person to be notified in case of emergency.

Miss Butler, however, was killed 10 years later, by an automobile in front of her home, 619 Dolphin St.

Advertisement in the AFRO-AMERICAN and two other newspapers, and dramatization of the case over the nationwide radio program "Court of Missing Heirs," however, brought a flood of claimants to the fortune when Mr. Giles died.

White Man Seeks Estate

Among them were 27 persons who thought they might be cousins of the dead man. One of them was William S. Giles, white of Pittsburgh, who withdrew his claim when he discovered that the fortune was not left by a white man.

The Rev. Samuel Giles, an evangelist of the Church of God in Christ, and a resident of Philadelphia, favored by Judge Cummings to be ruled a relative, testified that Mr. Giles was his half-brother.

According to his testimony, the deceased man was born to his mother prior to her marriage to his father, but took his father's name.

Story Authenticated

He told the court that he, his half brother and three other brothers worked for many years with their father in his bootlack shop.

Among the patrons of the shop whom he called upon to testify to this claim was former-Mayor Howard W. Jackson.

City Wanted Money

Added to the claim of the cousins, none of whom personally knew the man, but based their claim on descent from uncles and aunts of the mother, was the City of Baltimore, which wanted the money for its school fund.

The State of Maryland, which said its claim preceded that of the Federal Government, also asked the court to award it Giles's estate.

The Orphans Court ruling was based upon a Federal law which provides that Government pension payments revert to the Government when there are no legal kin.

Appeal Possible

The case may still be appealed by the City of Baltimore and the State of Maryland, which have laws providing that in such cases the money go to funds for educational purposes.

The Baltimore National Bank, which served as committee for Mr. Giles during his stay at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, and as administrator of his estate, built the original amount of $3,036.38 into $20,000 through investments chiefly in city and government bonds.

138 Births, 52 Deaths Reported During Week

The City Health Department reported 137 births last week, a decline of 14 under the 154 reported for the same week in 1947. Some 52 deaths were reported as compared with 56 for the corresponding week in 1947.

It is also reported that the number of cases of measles has been increasing for the last month, with 26 cases reported this week and a total of 78 so far this year.

Turners Station Club's Housing Problem Solved

Businessman Gives Building for Boys' Use as Clubhouse, BHA Lends Organization Land

A prominent white businessman solved the Turners Station Boys' Club's housing problem this week by giving the boys a building formerly used as an Army theater.

The businessman, who asked that his name be withheld, purchased the war-surplus building from Aberdeen. The building will be erected on land that the Baltimore Housing Authority has loaned to the club.

Organized about two years ago by Jerome P. Hall, the Turners Station club now has 150 members.

First Rented Clubhouse

The boys found it impractical to continue holding meetings at Mr. Hall's home, 424 Main St., and launched a project to obtain a club house last month.

The boys, ranging in age from 10 to 17 years, first rented a house and made an appeal through the AFRO for furnishings. Donations were coming in from all parts of the city, when the businessman offered the building.

When completed the Boys Club building will be a 12-room affair, with swimming pool, office, music room, recreation rooms and a gymnasium. It will be erected near the Fleming School in Ernest Lyons Homes.

Mr. Hall has arranged for a Boy Scout troop to be formed through the club, of which Carrolton Shepard will be scoutmaster.

Mr. Hall is head of the club's board of directors. Other members are Henry Church, George Ford, Vernon Wheadon, Mrs. Pauline Station, Jackson and Rufus Wells. Mrs. Emma P. Hall is recording secretary for the club.

The Strand Bowling alley gave a piano to the club on Wednesday. The boys are still in need of furnishings for the club house.

New Members Desired

Persons wishing to make contributions should call the AFRO, Mulberry 6015, and the boys will pick up the furniture or other donations.

The club is now conducting a membership campaign. All boys of the Turners Station area between the ages of 10 and 17 years are eligible for membership.

Membership application can be obtained at 424 Main St. in Turners Station.

Auto Owners Advised on Tag Application

In applying for new car tags, automobile owners are instructed to write the number of their big license plate now used, in all four boxes across the top of the tag application.

The Department of Motor Vehicles advises that the correct number must be given in order to avoid delay in receiving the new small tag. Failure to do this may result in the tags being held up past the March 31 deadline.

MRS. IDA BROWN

Rites for Mrs. Ida Brown of 1223 W. Lanvale St., who died on Monday, will be held on Saturday at Emmanuel Christian Church. Burial is to follow in Arbutus Memorial Park.

She leaves her daughters, Mine Leontine Brown and Mrs. Ernestine Duckett, two sisters and three brothers.

The Subject Is Easter Eggs

The subject of this very interesting and confidential conversation between Abney Lee, left, and Margo Guy, is, to all intents and purposes, Easter bunnies and Easter eggs. Members of the 1A class at Coppin Demonstration School, they had fun dyeing eggs this week to fill the baskets swaying on their arms.

LENT SEASON OF SACRIFICES?

Probe Reveals Church Folks Give Up Little

Despite almost universal discussion of the subject, an AFRO investigation this week disclosed that while various denominations traditionally and successfully conduct Lenten observances, people in general don't deny themselves luxuries in keeping with the popular conception of the season.

In order to keep before man the supreme importance of the soul over the body, some branches of the church, each year, observe a 40-day period before Easter as a time to contemplate the sorrows and trials of the Saviour and His death on the cross.

The contemplation of the trial, death and resurrection of the Lord, the church holds, should include self-denial. Money saved through self-abnegation should be turned over for religious uses.

Offerings Not Sacrificial

Churchgoers give special offerings, but generally not in a spirit of self-sacrifice.

Some maintain the philosophy that a year-around effort to live a more Christ-like life is more to be desired than concentrated endeavors during any given period.

Movies, dances, parties, smoking, drinking and sweets are the most usual pleasures given up as a form of sacrifice.

Many Study at Lent

None of the persons questioned indicated that money saved from these denials would be given to his church. Many stated that they had used Lent as a period of Bible study and prayer.

Some Methodist churches supplied members with the booklet,

City Set for 19th Sunrise Service

Program at Stadium to Begin at 5:45 A.M.

Anyone who has not attended an Easter Sunrise Service in Baltimore is urged to visit the Municipal Stadium at 5:45 a.m. Sunday when the 19th outdoor Easter observance will be held.

Annually about 30,000 men, women and children file into the stadium stands in the dawn hours to participate in the conglomerational prayers and singing and to hear music by the organ, choir, orchestra and soloists.

Pageant of Nations

They witness a pageant of nations, figures of the living cross and Biblical texts, and the religious drama enacted on a field transformed into a lovely garden with hundreds of plants and seasonal flowers.

All officers and committemen give their assistance free of charge to this community project, and the offertory which is collected, goes exclusively to offset the expenses of the undertaking.

Civic, fraternal and religious groups also support this activity by their volunteer efforts.

Red Cross Abandons Separate Blood Plan, Jesse Thomas Reports

Jesse O. Thomas, veteran Red Cross representative, revealed here Sunday, that the war-time "nonsense" of separating the blood of races has been abandoned.

Speaking as a platform guest at the 21st mass meeting of the NAACP and YWCA at Sharp St. Methodist Church, Mr. Thomas, a field worker with the Red Cross, volunteered the information that the organization is no longer operating under the Army and Navy as during the war.

He disclosed that already, the Red Cross has entered into an agreement with medical authorities throughout the nation to provide 3,700,000 pints of blood a year to hospitals on an unsegregated basis.

Councilman 'Explains' His Anti-Civil Rights Stand

Councilman Anthony F. DiDomenico, independent candidate for the Democratic nomination to Congress, says that he is not opposed to civil rights and fair employment laws, but that he is "a firm believer in States' rights."

Mr. DiDomenico, who represents the Second District in the City Council, contends that Maryland's rights under the Constitution of the United States would be violated if the State Legislature repeal the jim-crow transportation law "is shameful."

Questioned as to whether his statement that white people have the right to live in all-white blocks means that he favors restrictive covenants, the councilman answered, "No, it does not."

"I don't want to deprive anyone of his rights under the Constitution," he said.

$6,000 Homes Falling Apart

Cherry Hill Boon Proving to Be 'Bust'

LEAKS BAD

Private Builders Facing Court Action

Half of the homes built at Cherry Hill scarcely three years ago are actually falling apart!

In many of these homes, whose prices in fee simple range from $9,250 to $6,300, the water has flooded cellars up to two-foot marks in the wall.

Dozens of pairs of cement steps are actually leaving the houses to which they were once attached; bricks are supporting posts of back porches which have shrunk and left the posts dangling in the air.

Street Caved In

One section of a concrete driveway completely caved in when a truck parked there; in one home, a pool of stagnant water, formed at the entrance to the cellar from rain drainage which seeped through the ground, has stood there for three years!

Several persons have fallen through those sections of flooring which are unsupported by joists, and are simply 10 and 12 inch boards pieced together.

One Can Shake the House

Doors are warped and shrunken; all along the sidewalks, children dodge caveins and cracks; one person can stand in the middle of a parlor floor and shake the entire house simply by pressing

Ex-White Lawyer Held McKee Kin

Claim Established in Court Wednesday

PHILADELPHIA

Although he has now been established without question as the grandson of the late Col. John McKee, Civil War veteran, T. John McKee, New York attorney, may have disclosed his racial identity needlessly, other relatives believe.

Since the death of Dr. Henry Minton, who was thought to be the Colonel's last surviving grandchild, several other descendants have filed claims against the $800,000 estate, originally intended for the construction of a "junior Annapolis." A special master for Orphans' Court on Wednesday stated that McKee, from his hospital bed, positively identified himself as Col. McKee's grandson.

Descendants expressed doubt that the estate will be turned over to the 70-year-old lawyer because it is presently controlled by Catholics who are expected to apply it to Catholic institutions.

Mr. McKee, born Theophilus John Syphax, changed his name to McKee in 1904, and has since become a successful attorney beloved to be white.

The son of John Vincent Syphax and Abby McKee Syphax, the colored daughter, he is married to

Wife Slayer to Be Home for Easter

William Miles will be home for Easter!

He spent Christmas in jail because police arrested him on Dec. 3 for stabbing his wife to death.

But on Wednesday, when Judge Edwin Dickerson considered testimony that Miles stabbed his wife after she, in a fit of rage, slashed his arm with a butcher knife, gave the man a four-month term dated from the time of his arrest.

Coupled with his time off for good behavior while in jail, the sentence enabled Miles to be released almost immediately.

Called Good Citizen

The 30-year-old worker at Bethlehem Steel Co., was described as a former Army sergeant and a steady employee, without any previous criminal record.

Witnesses testified that his wife, Mrs. Katie Miles, 28, was hostess at a drinking party at their apartment, at 732 N. Gilmor St., when she started an argument with her husband, who came in to fix his lunch of spare ribs.

Says She Snatched Knife

In a statement to Officer Charles Heim of Northwestern, and on the witness stand, Miles said his wife

Charges that her husband deliberately set out to force her to leave him won a divorce for Mrs. Julia Stevenson of 1622 Miller St., here, Tuesday.

Mrs. Stevenson told the court that the husband, John W. Stevenson of the same address, used abusive language to her, threatened her with violence and actually committed physical violence against her.

She said her husband's treatment had so disturbed her as to cause her to suffer from a severe nervous condition which necessitated hospital treatment.

Says He Suffered, Too

Mr. Stevenson testified that his wife was no laggard at inflicting punishment.

He said that upon one occasion she had cut up his clothes, and later cut him, leaving a permanent scar on his face.

He told the court that she had constantly threatened to put poison in his food, and that she slept with a hatchet under his pillow.

Stevenson exhibited a wound scar on his hand, which he

1000 Morgan Students Still Denied Bus Service

Baltimore Transit Company, told recently by Public Service Commission to improve its service "or else," says, through spokesman, that heaven only knows" when college students will get service they've requested for 30 years. Excuse offered is that conversion of lines from streetcars to buses comes first. The admission of color-phobia indicated in the statement shows primary interest is service to white residential areas.

— BY STAFF CORRESPONDENT —

For 29 years, Morgan College students have been without bus service and, if it is left to the Baltimore Transit Company, they will be without it for at least 29 years more!

One transit company official declared this week that: And before this remote bus line was placed in the Northwood area, several years ago, for the convenience of white residents, Morganites were forced to walk a mile to school from Hillen Rd. and Montebello Ter. The college has been on its present site since 1919.

Raymond S. Tompkins, BTC director of information and service, told the AFRO that "we don't have enough service for the people of Northwood," if one bus on

Few Clues Found to Thieves' Identity

Unless police effect an arrest, a four-man team of burglars will have an elaborate Easter, spending the $6,880 found in a safe they stole early Thursday morning from the office of the Royal Theatre.

The safe, weighing at least 800 pounds, was carted from the theatre by at least four thugs, who surprised and trussed two porters employed in the rear of the movie house.

The workers were Alexander Williams of 1338 Pennsylvania Ave. and Floyd Robinson of 416 N. Pine St., who told police the

A battered safe identified as the one stolen from the Royal Theatre was found late Thursday in a shed on a vacant lot in the 600 block Bradley St., by George Butler who lives nearby. The contents, money, checks and personal papers, had been removed. A short distance away, in a yard in the rear of 636 W. Franklin St., police found two revolvers which had been in the safe. Investigation is being conducted by the fingerprint squad of the detective bureau.

Eighteen-year-old James E. Wright, who elected to cast his lot in with Roy Arnold Wood, white convicted slayer of a policeman, was lucky, Tuesday, to get a seven-year prison sentence.

Because the youth was mixed up with Wood in at least two holdups and told police that he and the white man took several unidentified persons for robbery "rides," Wright could just as easily have been on trial for murder this week.

The State may have elected to try Wright on charges of conspiracy to commit the murder, or accessory before the fact, for the defendant had admitted to police that he was the person who sold the death gun to Wood.

Missed Fatal Holdup

Fortunately for him, Wright was not with Wood on that morning of Feb. 13 when the man held up a taxi driver and fatally shot Patrolman Joseph Benedict as the officer walked toward another cab to investigate the robbery.

Wood has since been convicted of first-degree murder, which carries a penalty of death or life imprisonment. He tried to hang himself in his jail cell on Sunday morning. Since then, Wood again went berserk, and has twice been placed in a straitjacket.

'Strange Fruit' Romance Denied

White Druggist Asks Dismissal of $13,500 Suit

WASHINGTON

Jesse Abrams, white pharmacist, accused of "living intimately" with Mrs. Judonne Carpenter for about two years, then jilting her to marry one of his own race, has denied all allegations of a spirited love affair made by his self-proclaimed former sweetheart.

In Washington's replica of "Strange Fruit," Mrs. Carpenter is asking the District Court to declare her owner of the premises at 828 21st St. N.E., which Abrams allegedly presented her as a gift then sold it for $13,500 to Mrs. Myrtle C. Vines, 2905 11th St., N.W.

If she is not declared owner, Mrs. Carpenter wants judgment for the $13,500.

(Note—"Strange Fruit" is the story of the world love affair of a Southern white youth and a colored belle which ended disastrously.)

Most Attractive Hats Worn to Win Orchids

Come join the Easter parade on Sunday. Your Easter bonnet may win you an orchid.

Orchids contributed by local florists will be presented by the Millinery Council of Baltimore to women wearing the most attractive hats in the Northwest Baltimore Easter parade.

A committee of judges will be stationed at the old YWCA building at Druid Hill Ave. and Dolphin St. between 1:30 and 3 p.m., Sunday, to select the winning bonnets and present the orchids to the lucky wearers.

Judges Named

The judges will include Mrs. Jeanette Boston of the Charm Center; Mrs. Minnie McNeil of Hendin's Hollywood Fashions; and Mrs. Lucille Williams, recent Morgan graduate who majored in home economics.

Similar judging of paraders will take place at 22nd and Charles Sts. and at Eastern Ave. and Conkling St. between 3 and 4 p.m.

Photographs will be taken of the winning hats, which will be judged again after Easter. The grand winner will be announced the following Sunday and a brand new spring bonnet will be presented to her.

Rain or shine, committees will be out to make the orchid presentations and choose the prettiest hats in this year's Easter parade.
