Bishop Gomez Sued by Cleric

Failure to Take Over African District Cited

WASHINGTON

Because Bishop Joseph Gomez failed to report for duty in the 15th AME District, West Africa, within 60 days after assignment, the Rev. William H. Hall has asked the District Court to enjoin Arthur S. Jackson, financial secretary and treasurer, from paying him any salary or emoluments until the next General Conference in 1952.

The Rev. Mr. Hall, pastor of St. Peter Church, Harrisburg, Ky., charges that the Bishops' Council, of which Bishop Gomez is a member, violated a church law when it transferred him to the 10th District, after the Quadrennial had assigned him to South Africa.

The Quadrennial met in Kansas City, May 5-17, 1946, and the Council met several weeks later in Atlantic City.

Church Law Sidestepped

The law which the Council is accused of violating was adopted as a resolution by the Quadrennial and provides that a bishop assigned to a foreign field must take up duties there with in 60 days.

It also stipulates that he is ineligible to serve in any other district until service in the field to which he was assigned has been completed. Bishop Gomez did not go to Africa.

The action of the Council in nullifying and voiding the church law does not confer upon Gomez any rights in the 10th District, it is contended in the Rev. Mr. Hall's suit.

Lacks a District?

The cleric emphasizes that Bishop Gomez has no district now, but that the financial secretary has been paying him a salary as bishop in the 10th District since the Quadrennial.

Unless the District Court restrains Mr. Jackson from paying Bishop Gomez, he will continue to do so until the next Quadrennial. To do this would be in violation of the church law, and cause irreparable damages to all the churches in the AME connection, the petition sets forth.

Calling Conference Alternative

The alternative, says the Kentucky cleric, would be to call an extra session of the General Conference, involving expenditures of large sums of money and long delay in time.

It would also need approval of at least two-thirds of the financial membership of the General Conference, which involves polling at least 2,360 members scattered all over the world.

The alternative is out of the question, emphasizes the Rev. Mr. Hall; and he wants the District Court to enjoin Mr. Jackson, temporarily and permanently, from paying Bishop Gomez in connection with any activities in the 10th or 15 Districts. B. D. Parker is his attorney.

Sentence Suspended In Vote Fraud Case

Stating that he did not believe she was part of a ring engaged in tampering with election machinery, Judge Emory Niles Thursday, suspended sentence for a 20-year-old girl, who falsified her age to obtain a voter's card.

The girl, Miss Bernice Williams of the 70 block M. Appleton St., was convicted of perjury by swearing that she was 21 years old when obtaining a voter's card from the Supervisor of Elections office on Sept. 18, 1947.

Places Girl on Probation

Judge Niles told her, "If this were a case in which you were part of some ring to get false registration for an election, I would not hesitate to send you to jail.

He added that he believed, "in an irresponsible way" she made the false oath to obtain the card.

Miss Williams, represented by Ellis Levin, attorney, was placed on probation upon condition of good behaviour.

Scenes as Progressive Party Supporters Welcomed Wallace and Robeson to Baltimore

Following the mass meeting featuring Henry A. Wallace in Baltimore, Sunday night, Paul Robeson, famous singer, talked informally from the platform with well-wishers and admirers.

Mr. Robeson took time out to lend encouragement to Dr. J. E. T. Camper, Congressional candidate on the Progressive ticket, and his campaign manager, Mrs. Beatrice M. Reed.

The more than 6,000 Wallace Supporters who heard him at the Fifth Regiment Armory included many enthusiastic applauders like these, although Mr. Wallace's address was milder than others he had made on his campaign tour.

Man in Women's Togs Faces Rap

Facing charges of soliciting another man for immoral purposes, Webster Peach, 24, female impersonator of 139 N. Arisquith St., asked that his case be heard by a jury, Tuesday, and was placed under $250 bond.

When arraigned in Northwestern police court, Peach was wearing a soiled canary yellow, short sleeve sweater, fancy sport slacks, sandals and sported a fancy hairdo.

In a high pitched voice which caused Magistrate Pitpatrick to raise his eyebrows, Peach said, "I don't want my cases tried here. I'm praying a jury trial."

Nabbed With Veteran

Peach is accused of soliciting Harold McFadden, 24, a war veteran of 1216 McCulloh St., who is attending a bricklaying school.

Sgt. Fred Koenig testified he found the two men in a suspicious looking position in one of the bedrooms of a house of ill repute in the 900 block of Wilmer Ct.

As evidence against Peach, Sgt. Koenig produced a pair of "ladies," a pair of nylon hose and a pair of ladies flimsies, which he testified the impersonator was wearing.

McFadden admitted that a proposition involving $3 had been made and was released on his own recognizance to await the jury trial.

Vets of 366th Plan to Organize Unit

A group of war veterans, former members of the 366th Infantry, are endeavoring to organize a unit here to perpetuate the organization.

Spearheading the move is Casper Pigott of 1536 Lanvale St., a junior at Morgan State College, who revealed that units of the organization have been formed in New York, Boston and Washington.

Anxious to form a local unit so as to be represented at a reunion to be held in New York next month, Mr. Pigott is urging all former members of the outfit living in Baltimore to contact him at his home.

Arrest of 'Cop-Fighter' Crimps Eastside Crime

Ex-Convict Held in $1500 Bail on Charge of Trying to Shoot Investigating Officer

The crime wave in East Baltimore was dealt another knockout blow this week, in the arrest of a former convict known by officers to be a "cop-fighter."

The suspect is Freddie Williams, 24, of 1808 Ashland Ave., who following a hearing in Northeastern police court, was placed under $1,500 bail to face grand jury action.

Through his attorney, Joseph Rosenthal, Williams pleaded not guilty to charges of assaulting and attempting to shoot Officer David Hubbard, the possession of a revolver and disorderly conduct.

Police Called to Restaurant

Early Sunday, Officer Hubbard received a call to investigate a complaint from a Chinese restaurant at Orleans and Spring St. It was said that a man was there brandishing a revolver.

The restaurant is the same one in which the mother of eight children was accidentally slain by a young man recently who had become angry with the proprietor.

Officer Hubbard said that when he arrived on the scene, a young man rushed outside, then began loitering suspiciously on the sidewalk.

Hubbard said when he went outside to question the man, later identified as being Williams, the latter drew a revolver.

The officer seized Williams and the pair fell to the ground grappling with each other. During the tussle, Williams, who lost his revolver, managed to get to his feet and began to run away, Hubbard said.

Suspect Ex-Convict

In his haste, Williams ran into a nearby wall and was almost knocked unconscious. It was at this point that Officer Hubbard again seized and subdued the gunman, he testified.

Williams, who is the son of a minister, was recently released from prison after serving an 18 month term for a fatal shooting.

The most recent Orleans St. incident resulted in renewed requests, Tuesday, by East Baltimore residents for more adequate police protection.

Following the slaying of the mother of eight children, a group of residents carried their complaints to Police Commissioner Hamilton R. Atkinson and Chief Inspector M. Joseph Wallace.

Crime Upsurge Reported

They cited mounting reports of burglaries, assaults, robberies, daring gun play, vandalism and general disorder.

The action of the citizens was fostered by the Tenants' Council of Douglass Housing Project and members of the 5th Ward Progressive Party Club.

Leaders first appealed to the Baltimore Housing Authority for private guards to patrol the Douglass Homes Project, but were advised that the job could be better handled by regular city police.

The first week of activity by specially detailed officers resulted in the arrest of 11 persons, who were fined from $25 to $100 for various offenses.

Magistrate August Kozlovsky, who imposed the fines, presiding in Northwestern police court, has promised to co-operate with other authorities in combatting the crime surge.

Despite this police activity, however, the Tenants Council of Douglass Homes and the Progressive Party Club of the 6th Ward again called on the Baltimore Housing Authority for guards to patrol the project.

Ask Added Protection

In a meeting with Mr. Ashe of the BHA on Tuesday, a delegation from the resident groups advised that a single colored policeman had been assigned to patrol the project area at night by the Police Department.

Asking that additional policemen be provided, they contended that a single officer could not adequately protect the residents of the area and that the officer on duty himself was in danger while making his rounds alone.

Howard to Speak at NAACP Rally

Charles P. Howard, Des Moines newspaper publisher who gave the keynote address at the Progressive Party Founding Convention, last July, will be among speakers appearing at the NAACP monthly membership meeting, Sunday.

The meeting will be held at 3 p.m. in Sharp St. Memorial Methodist Church.

To Air Parties' Rights Stand

Mr. Howard will represent the Progressive party on a symposium on civil rights, Z. Alexander Looby, Nashville attorney, will represent the Republican party.

The representatives will give their parties' stand on the civil rights issue.

Another feature of the meeting will be an address by Miss Marion O. Bond, NAACP field secretary, who will talk on the "NAACP in the Fight for Civil Rights."

Music will be furnished by the Union Baptist Church Choir, under the direction of Houston Jackson, with Sherman Smith at the organ.

BHA'S WORK EMPHASIZED:

Housing Exhibit Held in Gilmor Auditorium

In the last 118 years, the process of house-building has changed with the progress of civilization. A man could build his own home at a cost of only $360 in 1830; and that same house would be worth $1000 today.

A model of such a house which still stands on Mott St., is a part of an exhibit now being shown at the Gilmor Homes auditorium, Gilmor St., near Freestman.

The exhibit has been under way since Wednesday and will continue until Sept. 26. Visitors are welcome between the hours of 5 and 10 p.m., daily, and from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m., Sundays.

Community Council Sponsor

The Northwest Community Council, with the co-operation of the Gilmor Homes, is the sponsor and the exhibit was produced by the Peale Museum, with the co-operation of the health department, the Redevelopment Commission and the Baltimore Housing Authority.

Highlighting the exhibit are the models of houses, old and new, contrasting slum and redeveloped areas. There are, also, examples of materials now used in modern buildings, mounted on huge charts with labels indicating their uses.

Pictures and charts reveal the development of house design, modern fabrication methods and redeveloped areas.

Charts Indicate Progress

A series of charts tells the interesting story of the progress from house-building by one man with simple tools and materials found locally, to the highly complicated, standardized large-scale methods of today.

Probably most interesting are the lantern views of past residential areas, which have now become slums.

Emphasis is put upon the work that the Baltimore Housing Authority has done in removing the blighted areas of the city.

Lecture Series Planned

In addition to the exhibit, a series of lectures has been planned.

On Wednesday, Dr. Wilbur Hunter, who is in charge of the Peale Museum, spoke. 8,000 children and 225 adults heard him.

Richard L. Steinler, director of the Redevelopment Commission, on Thursday, showed movies and spoke on "What Redevelopment Means to West Baltimore."

Tonight (Friday), Ellis Ash, director of management of the Baltimore Housing Authority, will show movies on housing. Floyd B. Hughlett, sanitarian of the city health department, will speak on Monday. On Sept. 23, Dr. Robert L. Jackson of the City Plan Commission will be the speaker.

"Youth Day" will be marked from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sept. 26, at the closing ceremony. Several marching units will take part in a parade which is planned.

Johnston Resigns as H. U. Treasurer

WASHINGTON

Rumors of an impending shake-up in the administrative setup at Howard University were confirmed this week when Virginius D. Johnston, treasurer of the university, turned in his resignation. Mr. Johnston, who is 52, had been affiliated with Howard for 17 years. No reason for the action was given by Mr. Johnston, who told the AFRO on Thursday that he would let the Mr. Johnston university issue a statement following action by the trustee board, which will meet for the first time this school year on Saturday.

Rumors current in the city for some time have been to the effect that the position of treasurer would be abolished and that of a comptroller substituted. Reports were that Frederick Stanton, assistant in the office of President Mordecai Johnson, was being considered for the new post.

Although he refused to comment on the rumors, Mr. Johnston did say that he has opened a real estate office on U St. and expects the work to be far less complicated.

Prior to coming to Howard, Mr. Johnston was secretary of the Victory Life Insurance Company in Chicago (former Victory Mutual). He holds the degree of master of business administration from Northwestern University. He did his undergraduate work at Virginia State College and Virginia Union University. Married, he lives at 133 Randolph Pl., N.W.

Parents of Seven Guilty of Neglect

There is no excuse for maintaining a filthy home in a city housing project, Judge Charles Moylan declared, Thursday, in convicting two parents on charges of neglecting their seven children.

Ranging in age from 8 months to 10 years, the children were described as living at an East Baltimore project in an apartment reeking with foul orders.

Eviction Delayed

With their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Jobes, both 28, their eviction from the apartment was stayed pending the outcome of the case in juvenile court before Judge Moylan.

Joseph H. Fritz, manager of the project, said Jobes is $201.95 back in rent payments.

He added that the man failed even to put in an appearance at People's Court tin August concerning the rent delinquency, and that eviction proceedings had been begun last Friday.

Family to Be Assisted

Judge Moylan placed the parents on probation without a verdict and assigned a social worker to keep in contact with the family. It was said that perhaps the man could raise enough money to stay the eviction proceedings for a while longer.

Policewoman Carolyn Robinson who brought the case into court, testified that she became ill when she went into the Jobes home and saw the filth there.

Bad Conditions Verified

Her description of human waste on the floor and debris strewn about was supported by Mr. Fritz and Miss Ida Caulk, project service advisor.

Mrs. Robinson said the only food she saw in the house were boxes of breakfast cereal.

Jobes declared, "I know I haven't been a perfect father," but he said he has not worked steadily, she boasted, however, that he could average $20 a week by repairing radios at his home.

No Excuse for Filth Found

Judge Moylan told the parents to "clean that place up."

He said further, "It's pretty difficult to keep clean and keep toilets in condition when you're living in alleys, but when you're living in a housing project, there's no excuse!"
