Johnson-Rawlings rites in D.C. unite Morgan College students

WASHINGTON

Miss Dorothy Ursula Rawlings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Rawlings of 925 R St., NW, became the bride of Preston Theodore Johnson, here, Saturday, in one of the loveliest wedding of the season.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Sylvia Johnson of this city and Preston T. Johnson Sr. of New York City. Both are students at Morgan State College.

THE CEREMONY, in Metropolitan Baptist Church, took place at four in the afternoon with the Rev. Oswald Smith officiating. Miss Naomi Martin was at the organ and Daniel Comegys was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Rawlings wore a gown of white whisper taffeta made on princess lines with a chapel train. The long sleeves ended with points at the hand and the round neck was outlined with sequins.

Appliques of lace re-embroidered with sequins enhanced the front panel of the skirt and a large bow marked the back waistline.

Her veil was held by a tiara of seed pearls and sequins and she carried orchids.

CARRYING OUT the colors of her sorority, Alpha Kappa Alpha, her maid of honor, Miss Carmella Harmon of Washington was gowned in pink, and the bridesmaids in green.

Their V-necked princess frocks had velvet tops and balloon bottomed skirts.

THE BRIDESMAIDS were Miss Joyce Stern of Washington, Miss Barbara Curtis of Montclair, N.J., Miss Mattie Fountain of Pleasantville, Miss Sylvia Battle of Washington, Mrs. Catherine Wright of Baltimore and Mrs. Betty Rawlings of Washington.

Two small flower girls, nieces of the bride, Gail and Karen Rawlings, wore long taffeta frocks and matching hats in green and pink, respectively.

Wilbur Rawlings Jr., nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

* * *

MR. JOHNSON had as best man his brother, Alfred Johnson of Washington.

Other ushers were Roscoe Ledbetter, Wilbur Rawlings and Arnold Hayes of Washington, and Lanie Beck, Herman Carter and Raymond Wright of Baltimore.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Rawlings wore a gown of beige lace, sequin trimmed and made with short sleeves and round neck. Her accessories were in brown and her corsage of brown orchids.

Mrs. Johnson wore pink, a gown of lace tiers enhanced with rhinestone clips. Her accessories were also pink as was her corsage of orchids.

A RECEPTION followed in the social hall of the church and following the reception a wedding party for attendants, and close relatives was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Official hostess and director of the wedding was the bride's favorite aunt, Mrs. Olivette R. Harris, of Baltimore, striking in blue silk and blue accessories. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Ruth Wilmore of Baltimore, Mrs. Ida Stevens of Petersburg, Miss Carolyn Shelton of Richmond, Va., and Mrs. Dorothy Strickland of New York.

Following their wedding trip the couple returned to Morgan State College, where she is a senior and mathematics major and he a sophomore and business education administration major.

Maritae's luncheon was holiday for mink

By Lula Jones Garrett

Town ladies will simply have to turn to sable or supp'n!

When 150-plus of 175 guests turn out in mink at one party (even if it is the avowed "party of the year") something has to give. It has to give if only to curb the eye-balling.

You've probably guessed by this time that the party referred to here was the bridge luncheon, given by the Maritae Club, Saturday. . . .and which brought out platinum plated matrons from 10 cities.

It was a mighty lush affair held in the Reisterstown Road Blue Crest Inn. Champagne and hors d'oeuvres in the cocktail room. Luncheon in the main dining room, followed by cards, in turn followed by the awarding of prizes that ran from silver trays and pitchers to flossy perfumes and wine sets.

And then on to an after party in the pretty Dorchester Road home of Dr. and Mrs. Albert Burwell. The latter, supper and all, ran into the early morn. . entertained principally the husbands of the members and their out-of-town guests, along with a few local guests.

In the first place, the Maritae set the fashion pace. Catherine Adams' empire sack with its over skirt at back in olive green, was accessorized with a wig of tiny leaves in multi shades of the green, and shoes and bag in several shades of green.

Also wearing green (Kelly) was Marie Hicks, whose dressmaker suit had an empire band of matching satin, with a blouse of the same underpinning, including the cossack brimmed hat, were also green.

Bea Butler wore black, the top of the frock being lace worn under set in pink. Her off the face hat of black velvet had a swag of flowers at the left.

Etta Phifer wore a frock draped to the fore, with a flat feather hat, and Helen Burwell, in black, emphasized her tiny waist with a lifted Empire line. A flat rose velvet bow made her hat;

Mae Adams' black frock, an extreme empire, was draped in front to form a swag near the hemline, and with a huge rose swinging the eye to the high bust line. Yvette Murphy, in a print of earth tones, wore a pink whimsey (hat) a narrow tiara of mink beset with lace and bugle beads.

And Ethel Rich's brilliant green print was highlighted with an equally brilliant deep-brimmed hat in autumn orange.

And speaking of the mink. . . other than that warehouse lot parked in the cloak room. . .the guests did interesting things with the fur.

Jeanette Christmas' lovely dark brown frock had it's picture frame neckline outlined in bands of the stuff. Hilda Higgins wore a mink beret above her fitted sheer black wool that had three shades of brown outlining the blouse top and Bernadine Harrison's blouson suit in beige had a collar of mink. . and a broad band of the fur topped the tall, tall hat worn by Lillian Berry, who matched the fur tone to her frock of wool, cented with huge buttons down the back.

As I said, the party drew guests from 10 cities, including:

Fannie Jones, flew up from Los Angeles, Calif. (she's the former Fannie Martin and a sister of this town's Mattie Connor). Alice Hayes from Niagara Falls. Bernie Austin from New York and Marie Vidal from St. Albans, L.I.

Lee Moron (she's the wife of Hampton's president) came from Hampton, Va. Iris Richards from Hempstead, L.I., and a group from Washington, including Nolie Murchison, Catherine Morros, Blanche Jordan, Jane Rich, Ruth Shipley, Addie Garvin, Myrtle Phillips and Ivy Bourne.

An equally large group was from Annapolis, among them being Betty Hunson, Vandola King, Dr. Fay Allen and Eloise Richardson. Betty Clayton came down from Coatesville. Shirley Phillips and Frances McAdams from Harrisburg and Gwendolyn Henson from Frederick, Md.

The beautiful prizes at pinochle went to Rosalie McGuire first, Ruth Johnson, second; Mary Pitts, third; Dora Hutchinson, fourth and Mattie Connor, fifth.

Ruth Shipley took first prize at bridge, with second to Theresa Walters, third to Ruth Jenifer, fourth to Dolly Walker, fifth to Ivy Harris, sixth to Florence Gloster and seventh to Althea Cornish.

It was a beautiful day, Saturday, and the Stork Club made the most of it.

They held their annual fall outing in the beautiful Hollofield area of Patapsco Park, surrounded by those beautiful miniature mountains.

They had engaged the concession shelter for the day, and George Taliaferro had a variety of games, from sack races to hoola-hooping, to engage the youngsters. Prizes were provided for winners.

And then they cooked over the huge fireplace, and the Carnation Milk hostess provided hot chocolate and cookies.

Stork Club mothers about included Marguerite Daniels, Ruth Broom, Catherine Greene, Evelyn Bass, Jean Turpin, Esther LaForest, Elsie Robinson, Gladys Prestwidge, Mary Oliver and Irene Templeton.

There also were Lawrence Robinson, the Rev. Reginald Daniels, Waters Turpin, Eugenia Parker, Gorham Scott and Furman Templeton.

The children had a large number of guests.

The affair was arranged by a committee which included Mesdames Daniels, Brown, Robinson, and Oliver, with Mrs. Templeton as chairman.

WHEN THE Baltimore Club of the National Association of Business and Professional Women met on Tuesday evening at the YWCA it completed plans for participation in the National convention over the weekend in Newark, N.J.

Heard and discussed the budget, accepted plans for a business clinic in November, accepted five new members and one reinstatement, and accepted a proposal by the Committee to tribe Survey of facilities for Retired Business and Professional Women.

The committee proposed a pantry shower for a local institution as its service project for the holiday this year. Margaret Wilson and Miriam Gwynn, as co-chairmen, announced the Business Clinic topic as, "Analyzing and Improving Business Operations" to be held on Sunday, November 16 at 1424 Pennsylvania Ave.

The theme will be discussed in five phases by resource persons, who are competent in
