2 Out-of-Town Students Defy Community Feeling

courses our students are taking.

These instructors are Dr. Lucy Scott, director of teacher training at Towson State Teachers College; Miss Mary Ki Carl, instructor in psychology, University of Maryland, and Luke E. Ebersole, instructor in sociology, University of Maryland.

College One Table

For another thing, the class of two students will find no need to use the seven rooms and the school library for which the original program called. To date the class has been doing very well using only one table in the library.

Dr. Kabat was unable to say how much the State is spending to operate this school for six weeks for only two students. But the cost must reach quite a figure, insomuch as several instructors who had contracted for the jobs are being paid although they are not teaching.

9 at Assembly Meeting

At the first of several "assembly meetings of all students and faculty" on Wednesday afternoon, Harold Benjamin, dean of the University of Maryland's College of Education sought to justify the segregated graduate school.

When he finished his dramatic half-hour address, the audience of nine persons applauded. It could have been out of politeness only.

Declaring that like all University of Maryland employees and all teachers in the State, he works for the people of Maryland and not for State educational officials, Mr. Benjamin admitted that "it is an extremely complex and intricate job to determine what the people of a State want and need in the way of education."

Holds Self Unbiased

Speaking on "Higher Education for Marylanders," Mr. Benjamin said that it would not occur to him to address his "employers" by distinction of religion, composition or family background, and that "I would wish that I need not address them as white and colored in this connection."

"If I need to speak on the higher education of teachers in Maryland in terms of white and colored races, it is because I am in the slightest degree more concerned about the education or the general welfare of one race than another," he maintained.

Lauds Jim-Crow System

Of the "set of historical and geographic circumstances which have given Marylanders a bi-racial system of education," he had this to say:

"That general pattern will not soon be altered drastically. As a teacher in this State, I accept that system, first because I know it is the firm, held policy of the great majority of the people; and second, because I know in which ways we can improve this situation to get results which are generally impossible of attainment in monoracial educational systems."

Referring to the segregated summer programs for colored teachers at Douglass and at Bowie State Teachers College, Dean Benjamin explained, "In our innocence we thought these programs were part of what could become one of the very finest systems of teacher education in this country. Some of our people tell us we are wrong."

Upholds Inferior Facilities

Of the protest against Douglass as a high school building, he said, "In-service classes for teachers are held in secondary and elementary school buildings throughout the country."

Pointing out that the university has held classes for white teachers in high school buildings and that the NYU extension courses were held at Douglass, he asked Are not public schools the laboratories of public school teachers?"

On the complaint that separate classes will encourage segregation, he asked "Do our people feel that denying colored teachers this course is a step in the direction of giving them more nearly equal professional opportunities?"

Hints Capacities Are Limited

Then he inquired whether the NYU courses or graduate courses offered by a colored State college would show any less segregation than those offered by the University of Maryland.

Dean Benjamin held that it would be advantageous to maintain separate undergraduate colleges "with the curricula directed toward the cultural problems and the outstanding capacities of colored students in certain fields, as venia Station, last Saturday afternoon, and gave him her Riggs Ave. address.

She said the man swung the cab out Lanvale St. from Mt. Royal Ave. and began locking the doors, saying, "You'll go where I take you. I'm not going into the North west section."

It was when he was fumbling with the catch on her side of the cab that the door flew open and she fell out to the street, Mrs. Morrison charged.

Driver Says He Wasn't There

Although she identified Serkins, her companion, Miss Means, could not. It was Miss Means, however, who took the number through which the driver was traced.

At the magistrate's hearing Serkins declared he had never seen either of the women before. He produced a manifest, attempting to show that he was not at Pennsylvania Station that afternoon.

Attack Suspect To Be Examined left on vacation Wednesday, it is possible that Burrough's trial may be postponed until the jurist's return in August.

3 of 4 Point Out Youth

However, the case could be set before another judge at the request of Burroughs's attorney.

The youth has been identified by three of the four women whose attacks accosted them on the street on different occasions and led them to deserted spots where they were forced to strip naked and submit to his perverted desires.

On several of the occasions, a broken bottle was used in the attacks and once, a woman's umbrella.

Burroughs pleaded innocent at his arraignment. He is also charged with robbing the various women.

in music and the arts, for example.

"But for a State of this size to contemplate two public university systems is to look forward to a pair of second rate institutions instead of one system of the highest quality," he declared.

He should have said "instead of only one."

Would Swallow Morgan

Dean Benjamin said he agreed with Dr. H. C. (Curly) Byrd, president of the University of Maryland that Morgan State College should become a part of the university, under management of its board of regents.

Then he made a plea that the segregated teacher-training program be given "a sporting chance" for operation for at least a year.

"During that year," he suggested, "let a small committee of colored and white educators examine the program to see whether it indeed tends toward greater segregation or whether it tends toward the better education which is the only force that will make segregation less operative."

Asks Co-operative Programs

He also advocated: "Let the University of Maryland work out programs of graduate preparation in co-operation with the colored colleges of the State in an attempt to further explore techniques by which a truly State system of graduate work for colored teachers may best be developed."

In conclusion, Mr. Benjamin declared, "I believe that Maryland is going to have a very great system of higher education for all its people.

"I do not believe that that system will be launched by white men or colored ones who are too conscious of their skin color."

Glossed Over Inequities

With all that speech, Dean Benjamin failed to justify any of the objectionable phases of the teachers' program at Douglass.

That the school is segregated, there is no denial; that the facilities are unequal, there is no denial; and that the equipment is inadequate, there is no denial.

And those are still the issues of community opposition and resentment.

INGRAM STORY FEATURED AT NAACP CONFERENCE

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Mrs. Geneva Rushen, daughter of Mrs. Rosa L. Ingram, at the NAACP conference June 27, will describe the tragedy inflicted on her mother and two teen-age brothers who are serving life terms for slaying a white Georgia sharecropper.

minded the 10,000 persons who heard him that Mr. Dewey was responsible for the State's strong health program and for the legislation giving all residents the right to equal education.

The text of his speech follows:

"It is my high honor and privilege to second the nomination of the great Governor of the State of New York.

"The Republican Party was born to make men free, to rekindle faith in America and her future as a free Republic with ever broadening opportunity for all. The Party of Abraham Lincoln, in adopting its platform this morning, again re-affirmed that faith.

"From the ranks of the Republican Party his grandfather helped to bring to life, it is fitting that there should step an American of this century who has proved by deeds and action that he can and will breathe life and meaning into that faith.

Work for All Groups Cited

"It is a fact that in exact conformity with the 1944 and 1948 national platforms of our Party, his administration has enacted pioneer laws protecting all workers in their fundamental rights of employment, regardless of their race, color or creed.

"Women workers are guaranteed equal pay for equal work. These laws have proved to be unqualified successes.

"Under him, the security of coverage by the minimum wage law has been extended to half a million workers who were previously unprotected.

"Broadened opportunity must keep pace with broadened security. Under his administration, it has done so. Since the end of the war, 130,000 new businesses have been established in his State—130,000 new businesses with a million new jobs, more production and better living for the workers of his State and, hence, for the nation.

His TB Program Extolled

"He has guided a great public health program, and has expanded services for the aged, the blind, the mentally ill and dependent children.

"As a part of that program, tuberculosis is being successfully fought and will be wiped out in his State in twenty years. Without cost to the individual and without prejudice, any man, woman or child suffering from this dread disease may go to a hospital and stay until cured.

"He has opened the door of opportunity for public service careers to those most qualified, regardless of race, color or creed.

"He has signed laws protecting the right of all Americans to educational opportunity without prejudice or discrimination.

"Here in the very birthplace of our ideals—the cradle of our liberties, we must give America a man who will lead us as the trustee of human freedom.

"We must nominate a man who will dynamically pursue the great American dream of liberty, opportunity and justice for all.

"Mr. Chairman, I second the nomination of the greatest American of our time—the next President of the United States—Thomas E. Dewey."

into the body of the diminutive young woman.

Jealousy Held Motive

Members of the victim's family and friends said she had been threatened previously and that the accused had acted insanely jealous.

At the police court hearing, this week, Knowles made no statement before being remanded to jail.

Shooting Accidental

In the Sullivan case, Ernest L. Perkins, attorney for the accused, explained that the shooting was accidental and that it occurred while the two men were toying with a revolver.

The accident happened near a tavern at Lanvale St. and Pulaski Ave. on June 11, a few minutes after Hall had treated the patrons of the tavern.

The defense argument was that upon leaving the cafe, Hall met his friend Sullivan and that while at the latter's automobile, the gun was fired unintentionally.

Sullivan took the dying man to Provident Hospital, where his wife ebbed out, and according to police, was co-operative with them during the ensuing investigation.

Magistrate Thomas L. Gutpatrick, who presided over the police court trial, ruled the mishap accidental and freed Sullivan.

Accused of Thefts, 3 Held in $20,000 Bail

A Robert St. domestic, her husband and another man have held late Monday for action of the grand jury under bail totaling $20,000 in connection with the theft of miscellaneous articles and cash from six homes in northwest Baltimore.

Mrs. Robertson, who gave her address as 268 Robert St., was charged with the theft of jewelry, clothing and cash valued at more than $2,200 from six homes where she had been employed as a maid.

Her husband, Joseph Robertson, also of the Robert St. address, was charged with being an accessory; while Joseph Coates, of 2711 Spellman Rd., was charged with receiving stolen goods.

The couple were arrested last week during a domestic argument. While being questioned, one of the pair dropped a remark which gave police a clue to the reported house thefts.

Watchmakers Attend Convention

Attending the annual convention of the United Horological Association of America here at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, were John H. Sears (left), founder and president of the Sears Watchmaking Company of Cleveland, and Melvin H. Conley, director of the Boone-Higgins Trade School of Memphis, Tenn. Both are teachers in watchmaking and repairing.

Ideals, Hopes of June Grads Stated in School Yearbook

The dreams, hopes, ideals and ambitions of 380 June graduates are expressed in the yearbook publications of Carver Vocational, Dunbar and Douglass High Schools.

The 234 Douglass graduates have dedicated their "Survey" theme to "June Class '48 Dreams of a True Democracy."

Thus, their subjects for discussion include the meaning of democracy in the schools, the youth of today, to freedom of speech, to the individual and to America.

Charles J. Dungee, in writing of "Tomorrow's View of Democracy," speaks of the day when "all men are free to seek happiness according to their own desires and capabilities so that we may be efficient, respectable, law-abiding citizens."

Democracy's Menaces

Karen Robinson speaking on "Menaces To a True Democracy," writes of racial discrimination and religious intolerance as hindrances to freedom.

Earl R. Moses treating the subject of "Universal Citizenship" asks, "in these days, with the atomic bomb a constant threat to civilization, with the growing differences and tensions between nations, shall we refuse to even consider the idea of a world government?"

The Douglass "Survey" is dedicated to "all those who act justly, toward all men, remember that they believe in justice for all men." Ralph W. Reckling is principal.

Value of Tradesmen

The pictures of its 85 June graduates is centered about the theme or the value of the tradesman into today's world.

Quoting from Carlyle, "Blessed is the man who had found his work and work . . ," the yearbook contains photographs of the various courses offered at the school.

These include business training, trowel trade, cookery, auto mechanics, shoe repair, electrical training, dressmaking, cosmetology, interior decorating, tailoring, woodwork, machinery, and cabinet making. Saul M. Perdue is principal.

Remember Former Principal

The "Maroon and Gold" of Dunbar's 61 graduates, is dedicated to the school's ex vice principal, Mrs. Vivian E. Cook.

The article listing things which "12 years of schooling" have "done for us" states,

"They have opened our minds to the fundamentals . . . to the world around us . . . to the world we accept; they have shown us the purposeful directed practice makes perfect;

Instilled Honesty

"they have developed endurance and toleranc, and instilled honesty in us; and they have sown us the benefits of learning."

Irma Anderson writes an article which declares that high school prepares good citizens.

She says, "Now, as always, education is a vital factor in preparing and fostering ideals for our men and women of tomorrow, who will lead their country in intelligence."

Carrington L. Davis is principal.

Norman Thomas Hits Draft Law

Norman Thomas, Socialist Presidential candidate, charged this week that: "We have the draft because President Truman and Congress find it easy to substitute this for a sound policy."

Urging repeal of the draft law, he warned that conscription gives us "an inflationary arms economy that can only lead to depression and war."

The Socialist nominee said that conscription in Europe never prevented war or guaranteed victory in war but was a major factor in conditioning men for the acceptance of the totalitarian State.

Counsel Aid Quits People's Court

The service rendered to tenants by the tenants' counsel which has been stationed in People's Court since last August was terminated as of last week end.

The attorney was provided by the Legal Aid Bureau, a Community Chest free legal service agency.

Explaining why the service was withdrawn, Gerald Monsman, executive director, said,

"Public misunderstanding of the rights of landlords and tenants under the Federal Housing and Rent Act which became effective April 3 does not appear to be as great as was the confusion caused by the passage of the 1947 act.

Aware of Rent Control

"Landlords are apparently aware that rent control is still in full force and effect, and tenants feel secure in the protection accorded them by the new act," he pointed out.

"Last summer, there was so much confusion as to the continuation of rent control that it was deemed necessary to have an attorney available to give legal advice and services to tenants applying for such information at the People's Court.

Tenants who still need such services and advice should apply direct to the Legal Aid Bureau, 7 St. Paul St.

Youth Convicted On Slaying Count

First-Degree Murder Sentence Postponed

Nineteen-year-old Richard Cox was convicted, Friday, of first-degree murder in the slaying of a grocer's son during an attempted burglary at 800 Druid Hill Ave.

Sentence was withheld by Judge Herman Moser pending a possible new trial motion by Cox's attorneys, James R. Compton and Ernest Perkins.

With a conviction of first-degree murder, sentence of life imprisonment or hanging is mandatory.

Burglar Fired Fatal Shots

The fatal shooting of William Richmond, white, 26, occurred on the early morning of May 12, when the man entered his father's room about 4 a.m. and surprised a burglar who had climbed through the window.

The intruder shot Richmond in the chest and stomach and fled. Cox sought in connection with six other burglaries, was arrested On May 26, by Officer Jacob Simonson, who held him for investigation.

After questioning by Lt. Alvah Burke and other officers, Cox, who lives at 500 St. Marys St., reportedly went with them in a police car and re-enacted the crime for them.

Full Confession Reported

He also led them to a 45-calibre automatic at his brother's home in the 1800 block Payson St. and allegedly made a full confession of having committed the killing, it was said.

Cox took the stand only in an attempt to prevent introduction of the confession by charging that it was given under duress. He contended that the officers beat him into submission.

His attorneys argued that Cox was never identified as the killer and that it was questionable whether the gun he obtained for $15 was the gun used in the fatal shooting.

#961 A suit that lived a triple life is practical and fun—witness this sleek plaid rayon jacket. It's a year around jacket, one day a crisp evening wraps. Slim, slender side at long pencil-line skirt reveal a pretty leg . . . and see the generous patch pockets and turn-back cuffs. News note! The smooth, woolike rayon material is Dan River's "Rivercool," a tropical-weight man's wear fabric that you'll love 12 months round. In grey or beige, both with a finely-etched monotone plaid. Sizes 12-14-16-18-20.

Look younger, feel younger with the young, natural appearing glossy patent leather hair. Not just a SLAPPY CHINSON HAIR COLORING that rubs off on pillowcases, hats, hair, hot coats, dirty-dyed hair. Doesn't rub, wash or WEAR OFF like most. No popular, foul smelling powder out of TWO BOTTLES. Not a dye, but a tint with water, pleasant bottle and save what's left for touching up second treatment. Use it on mustache or waves beautiful. Not sticky, greasy, messy. Not a paint job. Not a coat. Not a film. Not a wash. Not a dye. Not a powder. Not a lotion. Not a shampoo. Not a rinse. Not a bleach. Not a stain
