ROBBERS WITH CIRCUS.

Residents of Eastern Shore Towns Fleeced by Skin Games and Fake Purchases.

James Hobbs, a well-known retired farmer, of the Third District of Caroline county, was relieved of $325 in cash in a sideshow tent at a circus which exhibited here Wednesday. Mr. Hobbs enlisted the sheriff's office Thursday in an effort to get his money back, and, with Deputy Sheriff Temple, followed the circus to Dover, without success.

Returning from Chestertown Saturday Hobbs and Temple, who were accompanied by Lawyer Jacob E. Ellwanger, said that they had recovered the whole sum lost by Hobbs from the manager of the circus, after threatening legal proceedings. Hobbs was loitering in the snake tent at the circus and says he was offered a marvelous electric belt at a ridiculous price, and, putting it on to test its qualities, was dazed and the sharpers got his money. At Dover Thursday the gamblers and fakirs are reported to have carried on a huge business.

Gamblers and fakirs of various kinds had a field day in Denton on Wednesday. A number of venturesome visitors to the circus grounds report losing sums of money, from $10 to $57, in some of the sure things offered for their entertainment. A vendor of razors who began by selling razors for a dollar and handing the money back to the buyers, cleaned up a good pile and left behind a large supply of 10-cent razors.

The same "skin" games were practiced in Chestertown on Friday. One of our citizens spent $7 for 7 10-cent razors, another was fleeced out of $5 and another out of $10. The most notorious gang of fakirs and gamblers accompanied the show here that has been seen in years, and Sheriff McKee and his deputies were kept busy all day recovering lost money. The sheriff threatened to hold the show management here unless they returned the Hobbs money and also the money fleeced from several of out citizens.

WOULD MEAN CHEAPER ROADS

Removal of the Asphalt Tariff Would Benefit Taxpayers.

Representatives in congress and the senators from this state can strike an effective blow for cheaper good roads and asphalt streets by insisting that the new tariff law shall admit asphalt free of duty. There is no question of protection involved, for there is no lake or natural asphalt in the United States. The competing domestic materials, such as oil asphalt and tar, are so much lower in price than the imported product that they need no protection. In fact, about all the existing tariff—$3.00 a ton on refined asphalt and $1.50 on crude—has done is to result in adding these amounts to the taxpayer's bill for good roads and streets. The tariff tax is not only added to the price of the imported product, but it makes it possible for the producers of similar materials to increase their charges as well without coming into price competition with the imported asphalts.

Some kind of bituminous "binder" to hold the stone in place is used in most roads in these days of heavy traffic. To make roads of this kind as cheap as possible everybody interested in the good roads movement ought to work for tariff-free bitumens.

The saving that will result from the removal of the tariff will not go to the asphalt people. They have promised to reduce their prices by the amount of the tariff if it is cut off, and trade considerations would make them do this in any case. The saving will go to the taxpayers, who can spend the money on additional construction that they could not otherwise afford, or they can keep the money in their pockets. Their bills for roads and streets have gone up tremendously in recent years; there are millions more to pay, and there seems to be no good reason for adding to these millions by continuing the tariff tax on good roads and streets.
