machines, quite a quantity of tape as is used in the operation of the numbers business, related paraphernalia and office supplies such as pads, money wrappers and the like.

Caught Red-Handed

The sergeant said that, when he entered, the suspects were in the midst of totaling the day's receipts. Also, he said the machines and tape were so placed that the suspects were caught as red-handed as if the raid had been staged.

Upon checking the adding machine tapes for three days, Joyce added, it was indicated that more than 8,000 plays had been made representing cash receipts of an equal amount of money.

The officer further stated that the records indicated that from 40 to 150 writers turned in their plays daily to the ring. A personal search of the 8 suspects uncovered more than $1100 in cash, it was testified.

At the conclusion of the hearing, bond was furnished for the eight and they were released pending further action.

Rookie Officer Wins Wild Chase

later found to be containing property taken from the gas station, and a maul used for hammering.

When the men ignored the officer's orders to halt he commandeered a passing auto and gave chase at an excessive rate of speed, careening around corners dangerously.

Two Suspects Escape

At the intersection of Dolphin St. and Argyle Ave., the stolen car sideswiped a parked vehicle, the property of Marion Harris of 1140 Argley Ave. It then careomed off the sidewalk, crashed through a stand of vegetables, mounted the sidewalk, crashed into the side of a house, and overturned.

Two of the occupants crawled from the wreckage, as the crews of several police radio cars pulled up and made good their escape.

A third man, however, who was pinned under the wrecked auto, was extricated and treated at Provident Hospital for lacerations of the head and hands. He was then taken to Northwestern police station for questioning.

Motorist Involved

Officers said that during the wild chase, a motorist, William Hall of 643 N. Fulton Ave., swerved sharply to avoid being struck by the stolen car and crashed his vehicle into a dwelling.

Officer Walker, appointed to the force six months ago, recently helped Federal agents in rounding up some 18 suspected peddlers of marijuana and cocaine who are awaiting trial in Criminal Court.

Paris Impresses AFRO Trip Winner

"Paris is a wonderful place and the AFRO made my dreams come true."

His wife, who plays the piano and speaks some French, is impatient to visit the opera and dress shops, but the Rev. Mr. Williams, after a trip to Versailles, is anxious to watch the United Nations Assembly in action.

The minister timidly entered the barber shop with me Wednesday and got his first haircut from a French barber. A blonde gave him a manicure and his wife, who insisted on coming along, also got a manicure.

Both laughed when the barber sprayed cologne all over the minister's head. Later we went shopping for perfumes, and the couple looked so well-dressed that people on the boulevards turned to look twice at them.

The week in Paris will be followed by a tour of Switzerland and Italy, with stopovers in Luzanne, Geneva, Venice, Florence and Rome.

The Rev. Mr. Williams was also impressed by the friendly frees and courtesy of the French as compared with the coldness of the British and still further by the fact that the French are well-dressed despite what he had heard about their poverty.

He declared "The food in England is no good, but eating on France is truly marvelous."

Luckily he asked me about handling money before he got into trouble. He was tipping with American dollars, which should be disposed of only through banks if they are declared, and all his dollars are declared and must be accounted for on departure.

Fellow-Students Talk It Over

Martin Dyer and one of his fellow-students, David Carruthers of Oregon, are caught by the camera as they stand on the steps of famous McDowell Hall at St. John's College and discuss a subject which may pertain to anything from Homer to the law of gravity.

dent and teacher. Therefore, what ordinary colleges refer to as "teacher" is "tutor" at St. John's. In frequent seminars, the subject matter of the "great book" is discussed, examined and argued.

Martin had attended one seminar by Wednesday. He enjoyed it but, "those fellows kind of left the subject once or twice."

'Let's Just Say It Happened'

Gone from the campus now are many of the young men who drew up the famous "non-racial" resolution last spring. They were graduates this year.

But those left behind who remember the student meeting prefer not to claim any credit for Martin's admission.

"Let's just say it happened, and we're glad to have him," was the way one of them put it.

And young Martin prefers to treat things in that manner too. He is appreciative of the fact that "no one is too friendly." Everyone says "hello" but nobody makes over him as if he were something special.

He occupies a private room in the freshman section of Pinkney Hall just like every other freshman. He walks to class with who ever happens to be near, and stops to discuss a certain point with whoever else happens by.

On week ends, the young student plans to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Dyer Sr., who live in Baltimore at 1010 N. Durham St.

Hopes to Become Lawyer

After the delving into Greek, astronomy and all the rest is over about four years from now, Martin hopes to become a lawyer.

But right now he is very busy getting down to work as a first-year student at St. John's. He is in, accepted, "one of the bunch," and no different. From now on, Martin is on his own.

statutes deny or deprive admission of the plaintiff to the university, they are unconstitutional and void. We refrain at this time from granting injunction relief on the assumption that the State will follow the law.

"The plaintiff is entitled to secure a postgraduate education in this State by a State institution. To this he has been denied and deprived, although his application has been duly made.

"At the same time, the education was afford by the State to other groups. The State is under Constitutional duties to provide the plaintiff with equal facilities as soon as to other students."

Last January, in passing on the case of Mrs. Ada Sipuel Fisher, barred from the University of Oklahoma Law School, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the State must provide equal facilities for colored and white students, but by-passed the constitutionality of the State's segregation laws.

Reducing Toll Is Objective

by fire will be delivered in more than 500 local churches and synagogues.

Open House at Stations

Open House at Stations will be held at all 75 stations and firehouses from Monday, Oct. 4, through Friday Oct. 9, the Fire Department has announced.

For the first time in Baltimore, mass unannounced fire drills will be held at all schools to emphasize the need for extreme care where large groups of children are gathered.

Frank F. Dorsey, chairman of the council's fire prevention committee, reported that every 24 hours six school buildings in the United States are destroyed by fire.

Pupils in Active Roles

Pupils of public and parochial schools will take an active part in the observance by carrying to their parents a home fire hazard check list which has 14 questions to be checked off as "yes" or "no."

The check list covers such well-known residential fire hazards as smoking in bed, matches within reach of children, improper electric circuits, worn out electric cords and basements filled with old papers, clothes, rags or other fuel.

An important question is the last one which is read: "Do you know that the City Fire Prevention Code now outlaws the use of portable kerosene stoves?"

Parents' Obligations

The bottom half of the list is to be signed by the parent, torn off, and returned by the child to the school where it will be placed in the hands of the Safety Council.

Parents are urged to check carefully their homes for these common fire hazards. With colder weather approaching the number of preventable fires will increase.

Rules for Housewives

This increase can be curtailed, however, if parents will compare conditions in their homes with those listed on the check list. Special attention should be given the basement where one-third of home fires begin.

Baltimore will have fewer fires this winter, Mr. Dorsey declares.

1. Furnaces are cleaned and rugs, clothing or other ignitable items stored near them are removed; and a safe metal container provided for hot ashes.

Dangerous Hazards

2. All home wiring put in by a member of the family is inspected by a licensed electrician, and pennies areremoved from fuse boxes.

3. Special care is taken to rearrange extension cords, avoiding wrapping them over bare nails or running them under rugs and all worn-looking cords are replaced.

4. All gasoline or other inflammable fluids are removed from the house and garage.

Firemen's Schedule

5. Grease accumulations are removed from stoves and grease containers placed some distance away.

During the week, uniformed firemen will visit more than 10,000 industrial plants, factories, stores and other commercial enterprises and deliver check lists concerned with industrial fire hazards.

Ivey, finally convicted of second degree murder, contended that Allen started toward him with a butcher knife when the rifle he had brought to the house for a hunting trip the next day, discharged during a struggle with the man.

A third member of the Barrett family, Theodore, 18, was sentenced to a reformatory term last year by Judge Edwin T. Dickerson.

grant this license which may prove to be the entering wedge that will change this residential neighborhood into an undesirable semi-commerical 'section."

20 Owners on Hand

More than 20 property owners from the area appeared at the hearing to protest the license.

No date has been set for a hearing in the East Baltimore case.

Speaking for voters, residents and property owners in the 1500, 1600 and 1700 blocks of N. Caroline Sts., the Eastside Community Committee made its formal protest in a letter. The letter was drawn by William S. Taylor, co-ordinator, and M. T. Ferguson, president of the committee.

Children, Churches in Area

The letter said:

"This proposed location (1538 N. Caroline St.) is in the direct path of two schools, two churches and a hospital. Children frequent the drug store to purchase ice cream, sodas and candies.

"Many of us are making financial sacrifices so we can live in a decent neighborhood. Later we move to a nice neighborhood to get away from slums, blighted housing and undesirable conditions, we find someone wanting to establish a liquor place."

The letter contended that there are already enough places of that type in the area. "Not needed, need. It called attention to recent newspaper items saying the Liquor Board was opposed to liquor licenses for places where ice cream, candy etc. were being sold."

In closing the letter asked that the protestants be notified when the hearing on the Sachs application would be held.

Elroy Jenkins on Body Working for Disabled

Years of experience gained by Mr. Jenkins in helping war veterans in overcoming disabilities will be made available to all physically handicapped residents of Maryland.

fire to a hotel at Eutaw and Mosher Sts. He admitted the charges, she said, and was sent to Crownsville Sanitarium for treatment. She is still in that institution.

Mrs. Jackson said that she found letters in his pockets which indicated that he was interested in another woman. When she questioned him, he told her he would do as he saw fit, that no woman would tell him what to do. She said that he left her soon afterwards.

Mrs. Jackson was represented by J. Howard Payne, attorney. Mr. Payne also represented Mrs. Edith Smith, who divorced Curtis Smith on grounds of desertion. Mrs. Smith had her maiden name, Williams, restored.

Separated 25 Years

Mrs. May Kiah of 343 Camel St. this week legally ended a marriage to Charles Kiah of New York from whom she had been separated 25 years.

Mrs. Kiah said that she and Mr. Kiah were married in 1918, that he went to New York in 1923 and that was the last she has heard of him. Roy S. Bond was attorney for the wife.

Mr. Bond was also attorney for Mrs. Alice Randolph of 1811 W. Saratoga St., who divorced Milton Randolph on a non-support charge; and Richard Hackett of 1016 Olive St., who testified that Mrs. Clara Hackett left him while he was at work in 1941.

Also obtaining a divorce was Mrs. Bessie Compton of 916 N. Stricker St., who divorced James R. Compton, attorney said.

The couple was married in 1936 and separated in 1945. She said that he became disgruntled and unkind, and that they voluntarily agreed to separate.

Ernest Perkins was aeftorney for Mrs. Compton.

Baltimoreans Don't Know Dewey, So Prefer Truman

tute only 40% of the potential voters, if the colored population is estimated at 200,000.

Keen Too Little of Dewey

Participants commented that they don't know enough about Republican candidate Dewey. On the other hand, many of those opposing Truman feel that they know too much about him. Many old-time independent voters said that this is the most difficult year ever for deciding wheih way to vote.

Typical of those who wanted to know more of Dewey was Marion Newton, who gave her address as 511 Laurens St.

"I never liked Truman in the beginning," the housewife said. "But I know very little of Dewey. It's a mess."

She gave Truman as her choice, adding that "I might jump for Dewey if I had some pamphlets or something, or if he would just say more."

'Time for a Change'

Those who figured they knew too much about Truman really spoke of the entire Democratic Party, with "it's time for a change" almost a stock phrase.

Donald Boyce, 10th Ward GOP executive, complained that "our children know of only one party (Democrats) and I say it's time for a change." He added, in so many words, that what they know of that one party isn't good.

Wallace's chief weakness appeared to be that most do not think he can win. Somewhat the same idea was expressed by one balloter who said, "Norman Thomas is the only statesman in the group, but why waste a vote?"

Housewives Fear "Red" Tint

The women, housewives particularly, seemed most concerned with claims that Wallace's party is dominated by Communists. Enough mentioned it while voting for another candidate to indicate that the charges have had some effect on them.

Most general reasons for supporting each candidate, however, were Dewey's "great record in New York," Truman's "outspoken stand on civil rights," and Wallace's "sincere interest in the common man."

There were a few wholly pessimistic participants who said they wouldn't vote for either. The reasons were varied, and not at all characteristic was the old man on Monument St. who said he hadn't voted "since the women started voting," and didn't know when he might start again.

U.S. Designates Week for Disabled

Congress in 1945, will be in compliance with proclamations handed down by President Truman, Governor Lane and Mayor D'Alesandro.

Through radio and television programs, newspaper publicity and window displays, sponsors of the project are endeavoring to get their message over to the public.

They point out that during the first drive in 1945, some 18,639 persons were employed throughout the country. In 1947, 30,765 physically handicapped persons were placed.

Placed 315 Colored Males

The Maryland State Employment Agency, alone, during the drive last year, placed 269 persons and through Sept. 24, of this year, obtained employment for a total of 1,247 persons. Of this number, 315 were colored males and 41 females.

Records show that the physically handicapped boast a minimum accident rate, are more reliable, conscientious and have a low rate of absenteism.

Many Agencies Co-operate

Local agencies co-operating in the drive include:

The Employment Service Division of the Maryland Department of Employment Security, the Vocational Rehabilitation Service of the State Department of Education, the Veterans Administration, Tuberculosis Association, Association of Commerce, Veterans Employment Service, Maryland Workshop for the Blind, Associated Jewish Charities, League for Crippled Children, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Vets, American Legion, Baltimore Hearing Society, Employment Service Division and Goodwill Industries.

Officers Being Assigned Already

Many reserve officers are receiving mobilization assignments in Organized Reserve Units in which they will be prepared to serve in the event of a military emergency. Such units will be designated as elements of the proposed striking force.

In general, mobilization assignments will be given Reservists in units supporting combat units in the M-Day force. In other instances, assignments will be made to training units especially organized to train officers according to their military specialties.

Where assignments of this nature are prohibited by geographical residence of the individual officer, assignments may be made to governmental agencies necessary for National Defense, or to posts, camps and stations near their homes.

The plan will give the maximum number of Reservists definite assignments in keeping with their military and civilian qualifications and will enable rapid mobilization of striking force units should the need arise.

Responsibility for mobilization assignments of all Reserve officers on extended leave of active duty, and others where assignments are controlled by the Army has been delegated to the Director of Personnel and Administration Army General Staff.

The victim was Milton Bryant, 37, of 800 Vine St., who was stabbed two blocks, and fell from a taxi-cab, in his client's home on June 8. The men reportedly argued over cards during a game in the 1000 block Fayette St., Charles Orth, assistant State's attorney, prosecuted.

Seek 1½ Million for Va. School

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. City Council and the Albemarle Board of County Supervisors will receive requests at their next regular meetings to provide jointly approximately $1,500,000 to cover the cost of constructing the proposed city-county colored high school.

School boards of both localities, meeting in joint session last Wednesday, voted to request their respective governing groups to consider ways and means of providing the funds.

The proposed site for the new school already has been selected in the Rose Hill section of Charlottesville.
