Muth Submits Bill to Council

pany a certain amount of revenue each week.

In addition, he contends, it would save money for the passenger who must use the transit system several times daily.

In Washington, where the straight fare also is 10 cents, a weekly pass may be obtained for $1.50, which entitles the bearer to ride any and all cars in the city limits at any time.

Would Lessen Delays

As it now stands, persons trying to get to and from work during the morning and evening rush hours must stand on corners and in lines for lengthy periods while conductors go through the business of assorting nickels, dimes and quarters, and checking and issuing paper transfers.

With a pass system, passengers would purchase them on a weekly basis and simply flash them upon boarding a streetcar. Transferring from one car to another would also be made less tedious.

The resolution was referred to the council's committee on ways and means. Public hearing, pro and con, will be held on the measure before passage or defeat.

Sparked Other Transit Changes

Councilman Muth also sparked the movement which called for police enforcement against overcrowding in buses.

He supported Baltimoreans in their fight against the substitution of gas-fuming buses for streetcars and is one of the champions of the bill which would force trackless trolleys to pull into the curb when taking on or discharging passengers.

A hearing on the latter bill will be held on Monday at 1 p.m.

Trial Period Asked

Further wording in the weekly pass resolution states in part:

"It is desirable to make every effort possible to increase the revenues of the Baltimore Transit Company without increasing fares.

"It would seem desirable to try the weekly pass system at least for a sufficient period to say whether it would have the effect of increasing the revenues of the Transit Company."

Under its provisions, the cost of the proposed weekly pass would be regulated by the Public Service Commission.

Public Hits Proposal

Expressing great enthusiasm over the proposal, most of all because of its time-saving features, was Edward O. Hunt of 269 S. Hilton St., an insurance company debit supervisor, who pointed out:

"I use the trolley from eight to 10 times daily. Making and getting change, transfers and two trip slips, wastes time for both the passengers and the motorman. The use of weekly passes would eliminate this."

Workers under his supervision, who use trolleys from three to six times daily, would also make good use of the minutes saved, Mr. Hunt said.

Would Aid Public Aides

Welfare case workers use the passes and trolleys from eight to 20 times daily, said Miss Virginia Jones of 706 N. Carrollton Ave., adding:

"Rather than wait for a crowded car, and then battle a crowd to get your transfer and slips, one can oftimes make better time walking. The use of weekly passes would stop this bottle neck."

Mrs. Ella Hughes, 504 N. Fulton Ave., and Mrs. Louise Lockerman, 1724 N. Carey St., both public health nurses, declared that they had long wished for a change in the method of paying fares on BTC trolleys and buses.

They favor weekly passes 100%.

Catholic Students Vote for Interracial Schools

There are 11 colored students enrolled in the Evening School of Loyola. Father Matthew Sullivan, dean of the Loyola (day) College, which like its evening counterpart awards the bachelor's degree in science and arts, revealed that no colored students have ever applied for admission to the regular day sessions.

19 Colleges in Conference

There are over 900 students, including some non-Catholics, enrolled at Loyola.

Other member colleges of the Baltimore-Washington region of the federation are Catholic University, Notre Dame of Maryland, Georgetown University, St. Joseph's, Trinity, Dumbarton of the Holy Cross, Georgetown Visitation and Immaculate, Mt. St. Mary's, St. Joseph of Emmittsburg.

Two admit colored students namely, Catholic University and Dumbarton, both of which are in Washington.

Parents Fight Change

It was learned that a poll was taken recently among women students at Maryland's Notre Dame, and that their parents objected strongly to the resulting opinion that the college be made available to American students, regardless of color.

Before approving their democratic proposal, the Congress's delegates were addressed by Dr. Euphremia Haynes of Miner Teachers College in Washington.

After her address, they asked such questions as, "What isn't the Catholic Church doing for the problem? What can we do about the problem?"

Not One Objection

And their own answer was the adoption of the mixed schools proposal put by Edward Maker, retiring president of the congress, a student at Catholic University. Not one of the delegates objected to adoption of the proposal in full although it was not put in the form of a resolution.

Congress action also included election of John Bannon of Catholic University as president and formation of plans for a regional interracial commission.

Elders' Ideas Outmoded

Meanwhile, those like young Corrigan, who attended the congress as representatives of colleges concerned will report back to their various student councils.

And whether or not the administrations will consider their opinion important enough to change policy of years, they should at least realize that theirs probably represents the last generation of backward thinking.

Lipscomb, 16, whose testimony was similar to Pointer's.

The slain youth's friends included William Stewart, William Camper and Edward Boone, all 15, who said that Johnson had no knife when he was felled at Saratoga and Poppleton Sts. on Feb. 19.

Admit Victim Started Fight

All agreed on only one point, and that was to admit that Johnson started the fight when Smith told him "Pointer wasn't his size."

Said Judge Moser, "The way it boils down, the young fellow who got killed wanted a fight, and he got one. This other fellow had a right to protect himself as he did."

Baltimoreans Given Review of New Look at Cocktail Party

Gadabouting in Baltimore

Cocktails and High Styles Draw Three Cities' Socialites

with Lula Jones Garrett

If you haven't seen a dream walking (and been double it that) it was because you didn't drop in at the Sphinx Saturday afternoon while the rest of the socialites from hereabouts, Philly, Washington and New York were Oh-ing and Ah-ing over the collection Valentine was showing, the Rose Meta folks were backing up with the proper hair and complexion dress, and Hayes was topping with hand made hats.

And, frankly, the audience gave the models a bit of competition.

Beginning with models, especially stunning were Ruth Bailey in a gray gabardine suit with Navy caps and Wilhelmina Garner in a blue faille suit, peeping petticoat with furs supplemented with gold accessories. Three exquisitely beautiful wedding gowns and veils were worn by Miss Shirley Leslie, Mrs. Garner and Miss Lena Johnson of Washington, D.C.

Other models were Jeanne Stevens of Philadelphia, Lula Torry, Elizabeth Bartz, Gilda Grey, Dorothy Baker and Eunice Rogers.

Miss Rogers did a cute thing—warbling "My Desire" in that lush voice of hers as she showed off white linen suit and taffeta hat—the-face hat that was fifty women's desire at the moment, and enchoring with "Stormy Weather," grey suit with red accessories. Carolyn McLaughton; whose gray frock had the new necklace neck line, being done in a rhinestone band.

The affair was the brain child of Erma George, of Valentines; and Pauline Brooks, Rose-Meta representative.

MISS DUFFIN HOSTESS

Inez Duffin was hostess to the Dubois Circle and a few friends at a colorful buffet supper with Harry Bard, curriculum specialist of the public schools, as guest speaker.

Those present were:

Meadames Alice Arrington, Beatrice Brasston, Florence Carter, Augusta Chissell, Erma Davis, Bertha Hatchett, Margaret Hawkins, Gladys Hawkins, Elizabeth Henderson Roberta Henderson, Josephine Lansey, Estella Lee:

Mesdames Maud Morsell, Edythe Myers, Clara Rhetta, Laura Wheatley, Gladys McGhee, Vivian Cook, Marian Webb, Ruth Lighton, Mildred Seaborne, Gladys Shepperd, Ethel Hudson, May Marshall:

Meadames Georgine Wilkins of Washington, D.C.; Leonard Wheatley, formerly of this town and now of Texas; and Misses Edna Brown and Vera Shank.

JONES BABY CHRISTENED

The four-month-old son of the J. Omar Jones (Mae Hazy Brooks) was christened at Metropolitan Methodist Church, Sunday Godparents were Meadames Emma Burgess and Fannie Jones, and Messrs. James E. Hernde and Donald T. Redd. The baby begins the fourth generation of both sides of the family.

Mrs. Wilhelmena Garner modeled a blue faille suit. The Hayes hat had ostrich trim.

Mrs. Dorothy Baker displayed an evening gown of green and white checked net.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bartz showed a pure silk print, and imported Milan rose-trimmed hat.

Miss Eunice Rogers, singing model, modeled formal frock of pale pink and aqua.

Mrs. Dorothy Baker displayed a suit, hat and silver fox jacket. Styles were by Valentine.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Garner exhibited the mode in which Valentine would gown a bride.

TEN NEW CORNELIAS

The Cornelias, mothers whose progeny are to keep abreast of latest trends in child development, to assist in worthwhile community projects adding cheer and joy to provide wholesome relaxation for themselves and their families, increased their membership by ten on Monday evening.

Mercedes Douglass, Guineveve Thomas and Vernice Wynn entertained the group at the latter's home.

New members inducted include: Helen Lee, Clementine Knox, Virginia Parks, Louise Gilliam, Cordelia Johnson, Elizabeth Hood, Rubye Walker, Florence Reid, Lelia Powell and Dorothy Lewis.

Prizes for brain teasers went to Zaidie Koger, Helen King, Dorothy Lewis and Mollie Moore.

Other members are:

Sadie Marshall, president; Helen King, treasurer; Mabel Perkins, financial secretary; Elsie Sessoms, corresponding secretary; Mercedes Douglass, recording secretary; Vernice Wynn, Nellie Moore;

Blanche Hughes, Emma Hughes, Charlotte Sherrington, Anita Wheatley, Catherine Wilson, Gray nelle Spaulding;

Frances Hill, Majorie Moses, Guineveve Thomas, Doris Oswell, Lucille Jackson, Emma Tucker, Zaidie Koger, Charlotte Mebane, and Grace Burkett.

M.O.M.'S ADDED

Among the new town clubs recently organized is another group of young mothers, whose program will be circular. Gladys Daniels is president; Bernice White, secretary; Vera A. Pitts, treasurer; Jimmie B. Clay, business manager; and Ruth Tonkins, assistant business manager. Also on the roster are Audrey Pinderhughes, Rita Coles, Elizabeth Butler, Mary Stanley and Vera Fry.

POT POURRI

Mrs. Adelaide (Adah) Gatewoods, whose smoldering marital affairs broke into flame in February, were divorced in Reno, Saturday. They were married in 1934 and are parents of a five-old daughter. A property settlement was made prior to her flying to the divorce capital. Mr. Gatewood (Gatep) is one of the town's best known sportsmen. She charged incompatibility.

The Omega brothers ought to feel mightily flattered at the flock of top togs the gals garnered to please their eyes Friday eve. The dance was really something to look at. There was Vera Scott be-bopping quite as dignified as Queen Mary, until you glanced down on her pale blue frock, and there was the entire midriff peeping; and Corine Procope in blue with a startling rose trim; Mrs. Bill Taylor in a frock with a colorful scarf making its one-shoulder-in-one-shoulder-out motif, above a white slit crepe skirt. Dukye Woode dancing in champagne net and taffeta, the bodice having a square effect very low bertha; Magnolia Thomas in flowered taffeta with a puffed row of bows in a low-bit treatment; Myra Reeder of Washington, very gay in red; and the new Mrs. Carl White, wide-eyed and cute, in a cocahinn's coat of blue above her black skirt.

And there were some either interesting dance items, for instance, Dr. John Woodland and Magnolia Thomas making a threesome, and Ida Nixon and Dallas Nicholas ditto-ing.

At the newest town club, The Kleeer, guests will have to have keys for admittance. The club, at 1325 Pressman St., will be formally opened on Friday and hold open house all next week where those precious items will be obtained. Douglass Henderson is president of the board of directors; Dr. Roy Johnson, vice president; Edward Smith, treasurer; and Thomas Hawkins, secretary. The membership committee includes Dr. Orris Walker, David Mason, Dr. Johnson, Dick Cummings, Dr. John T. Woodland, Ulysses Glover, James Wood, Herbert Augustus, Wellington Ross, Dr. Emerson Brown, Dr. George Woodland, Chuck Richards, Dr. Albert Burwell and Stanley Burdnell.

Among the charmers at the luncheon meeting of the Northeastern Regional Conference of Colored Graduate Nurses Saturday noon at the YWCA were:

Dorothy Doyle of New York, recently returned from an 18-month stay in China under the UNRRA program;

Ensign Edith Devoe of Washington, stationed at the Naval Dispensary Communications Annex;

Lalia M. Cavers Campbell, assistant nurse officer in the division of commissioned officers, United States Public Health Service;

Lt. Lucia A. Rapley of Washington, of several years service during the war years in California and Arizona;

Dynamic Mrs. Mabel Staupers, former executive secretary of the NACGN, urged nurses to return to the pioneer spirit of 1908, when the organization was begun.

Hats off (and the gals wore some whoppers, too) to the local NACGN chapter headed by President's Edith Fields, who did a dandy job of organizing the conference.

Serena Pearsoll and Lenora Williams are of President's Nursing School, did a beautiful job on the interracial student nurses' panel on Friday afternoon.

PEREGRINATORS

Dorothy Wright, of Philadelphia, national president of Jack and Jill Club, stopped for a brief visit here, Saturday, en route to Washington to set up plans for the national convention there May 15. The town branch of the organization got up an impromptu cocktail party for her at the home of the local president, Bernice Wynn. Capt. and Mrs. Leonard Underwood were back at their McKean Ave. home, Friday, with a brand new military secret, their seventh-month-old daughter, Cynthia Dale, born last September in Saipan, where Dad was stationed. She is the former Agnes Pryor, and was a USO worker at Camp Belvoir, where she met the Captain met.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Charles were in Washington last week for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Baker. And any number of the town social workers offed to Atlantic City for the national conference, last week. About were Flozella Clark, Dollie Walker, Kathleen Carter, Harriet Peal, Aurelia Taylor, Muriel Johnson, Cecil Scott.

At Liberty Hotel for the same meeting were Lester Granger of New York, A. J. Allen of this town, both of the Urban League; the Rev. E. J. Edwards, Mrs. A. Hall, H. Sewall, of hereabouts; U. M. Spiller of Norfolk, L. N. Armwood, executive secretary of the Jacksonville, Fla. Urban League; Leo Bohanon, who holds a similar post in Omaha, Neb. and Dukye Wood and Avia Jackson, supervisors of music in the city school system, were in Detroit this week to the National Convention of Musicians.

And the P. D. G. Pennintons hosted Marie Wilson, Vera Gandy, the Robert Lewises of Washington, the Harry Austins of New York City, and Dr. David Payne of the University of Edinborough, last week.

Congressman and Mrs. Adam Powell (Hazel Scott) came over for dinner with the Lloyd Bardolphs, Wednesday evening. Mrs. Powell right back to Washington. Fifth guest at dinner was Charles Dorsey.

Mrs. Eloise Pettress, wife of Dr. Petress of Elyria, Ohio, is here visiting relatives, namely, the Harold A. Clarks and Roy H. Clark for two weeks. A bridge party and a luncheon is being given for her by the hostess. She will be the week end guest of Dr. and Mrs. Carson of Wilmington, Del.

CALENDAR MUSTS

Scheduled time for the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority and Urban League's one-day conference on "Problems of the Woman Worker" is May 15; for Club Waconsia's introduction "Tea Time" is the Second; the Postal Alliance Auxiliary's presentation of William Beasey is May 23; Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity's dance, this Friday evening, and Alpha Phi Fraternity's formal prom, the 30th.

And chalk up for summer affairs of interest, the National Convention of the Frontiers Club, which meets here in August. W. Emerson Brown heads the committee on arrangements. The boys' wives are being organized as an auxiliary to perk up the social and of the meet.

The wedding of Doris Buckner and Orashio Jackson, here, Saturday, gave the twon the season's most fashionable wedding, and the bride the biggest treasure of loot I've seen in a long time—ranging from a family bible to a room filled with tables which in turn were filled with silver—plus two other rooms of items. And fetching the bride's bouquet has given Fernie Saunders an idea.

MRS. WILLIAMS PARTY HONOREE

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Williams celebrated her birthday with a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Snead, 1028 N. Mount St., Saturday.

Guests were:

Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson, Mrs. Stukes, Miss Ruth Williams, Robert Snead Mr. and Mrs. Morris Conway, Miss Margaret Tully;
