity drive, he has deprived the state and the people of funds that should be used to defray court expenses.

Granted that the Colts game was a worthwhile project that benefited the Police Boys Clubs, (which incidentally are still segregated) it still appears that court officers do a disservice to the taxpayers when they channel monies that should go for fines in other directions.

New York did it, why not Baltimore?



All-American Solicitor

Thomas Nichols Biddison, for eleven years city solicitor of Baltimore, died last week at the age of 50.

He was educated at City College, Johns Hopkins University and the University of Maryland Law School.

He was an All-American in lacrosse and went abroad with the U.S. Olympic team in 1928. In football, he was selected on the All-Maryland team.

The Md. State NAACP convention in 1956 presented him a plaque for distinguished service to the city, praising his 'love and respect for the law of the land,' and his impartial administration of his office.'

It was Mr. Biddison's ruling as chief legal officer of Baltimore which made it possible for the Baltimore School Board to be the first major city to integrate its public schools after the Supreme Court decision of May 17, 1954.

Six years before he made this historic ruling affecting public schools, the Supreme Court in a Florida case, had ordered public golf courses opened to all citizens.

The Department of Parks and Recreation had given colored golfers special days on municipal courses and was facing a suit demanding that they be opened to all citizens without regard to race.

The board asked Mr. Biddison for a ruling.

Mr. Biddison's reply was "I will study the Supreme Court decision and my advice to the board will be based upon that opinion. I can't make law and I won't presume to do so. The Supreme Court's opinion will be mine whatever that happens to be."

Mayor D'Alesandro termed Mr. Biddison a great city solicitor. In our book, he was an All-American one, too.

The ladies meet

According to reports circulated on Capitol Hill and around the State Department, the government turned down bids to have Princess Margaret Rose of Great Britain visit the capital after her tour of Canada on the ground that we are running short of red carpet.

Fortunately no such situation obtains in civilian Washington where the citizens are preparing next week to roll out plenty of red carpet for our own royalty in welcoming the Alpha Kappa Alpha and the Delta Sigma Theta Sororities who hold their national conventions there beginning Monday.

This is like homecoming week to both organizations in the sense that both groups, now numbering many thousands strong, had their inception at Howard University.

The AKA which is the oldest Greek letter sorority in the country expects approximately 2,500 to participate in its 50th Anniversary Celebration. Seven of the twelve women who comprised the charter group in 1908 are scheduled to be on hand along with some of the most distinguished leaders from all sections of the country.

Likewise four of the 17 living founders of the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority are expected to attend. This organization which is holding its 25th national session was also founded at Howard in 1913.

Both their numerical strength and their high standards of womanhood which they have espoused stand as a living tribute to the vision and character of the founders.

Quick police action

Police Commissioner James M. Hepbron is to be commended for the quick action he took on the complaint of a citizen who saw an officer allow a police dog to drink from a public fountain in Harlem Park.

The alert citizen, who wrote a letter to the AFRO also sent a letter directly to inspector Leo T. Kelly who is in charge of the K-9 corps. He gave the inspector the officer's badge number.

When Commissioner Hepbron checked with the inspector he discovered that Mr. Kelly had already instructed the officer involved to discontinue the practice and had spoken to all the other officers in the corps.

There's a lot that could be said about a dog's dirty paws around a public drinking fountain but thanks to the top in the police department it can go unsaid.

Thoughts on Lebanon

Dear AFRO:

Just how the President proposes to deal with the problem in the Middle East with 13,000 troops stationed in Lebanon calls for a lengthy stretch of the imagination.

Our policy makers have apparently forgotten that the countries concerned have deep suspicions of any program which is preceded by military moves.

Many of them have just gotten from under the imperialistic policies practiced by Britain for more than a century.

When British troops were stationed in the Suez area several years ago it was declared that they were there only temporarily. But it almost took a war to get them out.

It is a small wonder therefore, that natives of the Middle East are hypersensitive to all traces of influence of an imperialistic or restive nature.

Too, it is significant that we have not sent troops into other areas where similar situations demand them if we are really sincere in our talk of freedom and independence.

Whenever the question of independence as desired by natives in South Africa or North Africa is raised in the United Nations it is always passed up as an unnecessary interference in the internal affairs of other nations.

Why or wherefore then this policy in the Mid-East.

Just how, as I have mentioned to begin with, Mr. Eisenhower plans to defend this policy is beyond the average mind. I hope he has the answer in his pocket.

Notes on Robeson, etc.

Dear AFRO:

Is the AFRO going Communist? I saw in a recent edition of the AFRO a cartoon praising the fact that Paul Robeson had his passport returned to him.

The only way I could be glad he received his passport was if it was a one - way one to his beloved Russia.

Now I see the AFRO has editorialized on the Mideast situation. Surely you know that the "nationalist" minded Arabs are backed by Communist Russia. To back the Arab rebellions is to stand on the side of Russian communism.

Stranded workers

Dear AFRO:

There is a factory here which brings in colored workers from the South. Some of them are stranded here with no way to get back home.

The workers are slapped and kicked.

One man who was slapped became he parked his car in the factory yard, fought back. He was arrested and given 90 days and because of influence from the factory, the wife has been unable to hire him a lawyer.

AN INTERESTED READER.

False Arrest

Dear AFRO:

On July 29 L-was falsely arrested and charged with disorderly conduct. I was walking down the street and the officer said I was congregating and later the charge was changed to disorderly conduct.

The above mentioned had happened several times before. Not to me, but to people I know.

The Police Department in this particular section of the city (Pine St. Station) where I was arrested is taking advantage of the citizens.

YM says thanks

Dear AFRO:

Thank you very much for the wonderful coverage the AFRO gave us during our YMCA "Day Camp" program.

The prompt publication of each news release kept our parents and public abreast with the Day Camp program.

Please extend our sincere thanks to all the members of the staff who helped to make this effort possible.

Sight Seeing

By JAMES D. WILLIAMS

Being somewhat cynical by nature I am a little suspicious when a police department investigates itself and then issues a statement that despite intensive work it has failed to uncover any trace of wrongdoing by its members.

Such statements always bring to mind an investigation that was conducted several years ago in a city that fortunately was not Baltimore.

After the expected announcement that everything was peaches and cream in the force, though everybody knew that most of the crooks were more honest than the cops, a private probe disclosed that the department probe was conducted roughly in the following manner:

* * *

THREE CAPTAINS were summoned downtown and told they were to investigate the department and placed in a closed room.

No. 1 Captain — "Who brought the cards?"

No. 2 Captain — "Now now, we'll have none of that. This investigation is going to be conducted fair and square. We can play cards later, but first of all we've got to get to the root of things."

No. 3 Captain—(He's the stupid one)—"What things? And for that matter what roots? This sounds like a job for the sanitation department."

No. 2—"There's going to be a complete investigation of the department, from top to bottom."

No. 3 — "Good, that's just what we need. Things are getting so tight you can hardly make an extra buck. Somebody is getting greedy and we've got to put a stop to it. They're giving the department a bad name. What we need is organization."

No. 1 — "I'd rather play cards."

No. 3—"The way you cheat I don't blame you."

NO. 2—"Come on fellows, let's not get involved in personalities. We are here to have an investigation."

No. 1—"Well who are we going to investigate?"

"No. 2—"Tell you what we'll do. I've got a list of all the policemen on the force. We'll pick one name and investigate him as a typical example."

No. 3—"Agreed."

No. 1—"I'd still rather play cards."

After some discussion on how they are to select the subject of this high-speed probe one of the officers notices a fly on the wall.

He suggests that they place the list on the table and whatever name the fly lights on will be the lucky person to be investigated.

Luck being what it is, the fly lands on the name of Captain No. 1.

No. 1—"D-n!"

* * *

THEN THE questioning begins. It develops that Captain No. 1 has a new Fleetwood every year, but he explains quite logically that he finds the cars in the street and since nobody claims them he keeps them.

As far as the money in the bank is concerned he tells his buddies that while he only makes $7,000 a year, he has been thrifty and has been able in the last ten years to save $100,000.

And as far as those nasty rumors are concerned that he won't let his cops lock up bookmakers, gamblers, numbers writers, etc., he explains it's all a vicious rumor started by a disgruntled officer he fired for stealing apples.

"I've been looking and I can't find any vice in my district at all," he says.

* * *

ALL THIS takes about five minutes and Captain No. 2 pronounces the verdict:

"There is no graft, or indication of graft in the department. Any report to the contrary is a dirty fib."

That's how the investigation went, so perhaps you can see why I think it amusing when police start investigating police.

Noteworthy

By HERBERT MANGRUM

The Downbeat (the musicians Bible) Magazine sixth annual jazz poll is history now, but I can't help but wonder if the voters are really satisfied.

Take for example under the heading male singer, Louis Armstrong "and Jimmy Rushing finished ahead of Frank Sinatra. What gives here?

In the female singing group, Ella Fitzgerald and Mahalia Jackson are thrown together in the same category.

How can that be when one is a jazz singer and the other a singer of religious songs?

IN FAIRNESS to all concerned, different categories should be set up for the fans to vote on.

No, only am I peeved at the way some of the voting turned out but in the new female singing star group, Dakota Staton wasn't even in the running.

If I were some of those musicians I would take my case to the United Nations.

NOT ALL folks are as quick to go to court as I am.

There's Magistrate Linwood Koger.

The other a.m. he found a slightly inebriated stranger fast asleep on one of his porch when he arrived home.

Instead of jailing the guy he sent him on his way.

That's what I call tempering justice with too much mercy.

A week or so ago his honor raised the roof with one matron who has a habit of showing up in court each time the wind blows the wrong way.

From the stern lecture he gave her I'm sure only a case of homicide will force the lady to contact a lawman again soon.

People coming and going...

Post cards from the West from Mr. and Mrs. Grant Owings and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brewington, who were in Laramie, Wyoming when they wrote.

Mrs. Ada Woodland in Oak Bluffs, Mass., tells of picturesque islands there and wonderful weather.

Mrs. Renold Lighston (Ruth) who is on a European tour with her physician hubby, three of their children and a group from Baltimore and other points in the East, writes:

"Already we have visited in four countries with four more to go. So far, the highlight of it all has been our visit to the Brussels World Fair. Pictures that I had seen of it in the USA did not do it justice."

As of this writing, the Lighston party is seeing Nice. Next week, they go into Paris. They return aboard the Queen Elizabeth which leaves for the states on August 21.

Miss Irene Blay and Miss Edna Brown are off for Buffalo, Detroit, Canada and other points.

In this week from Cleveland, Columbus, Ohio and Detroit, Miss A. Dukye Woode.

AFRO Vice President D. Arnett Murphy and Mrs. Murphy and their grandson, George Lottier, are in Cape Cod.

Mrs. Elise Minor is visiting a daughter out California way.

Mrs. Mary E. Phillips and her sister, Mrs. Eleanora Lewis are visiting their sister, Mrs. Angella Calls in Bridgeton, N.J.

Happy that they are getting along okey: their mother, Mrs. Marie Edwards, 1721 W. Lafayette Ave., who won't be able to visit them this summer. Her own mother, Mrs. Caroline Mack is 98, and she can't leave her.

Mrs. Samuel Phillips (Gloria) was in Provident Hospital over the weekend for an operation; but was home in time to mark a birthday on August 12.

Also out of the hospital after an operation: Mrs. Ida Williams, 748 Dolphin St. She was confined to Hoplins.

Plenty of cheer to: Mrs. Jenny Richardson, 2313 W. North Ave. — she's the mother of Chuck Richardson — who has been ailing she says it seems all year. Just recently she suffered another stroke and nervous disorder so keep her spirits up.

Cheer to Mrs. Virginia Marano, the nurse who has been ailing at her home, 1519 W. Mulberry St.

Cheer also to Frank Williams, Department of Employment Security employee, who is in Osler, Room 315, at Hopkins, where he was rushed last Saturday.

Mrs. Mabel Denkins entered Hopkins Hospital today for an operation.

Birthday greetings by August 18 to Joseph Francis, government worker, residing at 2333 Clay St. NE, Washington. He's a native Baltimorean. And, while you're at it, Mrs. Francis (Dorothy) — celebrates on August 25.

August 18th cards too to: Mrs. Billina Young Bennett, 3416 Woodbrook Ave.

August 21st candles for Mr. Harold McDaniel, Turner Station watchmaker of 215 Walnut Ave. He is the hubby of Mrs. Eliza S. McDaniel, the AFRO's Turner Station correspondent.

NEW PASTOR — The Rev. Julius Carroll and his wife, Gladys, receive "best wishes" and congratulations from the congregation on his first sermon at the Randall Memorial Methodist Church Sunday. On left, among those extending the greetings are Mrs. John W. Dockett and Mrs. Inez Hall.

Rev. Julius S. Carroll assumes pastorate at Randall Memorial

WASHINGTON

"It is a high honor and privilege to accept leadership responsibility of this great church."

Thus declared the Rev. Julius S. Carroll in response to the warm reception he received at the Randall Memorial Methodist Church, 46th and Sheriff Rd., NE, Sunday morning.

Presiding at his first Sunday morning service, the Rev. Mr. Carroll was introduced to the near capacity congregation by the Rev. J. H. Snowden, assistant pastor.

* * *

IN ACKNOWLEDGING the introduction, the Rev. Mr. Carroll said Randall Memorial has "a right to be proud of its church progress under the Rev. John Dyson," and expressed the hope that he and the congregation would be able to go forward with "the same spirit of loyalty and high enthusiasm" which had carried Randall's name to a "high place in Methodism."

Admitting that they were "strangers" to each other, the new minister said "we shall learn each other through Christian fellowship, brotherhood and understanding.

He introduced his wife, Gladys, and told them "we have been overjoyed by the warmth of the reception to us and we hope to serve you to the fullest of our abilities."

* * *

AS AN indication of his feeling, the Rev. Mr. Carroll added "I hope to retire from Randall Memorial Church."

In introducing the Rev. Mr. Carroll, the Rev. Mr. Snowden pointed out that he was no stranger to Washington. He recalled that the minister's father 30 years pastored Asbury Methodist Church here, and his grandfather had been pastor at Ames Methodist Church in Baltimore, where he has served as associate pastor. His brother, the Rev. Edward Carroll, is pastor of Sharp Street.

* * *

LATER IN his first sermon to the Randall congregation, the Rev. Mr. Carroll declared "the primary effort of any church is Christ kingdom building."

"We are all concerned primarily, first, foremost and always with Christian building, the program of Christ's Kingdom building," he asserted.

Money raising, building of educational centers and other church activities are secondary to the primary aim of the church, he added.

He also admonished his congregation to remember that "we are Christians first, Methodists second, and as such we must first uphold the principles of Jesus Christ, and secondly hold up the Discipline of the Methodist Church."

* * *

HE POINTED out, over, that the educational center, which is part of the church's building program, was "not a luxury but an overdue necessity" and that he would work hard to see its construction accomplished.

"Such a center, the Rev. Mr. Carroll emphasized, would provide "effective tools for building a strong foundation for Christ's kingdom building."

As a warning that he planned to become active in the community affairs of the neighborhood and city, the Rev. Mr. Carroll said "as long as there is riotious living, and as long as crime is rampant, there is plenty to be done and I am here ready to go to work."

He added "I plan to speak out against sin, wherever it is found, high places or low places.

"This is my ministry; a joy, a privilege; an opportunity, to a spur and a whip to go forth and a hope that men may see the sermons I preach in living form."

At the conclusion of the sermon, members of the congregation warmly greeted the new pastor and his wife at the church entrance. A near capacity crowd was on hand notwithstanding the 90 degree temperature and humid weather.—ART CARTER
