Machinery for Draft Set Up as Deadline Nears

Col. Henry C. Stanwood, State director, has moved into high gear in setting up the machinery for handling the drafting of youth eligible for military service, which is scheduled to begin on Aug. 30.

From that date, next Saturday, through Sept. 18 eligible young men between the ages of 18 and 26 must register with their local draft board.

A plan similar to the one used in drafting manpower for World War II in October of 1940 will be followed.

Same Board Setup

A total of 66 draft boards, 26 of them located in Baltimore City, and the others scattered throughout the State have been formed the same just as they were eight years ago.

An incomplete list of public school buildings where potential eligibles may register was also published.

The list includes Schools 106, at Sharp and Hill Sts., Dunbar High, Booker T. Washington Junior High, No. 100 at Mount and Saratoga Sts., and Douglass High.

In order to simplify registration, C. D. Machin, also of the State Selective Service staff announced a number of major points.

1. Registrants who will be away on vacation when their date for registration arrives, must register in the city they are visiting, giving their Baltimore or Maryland home address. The cards will be subsequently forwarded to the proper local boards.

2. Persons sick in hospitals, seamen away from home, and men in similar positions must register within five days after their release or return to the country.

3. Any youth who has previous military service must bring a record of his service with him.

4. Men in the various reserve units of the armed forces must bring along evidence of their reserve status.

After the registration has been completed on Sept. 18, when the 19-year-olds have finished signing their cards, drafting is expected to begin about October 1.

Victim of Train Sent for Burial

NEWARK

The body of H. D. Vaughan, 60, of Hawthorne, Fla., who was struck and killed by a Pennsylvania Railroad relief train on Aug. 16, was shipped to Gainesville, Fla., for funeral and burial on Thursday from Beckett's funeral home.

The accident occurred at the E. Kinney, St. overpass where Vaughan was walking South in the path of the train when he was struck.

His brother, Richard Vaughan of Gainesville, and daughter, Mrs. Marie Collins, of Dunellen, Fla., who identified the body at the city morgue two days after the accident, said that Vaughan had recently visited friends in New York City.

They were unable to explain his reason for being in Newark.

A. I. Bimbridge, the train conductor, said Vaughan was not seen by the engineer until the train was bearing down on him.

Vaughan was carrying a suitcase and was believed to be heading to the South St. station.
