How Newspaper Men View Senatorial Fight.

The following extracts clipped from various papers throughout the East are a fair statement of the Senatorial situation as it is viewed by those in a position to judge accurately the effect of Senator Smith's candidacy for re-election to the Senate:

The Philadelphia Record:

"It has become recognized on all sides that William L. Marbury's fight against Senator Smith will be one which will shake the State. Men close to Senator Smith do not hesitate to say in private conversation that Mr. Marbury's great ability will make him a most dangerous adversary. These men understand perfectly well that, in a campaign which will last nearly eight months, only those issues will survive which have real life. They think the people will conclude there is only shallowness of talk of Federal patronage because the President's true attitude on the Senatorial fight here is being understood even now, and because there will be no improper use of patronage. And they think that, with the passing of these cries, the people will give close attention to real issues between the two sides."

The Baltimore News:

"Senator Smith need not feel any surprise at the prospect that official delegations of ministers will carry right up to the chamber of the United States Senate their just protest against the appointment of a former red-light saloon proprietor as doorkeeper of that august body.

"The question of right and wrong involved in the appointment is as clear as the sun at noonday. When Senator Smith found that his confidence had been abused he should have promptly shown his indignation by recalling the appointment of Shoenewolf. His refusal to do so only can be interpreted to mean that he prefers to have the protest of the decent citizenship of the State rather than to incur the disfavor of Kelly and his friends.

"As to the suggestion that Senator Smith, by providing a worthy occupation for Shoenewolf, gives him a chance to reform, everybody with a spark of comprehension of the political game as played by the Senator and Boss Kelly knows that reform was about the last thing to which either of them would give a thought in such a duel.

"What Senator Smith ought to do, if he wants to rehabilitate himself in public opinion, is as plain as the alphabet.

From Wilmington Every Evening:

"Patronage may do great harm to Senator John Walter Smith of Maryland, instead of helping him in his campaign for re-election. At present he is in hot water over his selection for appointment to the office of door-keeper for the United States Senate.

"According to Dr. Howard a Kelley, a prominent surgeon of Baltimore, who has written a letter of protest to President Wilson, Senator Smith's selection is a "discredited saloonkeeper, a breaker of the law, and an ex-resident of the red-light district of Baltimore." Dr. Kelley calls upon the Senate to "purge itself of this disgrace."

"This incident is likely to injure the prospects of Senator Smith's election, and if the charges against his appointee are true, he deserves all the harm it may do him. He does not deserve re-election anyway, as he is not sound on tariff reform, being favorable to a tariff tax on lumber—he is extensively engaged in the wholesale lumber business—and to other protective taxes for the benefit of special interests. Appointments of an unsavory character, made for the purpose of advancing his personal interests, will add to the many reasons why he should not be longer permitted to masquerade as a representative of Maryland Democrats in the United States Senate. No Senator who is not squarely and fairly in favor of tariff reform on a real Democratic basis—a revenue basis, with protection entirely eliminated—deserves the favorable consideration of Democrats.

The Denton Journal says:

"There has been much discussion in the Baltimore press and pulpit of the appointment to the position of doorkeeper of the United States Senate of a Baltimore man named Schœnewolf, who had been recommended and vouched for by some of the influential politicians of the city. It transpires that the appointee is a badly discredited ex-saloonkeeper, and Senator John Walter Smith, whose endorsement secured the position for Schœnewolf, is being censured by many. Senator Smith was undoubtedly imposed upon. He, of course, regrets the appointment, and says so, and simple justice to him ought to secure the withdrawal of Schœnewolf from the conspicuous position he has secured. The retention in a place of this kind of a man with the record of Schœnewolf would be damaging to the party responsible for his appointment. It is the part of the Christian to seek to reform the transgressor, but to signally honor him is another matter. Happily our State is clearing itself of the prominence and, as has been at times, the dominance of the criminal classes of Baltimore, whose last conspicuous achievement was the despoiling of the primary election two years ago in that city. The placing in the glare of public office, whether done by thoughtless voters or by appointment, of a man whose presence would be unwelcome in any respectable home, constitutes a real injury, a serious affront, to the public and one that thoughtful people cannot sanction.

Fire at Md. Agricultural College.—The laboratory building connected with the poultry experimental farm at Md. Agricultural College was destroyed by fire on Monday, and with it between 1,600 and 2,000 eggs that would have hatched in a week. A number of incubators in the building were destroyed, together with valuable records of Prof. R. H. White, poultryman. The loss is $4,000 covered by insurance.
