Vacation Varieties Highlight Season's End

with Lula Jones Garrett

By LOUISE K. HINES

The folks are rolling in from points far off, to find cooling breezes on the old home front, enough to take the edge off of the sting of boning down to the old grind come the Tuesday after Labor Day.

There are Janet Gladden and Ardell Jones, all thrills from a short but lively jaunt in Nova Scotia and Quebec. Atlantic City was the cool spot chosen by Marshall and Emma Bright and Josiah F. Henry.

Also back from Canada are the George Bowmans of Bloom St.

"A fine place to stay, and the first time the Metropole Hotel was opened to colored guests," writes a corps of local Elks who hied off to attend the national convention.

They were Pearl Brown, daughter ruler of Great Southern Temple No. 30; Ardelia E. Gaitmore, Evelyn Travers, Ethel Gross, Arneeda Gooden; the G. Basses and the Charles Coopers.

VACATIONING MINISTERS RETURNING HOME

Local ministers and their families are beginning to return home after their vacations including the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Daniels of Madison Ave. Presbyterian Church, who with cunning son, Reggie, Jr., all boast a Jersey tan.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. J. Timothy Boddie of New Shiloh Baptist, and son, Billy, basked in staid Boston, while Marcia took respite in the beauties of New Haven. Vashti revelled at Camp Atwater, and son, Timothy, Jr., trekked from Virginia to Philadelphia.

With wife and son, the Rev. Ward D. Yerby of Perkins Square Baptist Church, vacationed in New York as guest of his two sisters, Mesdames Genevieve Johnson and Georgia Dickens.

Scads of the town's pedagogues are hitting it homeward, all set for the two-day institute which opens on Tuesday, among them Ruth L. Russell and Alice E. Keys, with memories of New York's delights fresh in their minds.

The town's visitors this week included Hugh E. Matthews, attorney, of Long Beach, Calif., who was guest of his sister, Mrs. Marguerite Bailey.

Niece, Mrs. Althea Cornish gathered the local clan together for dinner at her Morgan College campus home, ere his departure.

Then Miss Thelma Hayes of Norfolk is visiting her sister Mrs. Rufus Wells of Day Village, ere she pushes on to New York to visit another sister, Mrs. Zelah B. Nathan.

Miss Hayes is a teacher at the Norfolk Division of Virginia State College.

Here from New York and New Jersey to see the home folks is Mrs. Betty Hall.

AFRO EMPLOYEE FETED BEFORE LEAVING

Just about the most feted person in town this week is the AFRO's good hearted and loyal Mary Sutton Hoover, who pulls up stakes this week-end to join her husband, Billy, who will open a business in Columbia, S.C.

She has been dined by fellow workers, Jane Freeland and Josephine Wallace, and winds up as guests of the William I. Gibsons tonight (Friday).

All week long mementoes from the "AFRO — AMERICANS" have been finding their way to the desk where she has held forth in the home office for the past 14 years.

Prior to that she worked at the AFRO office in her home town, Philly, where resides her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Sutton.

THE THOMAS KELSONS ENTERTAIN FRIENDS

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Kelson were hosts to a large group of friends at their country home in Asquasco, Md. on Sunday.

While there, some of the group went fishing, while other spent the day in various forms of sports.

In the group were:

Messrs. and Mesdames Charles M. Ringold, James A. Richardson, J. Maurice Butler, James A. Craven, Alvan S. Stanley, Lawrence E. Mason, James L. Jones, William A. Jones, Frederick T. Hicks, Virgil H. Freeman, Henry Smith, Bernard Lancaster;

Dr. Robert J. Hill; Messrs. James E. Langley, Bernard O. Benns, Robert M. Julius, Thomas P. Kelson, Dennis Hall, Arthur R. Brooks, James R. Addison, John Burleigh;

Miss Gladys Hicks, Mesdames Laura Henson, Elizabeth Benns, Irene Green, Hattie Woods, Grace Vaughn, Annie Middleton, Zeraline Locks, Edith Mock, Eleanor Mitchell.

Who can pay CASH?

VERY few people who build or buy a new home can pay for all of it in cash out of their savings.

Most businesses have the same problem. Some can save enough out of earnings to expand and improve their plants, but many must go to investors for construction money.

In the telephone business the margin of savings is small even in normal times. Today the margin is smaller than ever — insignificant in comparison with the construction expenditures required to meet public demand for service.

A home builder makes a down payment from savings and borrows the rest. We can't make any down payment. All the money must come from investors — part from people who lend us money through purchases of Bell System bonds; the rest from people who buy stock in the business and become part owners.

These investors have faith in the future of the Telephone Company. They entrust their money to us because they believe their investments will be safe and will pay them a fair return.

They invest on faith. We spend on faith. We have faith that people will always want and need good telephone service—and will be willing to pay a fair price for it.

'Wilberforce Stronger Than Ever,' Hill Says

XENIA, Ohio—Answering what he termed "an implication that the administration of Wilberforce University is now seeking its way out of an impossible impasse," Dr. Charles L. Hill, president, submitted figures from an accountant's report of June 8 to show that the school's position was "stronger than ever before."

The figures show, he says, that whereas the AME Church contributed $22,231 to the university for the year ending Apr. 30, 1947, it raised the figure to $81,490 for the year ending Apr. 30, 1948, and has underwritten a budget of $150,000 to be raised during the next academic year.
