City schools open with top enrollment

R. Carver Vocational School, Bentalou and Pressman St., opened the doors of one of the city's most modern school building on Thursday to 1,350 pupils enrolled in 22 major trade areas.

According to Dr. Saul Perdue, the principal, Carver begins the 1958-59 school year with the distinction of being the only school in the city with two vice-principals having particular division of responsibilites.

On Thursday Dr. Perdue told the AFRO: "We have an additional vice-principal this year.

"Benjamin Whitten, a former teacher at Houston Junior High, No. 181, has been assigned to administration of and coordination of pupil-personnel services.

"Miss Carrie A. Johnson, who has been vice-principal at Carver for several years, is now primarily responsible for administering the instructional program."

MORE THAN 164,820 children returned to their classrooms in Baltimore city Thursday.

At 9 a.m. the doors of 190 public schools swung open to admit them and the teachers who will instruct them throughout the school year.

The record number of students represents an increase enrollment of 3,400 children over the September, 1957 attendance.

At the close of the first day of school the attendance was considered "normal" and totaled 58,390 kindergarten and elementary school children, and 58,390 secondary and vocational students.

7 hurt in crash near cemetery

Just returning from the burial of a relative, a limousine load of mourners was badly frightened and somewhat shaken up when a huge trailer truck plowed into the car carrying them.

The car was one of a funeral cortege returning from Mt. Calvary Cemetery where William Parson, Turner Station, was buried. The funeral service had been held in the chapel of the Charles Law Funeral Home.

Mr. Law was driving the hearse leading the procession as it proceeded toward the city on Ritchie Highway. The family limousine, driven by Marshall Jones Jr., followed the hearse.

Traffic had separated the other cars of the cortege from these two vehicles.

According to Mrs. E. S. McDaniel, AFRO correspondent who was driving one of the separated cars, the hearse and the limousine were halted by traffic when the trailer truck crashed into the limousine sending it smashing into the hearse.

Anne Arundel County police and ambulances transported the victims to South Baltimore General Hospital where they were treated for shock and injuries.

* * *

IN ADDITION to Mr. Law and Mr. Jones, the following persons were treated:

Mrs. Rosetta Tynes, 210 Walnut St.; Mrs. Maeives Addison, 317 Pine St.; Mrs. Jannie Major, 180 Chestnut St., Mrs. Dorothy McArthur, 210 Walnut Ave. and James R. Gwaltney, 139 Linden Ct.

All of the victims complained of head and back injuries. They were released from the hospital after treatment. Jones are relatives of the deceased.

The truck driver, Charles W. O'Neill, 205 Riverview Rd., was charged with reckless driving. Also facing technical charges of reckless driving are Mr. Law and Mr. Jones.

A hearing is scheduled in Ferndale Police Station traffic court next Wednesday at 10 a.m.

A NEW VOTER — Signing up to vote is Arthur Elder Sr., 1846 N. Chester St., at School No. 99, Washington St. and North Ave. Mr. Elder took advantage of the mobile registration program which makes it possible to become a voter without going out of the neighborhood. A list of these mobile registration places is in this edition of the AFRO. Reading from left to right in the picture are: Mrs. Helen G. Rice and Mrs. A. A. Weathersbee, registrars, Mr. Elder and his son, Arthur Jr.

All day, all state session Sept. 27

The AFRO announced Friday an all-state conference of colored leaders for Sept. 27.

The subject: Our Potential —Releasing its power, Attaining its maximum utilization, Achieving its realization.

Invitations go out next week to officers of all colored organizations in 22 counties and Baltimore City as participants.

Invited also are leaders of smaller groups.

Consultants who are persons considered to be the top State experts on the issues to be considered at the conference have been invited to provide this leadership with information and advice.

* * *

THE STATEWIDE issues to be discussed include Citizenship:

1. The role of the church
2. Schools and parents
3. Public institutions
4. Political action

Carl Murphy, AFRO president, in announcing the all-day, all-State meeting said:

"The world is in ferment. We have landed Marines in Lebanon.

"As first class citizens we shall be called upon in any national emergency to defend and protect our native land.

"There is ferment...here at home where 8 states defy the Constitution and harass even the Supreme Court in their effort to intimidate the people and nullify the law.

"We have our problems within the State. First the colored leaders of Maryland need to know each other, to talk and eat and work together for a day and discover how we shall work together for the benefit of all the people in the State.

* * *

GOVERNOR McKELDIN will open the meeting Saturday morning, Sept., 27. Except for luncheon at which there will be a distinguished speaker, workshop sessions headed by top leaders will seek to arrive at solutions which can be given to all citizens in document form.

Joining the AFRO in issuing this call to a "summit conference" of leaders are the fellowing:

The Rev. A. J. Payne, president, Maryland Council of Churches;
Bishop Edgar Love, Methodist Church;
The Rev. J. Timothy Boddie, president Clergical Council;

Youth, 17, given life for attack

"In view of your youth and lack of background training, and the recovery of the victim, I will not impose a possible death penalty."

Judge Edwin A. Harlan told this to 17-year-old William Corbin, Jr., in Criminal Court Monday, and then sentenced him to life imprisonment for criminally attacking a 75-year old blonde woman.

Young Corbin, who lived in the 1300 block Woodyear St., was also given a 10-year sentence for robbing the woman of a wrist watch.

He accepted the sentences calmly, without visible show of emotions.

* * *

JUDGE HARLAN pointed out that a court psychiatrist examination of the youth had found him to be mentally responsible.

Also, that the youth had been without parental care since he was four years old, and had been extremely incorrigible when seven years old.

Judge Harlan further commented that the case against the youth made true a prediction by a psychologist, whose examination of him at the age of ten brought the opinion that he would end up in prison or a mental hospital.

YOUNG CORBIN has been found guilty of the attack and robbery charges in a trial on August 7.

Alan H. Murrel, his court-appointed attorney, requested the delay of the sentence, for a further study of the medical report by Judge Harlan.

At this trial, Mrs. Flora Marcus, 2700 Block N. Calvert St., testified that she was yoked on the evening of June 16, and dragged in an alley in the rear of the 2600 block N. Calvert St.

She said she was beaten so severely prior to the criminal attack that 17 stitches were required to close her facial wounds, and two teeth were knocked out and a rib was broken.

Lt. Frank Schmidt, Northern District police officer, testified that policemen, responding to a call of a disturbance in the alley, pulled Corbin off of the women.

However, Corbin testified that he saw the women lying, groaning and unconscious, when he went in the alley.

He said he was arrested directly after he went up to her and took her watch.

Julius A. Romano, assistant State's attorney, told the court the youth had been released in May, shortly before the attack, from Boys Village. He had served an 18-month term on a burglary conviction.

Mr. Murrell, in pointing to the youth's unfortunate background, said Tuesday that his father was now awaiting a retrial Court trial on a murder charge.

Man freed of attack charge

Douglas Frier, 24, 1900 block E. North Ave., was acquitted in Criminal Court Tuesday of a criminal attack charge placed by a 17-year-old mother.

Mr. Frier, through Michael F. Freedman, his attorney, successfully contended that consent was given, and no force was used.

The young mother, who lives in the 2100 block Kirk Ave., told Judge Edwin Harlan that the alleged attack occurred on July 11 in Clifton Park.

"I was sitting on the steps at my girl friend's house in the 1900 block E. North Ave.," she testified, "and Douglas took me up off the steps and carried me to Washington St.

"He then put me down and grabbed me by the neck and forced me to some bushes in the park."

* * *

HOWEVER, MRS. Norma Moore, also of the 2100 block Kirk Ave., gave a different version of the incident.

She testified that Mr. Frier had carried the young mother of a year and nine-month old baby down the street.

She said that they were laughing together, and walked on hand in hand, when he did set her on her feet.

A brother of the young mother, testified that Mr. Frier had told him of the attack afterwards, and asked him to influence his sister not to have him arrested.

95,651 now 4,349 to go

Supervisor of election records show 223 new colored voters registered last week.

The office was closed Saturday and Monday for the Labor Day weekend.

Colored Democrats registered 158; colored Republicans, 60. Declined, 5.

CITYWIDE, the total colored registration is 95,651. Of these, 56,682 are Democrat, 37,057 are Republican, and 1,912 are registered as Declined voters (belonging to no party).

64.8 per cent of the colored adults over 21 are registered in Baltimore, which is a very good percentage. However, in actual numbers, 48,565 colored persons are yet unregistered.

Heretofore, voters could register only at the Supervisor of Elections office.

This week, registration offices will be open for the receipt of Colored Registration Week Ending

'Empty gun' death of friend nets man 2-year sentence

"I have no excuse for playing with the gun, except that William liked to see how fast I could draw it. . . I didn't know it was loaded."

A bright-eyed, slender young man nervously offered this defense in Criminal Court Wednesday for the "empty gun" fatal shooting of his friend, William Jackson, 24, 900 block Round Rd., on May 31.

The man, Nelson Waters, 23, 800 block Bridgeview Rd., was found guilty of manslaughter by Judge James K. Cullen, and sentenced to two years in the House of Correction.

He turned and smiled faintly at Michael F. Freedman, his attorney, as the sentence was given.

A manslaughter conviction carries up to a possible ten-year sentence.

Mr. Jackson, an Army veteran and father of a young son, was shot, while he, Mr. Waters and some friends were enjoying themselves at a house in the 2800 block Carver Rd., Judge Cullen was told.

* * *

WILLIAM PARTLOW, 2800 block Denham Circle, a witness called by Julius A. Romano, assistant State's attorney, testified that Waters and Jackson were singing and dancing together when he entered the house prior to the shooting.

Waters handed him the bottle and I said if wasn't enough in it for me," Mr. Partlow testified. "Then, Jackson said give it to me.

"I looked around — then I heard a shot Jackson dropped to the floor and said, 'I'm shot.'

"Waters said, 'Oh, my Lord! What have I done?'"

Mr. Partlow said Mr. Waters went for help, and finally got a private auto and driver to carry the wounded man to the South Baltimore General Hospital, where he died shortly afterwards.

"The revolver, a .38 calibre make, was recovered by police from a trash can at the hospital, the court was told.

MR. WATERS, appearing in court neatly dressed in a brown suit, tan shirt and red tie, said he and Mr. Jackson had been friends for several years.

He said he was married and the father of five children.

In passing sentence, Judge Cullen said:

"Because of the evidence, I have to accept your version that it was an accident.

"It's a terrible thing that it was, the result of your carrying a gun."

When questioned about carrying the gun, Mr. Waters said he had stuck it in his belt because he planned to "get factory worker; "No. To make a long story short, I don't think we'll make it, and I'll hate to take the chance.

Arthur Payne, 939 N. Broadway, laborer: "Not a chance. It's nothing up there for me. Let somebody else be the guinea pig."

James Lee, Jersey City, factory worker: "It would be nonsense for me to try it with the family I have. Who's going to support them if I don't get back?"

Paul Gross, 200 Aisquith St., teenager: "I know one thing I wouldn't go for science's sake. Money is something else."

"Although I suppose it all depends upon what other circumstances were involved."

Henry Johnson, 826 Carey St., teletype operator: "No—not until things are established out there. Otherwise, I'd rather stay here. I'm not the pioneer type."

John Springfield, 1101 Orleans St., unemployed: "That's one trip I wouldn't want to take. I don't think we'd make it. Anyway, I like it too much right here."

William Johnson, 520 Laurens St., truckdriver: "Yes, I would. It would be something new, different and educational. I wouldn't worry too much about the risks involved."

"I took greater risks during the war and didn't think I would make it back."

Leon Handy 601 N. Fremont Ave.: "If I were sickkid 31 cupose I would go. But bet your life, I wouldn't volunteer."

Landlord, 66, held in death of tenant, 59

A 66-year-old landlord who allegedly told police he struck at a tenant with a knife in self defense, was charged with homicide Tuesday.

John J. Cameron of the 600 block W. Conway St., entered a plea of not guilty in connection with the fatal stabbing of Ezekiel Bush, 59, and was ordered held without bail for action of the grand jury.

* * *

SERGEANT John Scales of the Southwestern District testified that Bush died from a stab wound in the chest on Aug. 12 following an altercation at Cameron's home.

The sergeant said Cameron had given a statement in which he said:

"When Zeke came in and I told him to go to his room to sleep, he hit me with a bucket. I struck him back in self defense."

The officer also stated that the defendant and Bush had been drinking, and there were witnesses to the fight side of Cameron's head.

Dedication set at Rosewood

Maryland's first residential treatment unit for the emotionally disturbed child will be formally designated as the Esther Loring Richards Children's Center at dedicatory ceremonies to be held in the new building near the entrance to Rosewood State Training School, Owings Mills, Maryland, on Thursday, September 11 at 2 p.m. Governor Theodore R. McKeldin will make the principal address. Presiding will be Dr. Joseph J. Reidy, director of child psychiatry, department of mental hygiene, who will head the new unit.

While special invitations have been issued to Maryland's educators, judges, physicians and psychiatrists, and heads of departments of state and city government concerned with health and welfare, members of the public interested in the new program are welcome to attend.

Boy's mom worried over his absence

"His mother is just worried to death—she's nearly crazy about the thing."

Blease Dingle told the AFRO this week about the family concern over his missing stepson, John Gould Jr., 18.

According to Mr. Dingle:

"If he his stepfather—but I raised that boy. We always got along fine. We're from Pineville, S.C.

"I came to Baltimore about five years ago to get work. The rest of the family was in Pineville. One of my trips home, he said that he would be able to do very well if I would only bring him.

"I brought him and his mother to Baltimore and three weeks later, John was missing.

"He was doing a part-time job cutting grass. He told me he could get around much better if he had a bike.

"I told him to wait until he had been here long enough to learn his way around.

"ONE NIGHT he came home with a second-hand bike, the next day he was gone. We haven't seen him since. That was just three weeks after he got here.

"We reported it to police here and we've also called our relatives in South Carolina but there's no trace of him.

"The only relatives he has here are his mother and me—he has no brothers or sisters.

"He's about five feet, nine inches tall and the last we saw of him, he was wearing a tan sports shirt, light-colored trousers and black shoes.

"He had said once or twice that if he could locate a bean truck, he would go out and pick some beans."

"I hope he comes home soon —this is about to kill his mother."

3-family housing okeyed on Preston, Lanvale Sts.

The Board of Municipal and Zoning Appeals on Tuesday approved requests to house three families at 721 W. Lanvale and 716 E. Preston Sts.

Disapproved was a request to house four families and a roomer at 628 W. Saratoga St.

Postponed until September 16 was a scheduled hearing on a request to house one family and ten roomers at 1028 N. Eden St.

Also postponed until September 23, were hearings to house three families and an office at 2025-W. North Ave.; six families at 1511 Madison Ave., and three families and a store at 1541 N. Bond St.

Among the cases scheduled to be heard this coming Tuesday are these requests at these locations:

At 1427 Madison Ave., a doctor's office; 521 S. Sharp St. — two families, five rooms; 525 S. Sharp St. —five families, and 1719 N. Monroe St. —wholesale bakery and offices.

Acquitted in shooting, man jailed for gun

"I was showing him the gun with the intent of drawing it to him . . . when I took it from my pocket, it went off."

This explanation by Archie Maps, 33, 700 block W. Fairmount Ave., brought him an acquittal in Criminal Court Tuesday on an assault to murder charge, involving the shooting of Frank McFaden, 1400 block Carroll St.

Mr. Maps, however, was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction on a charge of possessing a deadly weapon.

Mr. Maps and his attorney, Michael F. Freedman, contended that the shooting of Mr. McFaden, a friend, on July 19 in front of a Pine St. tavern was an accident.

Mr. McFaden, who was shot in the chest, also testified that there is no disagreement between them.

DANIEL H. MURPHY

Newsboy receives Exeter award

Daniel H. Murphy, 14, hung up his newspaper bag this week after selling AFROs in Catonsville for two and a half years.

This week he enrolls in the ninth grade at Phillips Exeter Academy, Exeter, N.H.

Exeter and Andover are two of the oldest private secondary schools in New England and are both known because they prepare students to enter Harvard and Yale.

* * *

Daniel's scholarship came through Exeter's program to enroll top newsboys through out the country.

Since the program began newsboys have been recognized among the ten best students in each class.

Daniel started selling 78 AFROs in the Catonsville area and quickly built a home delivery route of 200 papers each Tuesday and Friday.

Last year he was made an AFRO district supervisor handling over 600 AFROs.

Charges filed in auto accident

A longshoreman and a painter were charged with reckless driving last Friday when their cars collided at Franklin and Pine Sts.

Accident investigation officers identified the longshoreman as Brokenburg Beverly, 52, of the 1000 block W. Lafayette Ave. The second driver was identified as Harry Lee Jackson, 42, of Lutherville, Md.

Hubby's threat costs 6 months

"He told me to come out in the hallway, that he had something for me but that I couldn't want it."

The "something" Robert McNeil Jr., 31, 1300 block Argyle Ave., had for her, testified Mrs. Dorothy McNeil, 500 block Fremont Ave., was a pistol with which he threatened to kill her.

Magistrate Linwood G. Koger sentenced Mr. McNeil to six months in the House of Correction for threatening his estranged wife.

Two women hurt in auto mishap

A 40-year-old housewife, and a passenger in her late model automobile, were injured Sunday in an accident at Payson and Presbury Sts.

The driver, Mrs. Grace R. Greene, suffered a back injury, and Mrs. Lula Blake, 56, sustained a chest injury.

Both women, who are residents of the 1000 block Poplar Grove St. were admitted to Lutheran Hospital.

Mrs. Gross was charged with reckless driving.

The operator of the second car, Lawrence J. Burrs, 23, of the 800 block W. Lexington St., was charged with failing to give the right of way at an intersection.

And how would you like a trip to the moon?

QUESTION

Would you be willing to be among those to take the first rocket trip to the moon? If so, why? If not, why not?

Places Asked

Downtown Baltimore

THE ANSWERS

David Wood, Jr., 1018 Bethune Road, Cherry Hill, clerk: "It would be a tough decision to make, but I think I'd go. It would be an exciting way to make history.

Henry Morgan, 2430 E. Hoffman St., mason tender: "I wouldn't go. Life is too sweet and I'm not ready to give it up yet."

James Truesdale, 922 N. Central Ave., break-down operator: "If depending on my chances of getting back. But if it would mean advancement for my country—both races —I think I would."

Jacob McIntosh Jr., 1516 Caroline St., welder: "I don't know whether I would or not. It's a question of whether or not I'd really be doing anything worthwhile."

"It seems that every invention or discovery man has made so far has been used against himself — to do evil, not good.

Winston Waldon, 515 Freedom St., teenager: "Yes, I'd go. I've always like to be first in anything I do. I'll try anything once, and this would be the chance of a lifetime."

Raymond Monterior, 1621 E. Federal St., porter: "I wouldn't go for all the money in the world. I've never liked planes. Besides, they are fooling with God's works—a dangerous thing. I don't think man was meant to leave this earth — he would have been given wings. If he was."

Man in blue-white checkered shirt, blue trousers, refused to give name. "No sir, I'll never want to go up that far. I'd rather not make history that way."

P. Van Der Lewis, Dutch Guiana, electrician; "No, I certainly wouldn't. I don't like to be the first in anything I do. I've always been that way."

THE REV. ERNEST RAY, 32 N. Mount St., assistant pastor of Mt. Comen Baptist Church: "No, I don't take chances as a rule. But it's a thing a man has to think out. He can't just decide overnight."

SP5 Lindsay P. Naylor, Fort Meade, Md. "I would go if there were having a lot more success than they're having now. I would go out of pure curiosity. Just to have the chance to find out what's out there.

WALTER JONES, Jersey City, factory worker: "It would be long story short, I don't think we'll make it, and I'll hate to take the chance.

Central High Must Proceed At Once With Integration, High Court Rules

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled shortly after noon today that desegregation must proceed at once at Central High School in Little Rock, Ark. The court's ruling did the following:

Reinstated the order of Federal Judge Ronald Davies bidding immediate desegregation.

Upheld the ruling of the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals which reversed Judge Walter J. Lemley's order delaying integration for 2½ years.

Abolished the Circuit Court's order suspending its reversal of Lemley's ruling.

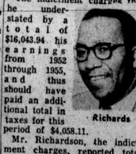
Uncle Sam says Chuck owes 4G

Charles A. Richardson, 45, 1700 block N. Bentalou St., known to radio listeners as "Chuck Richards," was indicted by a Federal Court grand jury here Tuesday for alleged income tax evasion.

The indictment charges that he understated by a total of $16,042.94 his earnings from 1952 through 1955, and thus should have paid an additional total in taxes for this period of $4,058.11.



Richards

Mr. Richardson, the indictment charges, reported total earnings for this four-year period of $28,118.54, and paid taxes on this sum in the amount of $5,239.83.

The Government contends that he actually earned a total of $44,162.48 during the period, and should have paid taxes totaling $9,298.94.

MR. RICHARDSON posted bail of $1,000 on Wednesday pending trial date of which has not been set.

A popular disc jockey and Morgan student, Mr. Richardson told the AFRO:

"I am surprised about this action. I thought the Government and I were in the process of settling the matter.

"This is the first time I've heard from the Revenue people in two years.

"As my client, my lawyer thought it would be a lot of red tape."

Little Rock plea had no chance

By CARL MURPHY

The Little Rock School Board did not have a chance in the Supreme Court of the United States Thursday.

The dramatic high court session lasted four hours.

Most of the—time to be specific, two hours and 26 minutes—Richard C. Butler, attorney for the Little Rock School Board occupied the center of the stage.

* * *

LIKE A SUBVERSIVE pleading the protection of the 5th Amendment, Mr. Butler's voice droned again and again, was:

"Give us time (to mix the races), . . . any delay — 2 weeks, 1 year, 2 years — the court thinks 2½ years is the shortest time."

But he was in the wrong church, the wrong pew at the wrong time.

* * *

NO MATTER how he twisted and turned, the Government of the United States in the person of Solicitor General J. Lee Rankin, or Thurgood Marshall, chief counsel of the NAACP, was there to accuse Arkansas of defying the government, and the Constitution.

Neither Thurgood nor the Solicitor General could interrupt Mr. Butler while he held the spotlight, but the black - robed Supreme Court justices could and did.

For example:

Chief Justice Warren —

"Mr. Butler, are you saying that the denial of rights to colored children is in the public interest?"

Mr. Justice Burton —

"Would public sentiment change in 2½ years?"

Mr. Justice Black—

"Is it your position that massive resistance (admitting Negro children to Little Rock schools) is sponsored by the state government, therefore you are asking for delay?"

Mr. Justice Harlan —

"If the school board had the backing of the courts, would it need delay?"

(Mr.) Butler implied enforcement now would result in chaos, only a delay would satisfy.)

Mr. Justice Black —

"What are the new Arkansas sovereignty laws?"

Arkansas' Butler explained that they were constitutional amendments just passed by the legislature, but not signed by Governor Faubus, which would nullify the Federal action consistent with the Supreme Court's ruling requiring public school integration.

Mr. Justice Brennan—

"How can you ask for delay, Mr. Butler, if the state has not grasped this problem? You are only suggesting delay in your argument."

Mr. Justice Black —

"What about the new Arkansas law Mr. (Thurgood) Marshall says is directed against the NAACP?"

Butler of Arkansas said the law was directed against a number of organizations generally, including the NAACP.

In a courtroom where silence is mandatory and enforced, there was discreet and subdued laughter. And no one was admonished.

THE JUSTICES did not harass Mr. Butler. They gave him more than twice as much time to state his case as they gave NAACP's Thurgood and Solicitor General Parks.

But their questions elicited from the Arkansas lawyer what Mr. Marshall spoke out loud—

Mr. Butler was talking stuff.

"Stuff, that's all it is," repeated Mr. Marshall.

"His suggestions are impossible—

"His case doesn't belong in court.

"His proposals do nothing."

THURGOOD MARSHALL attacked Arkansas' Butler from another angle.

Not only has Arkansas set

High Court in session only 3 hrs.

By STEWART MAUPIN

A U.S. Supreme Court pulsing in the Little Rock segregation case is expected Friday.

After listening to arguments lasting three hours and 29 minutes, Thursday the court recessed without rendering a decision.

The court met at noon and listened to argument on wheter desegregation at Little Rock's Central High School should be delayed 2½ years.

* * *

ARGUING FOR continued integration were Thurgood Marshall of the NAACP and U.S. Solicitor General J. Lee Rankin of the Justice Department.

The Little Rock school board, which is seeking to bar seven colored students from Central High School, was represented by Richard C. Butler, board attorney.

Butler opened the argument and spoke a total of two hours and 23 minutes.

He was followed by Mr. Marshall who spoke 22 minutes and then returned for rebuttal.

* * *

SOLICITOR GENERAL Rankin, using 34 minutes, made the argument on behalf of the United States against any suspension of the school plan of desegregation.

Butler followed in final rebuttal to Rankin.

Butler opened his case without a rebuttal.

Chief Justice Earl Warren drew from Butler, that the school board wanted delay of desegregation of Little Rock public schools, no matter how clearly the court clarifies its decisions outlawing racial segregation.

Pro tilt set Sunday

Giants-Colts lineup has ex-Morganite

Marylanders will have a double-barrelled lure beckoning them to Memorial Stadium here Sunday afternoon when the New York Giants invade the city for an exhibition football game with the Baltimore Colts.

In addition to the first appearance of the Giants here in a number of years, the game will give hometown fans their first glimpse of three former colleagues of teammates in action as pro gridders.

Roosevelt Brown, who performed at Morgan State College prior to joining the big leagues, will be in the Giants lineup. Brown has been named to the all-pro team each of the last three seasons.

Johnny Sample and Sherman Plunkett, both of whom were all - conference stars while at Maryland State College, are expected to see action with the Colts — Sample at defensive halfback and Plunkett at offensive tackle.

This trip represents only a small portion of tan player activity scheduled at the stadium

Women seek 1,000 new voters in city-wide canvass Monday

Monday, September 15 is R-Day in Baltimore — the day when the Womanpower Committee, a nonpartisan organization hopes to register 1,000 new voters.

"We are depending on our volunteer-workers and interested citizens to rally to this mammoth effort... we are heartened by the city-wide response we have received so far, and we are confident we can register 1,000 voters on Monday which is R-Day —registration day.."

This was the statement which came at AFRO presstime on Friday from Mrs. Victorine Adams and Mrs. Ethel Rich, co-chairmen of the organization.

The statement added: "If we all realize it is now or never to elect our own qualified candidates, we will reach our goal of registering 1,000 voters in one day.

"If they can register 433 persons a day down in Atlanta, Ga., where there are many stumbling blocks, surely here in Baltimore where registration places are open 12 hours a day, we can sign up 1,000 in one day. We can and we must. . . The big push on Monday is to prevent a last - minute rush on September 22nd which is the last day to register to vote in the November General Election."

HERE IS what the Womanpower Committee has done and what it needs to reach its 1,000 new voters on Monday:

CHURCHES — Clergymen of all denominations have promised to offer special prayers on Sunday, September 14. They have consented to distribute information about registration places in their churches and to urge the members of their churches drive their cars for just one hour between 10 a.m. and 9
