POULTRY NOTES.

Simple Treatment For Early Symptoms.

BY MICHAEL K. BOYER.

While the writer holds that it is not profitable to resort to much poultry doctoring, inasmuch as if the fowls are even apparently cured they are unreliable as breeding stock, he still feels that to give prompt treatment in the early stages is a wise act.

Reviewing the more common ailments in the poultry yard, we learn these facts: In the early stages of bumble-foot, we can spread the corn by painting liberally with tincture of iodine, daily, for a week. Bumble-foot is caused by having too high perches or roosting places. In flying down, the fowl's feet often come in contact with some hard, sharp object, which causes a bruise—resulting in the corn.

When our hens are allowed to become overfat, a disorder of the oviduct is often the result which causes it to "break down behind." It really is no disease — merely a penalty for injudicious feeding. The best remedy known is to kill and eat all such specimens. They are not sick birds.

Canker is a disgusting ailment, but generally in the start it can be checked by several applications of fine salt rubbed on the sore spots. For drops of aconite in a half pint of drinking water, given daily for a week or more, is effective in cases of catarrh.

Chicken-pox can be successfully treated by anointing the head and wattles with carbolated vaseline, after having first bathed with hot water. A one-grain quinine pill, given each night for three nights or a week, will also work wonders in cases of colds.

Cases of costiveness can be relieved by adding 10 drops of sulphate of magnesia to each pint of drinking water, for enlarged or sour crop a half teaspoonful of baking soda to a quart of drinking water added daily for a few days is excellent. During time of treatment feed sparingly. Cases where the bird is crop bound have been successfully treated by giving the bird all the warm coffee that can be forced into its crop. The dose should be repeated several times.

When a bird is debilitated it needs something nourishing so as to build up the wasting tissues. There is nothing better than a raw fresh egg every morning, until the fowl shows signs of recovery. Then it can be changed to a little cooked meat, and a little muriate of iron added to the drinking water. When it is noticed that a bird is mopish, but otherwise seems in good health, this sluggishness can be quickly remedied by giving a family liver pill—just the kind that you take yourself when you seem out of sorts. Repeat the dose each night for three nights in succession. If possible, allow the bird free range over a grass plot during the day time.

Slight cases of diarrhoea can be greatly benefited by adding a few drops of spirits of camphor to the drinking water. Also add finely ground charcoal to the soft feed. Nothing better than linseed meal for indigestion. Give a gill in the soft feed, to each dozen hens. A teaspoonfull of fenugreek added to the mash for every ten fowls is also a good remedy.

A pill made of a half grain of quinine, one grain of sulphate of iron, and five grains of phosphate of lime, is just the thing for cases of legweakness. A more simple remedy is ten drops of tincture of nux vomica in a quart of drinking water. A pill of asafoetide, about the size of a pea, given night and morning, is highly recommeneded for cases of limberneck.

When the fowl "rattles in the throat" it is evidence that there is some bronchial affection. This "rattling" will be more plainly noticed at night when the fowls are roosting. Give a half teaspoonful, every other morning, of a mixture composed of equal parts of vinegar and water. If this is not effective, treat with a mixture of one part of spirits of turpentine with four parts of sweet oil, giving ten drops daily.

There is no more effective remedy for scaly legs than to coat them with gas tar, allowing the preparation to remain on the legs until it wears off. The scales as a rule, come off with the tar. To make a still more complete job of it, after the tar has worn off, wash the legs with warm water and carbolic soap, and after wiping dry, apply a preparation of one-third carbolic acid to two-thirds glycerine. The glycerine has a tendency to soften and bring out the color on the shanks and toe that may have become harsh and dry. A drop of glycerine is also a sovereign remedy forsore eyes.

Linseed meal is made by grinding flaxseed from which the oil has been more or less completely extracted. "Old Process" contains more fat and somewhat less protein than "New Process" linseed meal.

Gluten meal and gluten feeds are by-products left in the manufacture of starch and glucose from Indian corn. Corn consists largely of starch. The waste product from the manufacture of starch or sugar is relatively much richer in oil and protein than corn. Many factories are moving part of the corn from the waste, so that some gluten meals carry but little oil.

Mr. Rumsey Anthony, the Queen Anne's horticulturist and floriculturist has been supplying the local markets with various kinds of flower plants, as well as vegetable plants. The flowers which consist of asters, scarlet sage, garden pinks, etc., retail for 25 cents per dozen.

IN THE STUD FOR 1913

JOHN B., by Bedworth, Jr., 2 06¾, and his 3-YEAR-OLD TWIN COLTS, COMET AND STAR, who are owned by Mr. J. P. Brown, near Church Hill, Queen Annes county, Md.

JOHN B. is the only horse known here who has living twin colts to his credit.

JOHN B. won his race at Tolchester last year in 2.26¾, with only 7 days' training, and has a matinee record of 2.21 on Mr. Bell's track.

JOHN B. is a beautiful bay, 15¾ hands high and weighs about 1100 pounds, and considering his breeding, speed, conformation and qualities, he is second to none in the State. His colts are all of the very finest and they have shown as much if not more speed than any other horse' colts in the two counties.

He will travel in Kent and Queen Annes counties this season.

JOHN B.'s terms are: $15.00 to insure a mare with foal; $10.00 season, payable at end of season; $5.00 single leap. Parties wishing the service of John B. can either phone or write to

WM. C. A. THOMPSON, His Owner,

Or Apply to JAMES FLOYD, His Groom, who will call on you.
