Every One a Buick Booster

There is a certain prestige that owning your own motor car gives you in your community.

There is a certain satisfaction in knowing you own a car that will take you anywhere and bring you back. It is this quality of dependability which has put 110,000 Buicks on the road, and it is this same quality on dependability which has made every one of those 110,000 Buick users a Buick booster.

The Buick overhead valve motor has more power per cubic inch of piston displacement than any other type of motor ever built. It costs us more to make it but cost you less to run it.

DOES anybody in Maryland know why Senator Smith and his chain of newspapers are making such a noise about supporting Mr. Bryan nowadays? Today it is—"We supported Bryan;" "we worked for Bryan;" "Bryan is the greatest man in the country to-day." Six months ago the same crowd was howling—"Bryan is a traitor to the Democratic party;" "the sooner the country is rid of Bryan, the better it will be," and Senator John Walter Smith threw his hat in the air, and clapped his hands in strongest approval when somebody in the National Convention in Baltimore called Mr. Bryan a traitor. What's happened, anyhow? Senator Smith and his crowd are after office, and they think Mr. Bryan can assist them. But Mr. Bryan and his friends are no fools.

LETTER FROM STRICKEN CITY.

Dr. David A. Medders Tells of Cyclone in Omaha.

In a letter published in the Baltimore Sun last Saturday, Dr. David A. Medders, formerly of Baltimore, and brother to Mr. Wm. Medders, of Still Pond, this county, writes a most vivid description of the fearful damage done by the tornado in Omaha, where Dr. Medders now resides.

"After his entire family and his automobile had narrowly escaped the path of the tornado by a few minutes, after his house had escaped it by a block and a half and after escaping death in a few other ways, Dr. Medders had gone back into the desolated and burning districts and worked all night in snow four inches deep and near zero weather.

Some of his patients were among the killed and missing and many others lost all but their lives and the clothes they happened to wear when their houses were blown clean from their foundations.

A daughter of one of his wealthier friends, whose home was not quite two blocks away from his own, came to his house after the tornado had passed to have a wound dressed. She was hatless and had no clothes except those she wore. One side of her father's house had been cut away by the cyclone and hardly a brick could be found on the place afterward.

Dr. Medders wrote that the destruction seemed far worse than the Baltimore fire, which he witnessed when living here, that the loss of life would surely total more than 1,000, and that the number of injured would never be known. He said that brick houses in the path of the tornado were swept away, but that the wooden houses were like so much down before the wind and large sections of them were blown 50 miles into Iowa.

"My wife and daughter and I had been out for a ride in the automobile," the letter read, "and had crossed the path of the storm a short time before it hit the city. I had left them at home and gone to see a patient just a short distance away. Before I got to his house the storm struck.

"Afterward I started toward where my home was when I left it. It seemed as if that fearful path of desolation led right over it. It was pitch dark, for all the lights were out and it was raining then. I could see several houses afire, but I climbed over the debris toward home without hope of finding anything left.

"The actual path of the tornado was swept clean. Houses, bricks, everything carried away. I found my house and my wife and Ruth safe. But they were nervous and frightened. They saw the tornado pass. Then I went back to help and worked all night. It was 10° above zero, and before day there were four inches of snow on the ground.

"The pictures don't show half the destruction done and the newspaper accounts don't touch it."

The letter was mailed last Wednesday, but it almost beat a telegram which was filed in Omaha Tuesday morning and reached Baltimore Friday midnight.
