Morgan's '51 Operating Expense Request Slashed

gency" funds are also sought to complete a gymnasium and health education building and a women's dormitory, soon to be constructed.

Other Facilities Requested

Under non-emergency items are:

Two dormitories, an infirmary, tennis courts and facilities for intra-mural sports, a footbridge over Arlington Ave., an addition of 5,000 seats at the stadium and lights there for night use, an addition to the library, and the completion of roadways and lighting.

U. of Md. Gets Full Grant

It should be noted that the University of Maryland's request for $13,770,773 for operating expenses during fiscal 1951 was granted in full.

The Morgan college request was cut $180,121.

Though the college has made considerable progress under the Lane administration, it still lacks many of the basic physical facilities necessary to develop a first-rate educational program.

Of the $1,261,345 requested by Morgan for operating expenses, the school itself will raise $440,675 in tuition and other collections.

If the total amount had been granted the State's actual contribution would have been only $820,670. Since the Governor reduced the school's request, the State is contributing only $631,549.

Improvements Amounts Given

The $3,298,000 being asked for capital improvements is to be spent as follows:

$210,000 for extension of gymnasium and the plot south of the Christian Center;
$350,000 for roadways, parking areas, landscaping, and demolition of two dormitory buildings, and campus lighting;
$15,000 for mechanical ventilation to stack in library;
$280,000 for faculty and classified staff residences;
$780,000 for fine arts building and auditorium;
$885,000 for science building and equipment;
$150,000 for remodeling of science facilities and constructing and equipping a greenhouse;
$20,000 for renovation to Carnegie Hall;
$20,000 for renovation to Baldwin Hall;
$35,000 for equipment and storage garage;
$200,000 for home economics and family-life building;
$15,000 for relocation of stairway in Library;
$25,000 for reconstruction of stadium entrance, construction of ticket booths and concession stand and pavement of entrance;
$300,000 for completion of gymnasium and health education building;
$100,000 for completion of women's dormitory.

Progress on 2 Buildings

The gymnasium and health education building and a women's dormitory will be placed to contract sometime this month. Bids for the projects were taken late in January.

School authorities point out that the lower stacks in Soper Library are damp and cannot be used. They wish to correct this condition so the stack space may be used for books and visual education materials.

Of the $280,000 requested for staff housing, $55,000 will be spent on four residences for the business manager, superintendent of buildings and grounds, the college dean, and the director of athletics.

Other housing needs include five residences for maintenance personnel who need to be available on a 24-hour basis. These include the plumber, electrician, chauffeur, chief custodian and chief engineer.

Other Staff Housing Planned

The plans also call for construction of additional housing for faculty members at a total cost of $160,000.

This will include five three-bedroom houses or apartments and five suites to accommodate two persons each.

The college officials explain that the auditorium and fine arts building is urgently needed. The school now has no assembly hall capable of housing more than 300 of its 1500 students.

Mechanical Equipment Rusting

This proposed structure would also house the work in fine arts and music, which is now accommodated in an old structure formerly used as a women's dormitory.

At present Morgan College has no place in which to house its automotive and mechanical equipment. Its trucks, tractors, grass-cutting equipment etc. now stand out in the weather.

The proposed garage would also provide shower and locker space for the maintenance staff and headquarters for the superintendent of buildings and grounds.

Wreck Happened Without Warning

Mr. Hawkins, "that I was the last man squeezed on.

"I couldn't see much, but I know when we got to the tracks there wasn't any flagman there. And the driver couldn't have opened the door to check, or we would have fallen out."

No Warning of Crash

Asked if he had had any warning of the approaching train, Mr. Hawkins replied:

"No I didn't see it coming. But after it hit I was hollering and everybody else seemed to be doing the same. We just didn't know what had happened."

The bus was running on the "F" line, which transports trans ferring passengers from the Pennsylvania Ave. line to Canton and the waterfront.

According to reports, the engine had just begun to move slowly across Clinton St., when the accident occurred at 7:10 a.m.

Get Out by Side Door

Passengers were released by an unidentified member of the engine crew, who kicked in a side door.

Of the 16 persons rushed to City Hospitals in municipal ambulances, only John Naylor, white, suffered a fairly serious leg injury.

Police said charges of reckless driving were placed against the bus driver. No charges were filed against the railroad engineer.

The complete list of the injured who were treated at City Hospitals follows:

Thomas Briscoe, 48, of the 1400 block School St., cuts on the left hand.

Most of the passengers injured in the crash were in condition to return to work on the following day.

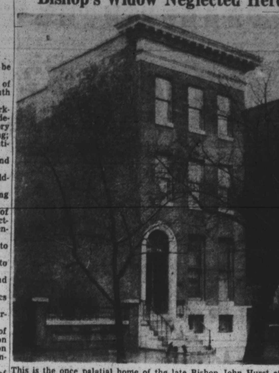
Bishop's Widow Neglected Here



This is the once palatial home of the late Bishop John Hurst at 1008 W. Lafayette Ave., from which his widow was removed to a convalescent home this week after police testimony that she was found in filth and squalor here.

Bishop Hurst's Widow Got Virtually Entire Estate

in the Union Trust Company, added to the estate.

Bishop Hurst willed the Lafayette Ave., home, its furnishings and two cars, and properties at 509, 413 and 517 Mosher St., 1808 McCulloh St., 337 Dolphin St., 1037 Harlem Ave., 1301 Division St., 1422 Mount St. and 1508 W. Franklin St., to his wife.

He left 1736 McCulloh St. in trust to his son, Dr. Benoni Price Hurst, who was directed to use the income until his grandson, John Hurst 2nd., was at high school age, when the income was to be used for the latter's education, and to be given to him outright five years after his graduation from college.

He also left $100 to his chauffeur, James E. Hood; and a sick room sacrament set, silk robe and a watch to a friend, the Rev. William H. Thomas of Washington.

Grandson Watch

A niece, Miss Anne Gillotte, of Port Au Prince, Haiti, received the homestead on that island, which he had purchased from heirs. The grandson also received a striking Swiss watch, w hich the bishop had made in Switzerland and which he highly prized.

The balance of the estate was to be divided equally between the widow and son, with both serving as executors. But as the stock, which composed the balance of the estate was of little value, the Hurst's inheritance was of little value. So that when he died on July 1, 1944, he left an estate valued only at $2,727.03.

This did not include property at 1322 Q St., N.W., Washington, and a $120 ground rent issuing out of 1020 Madison Ave., Baltimore, jointly owned by Dr. Hurst and his wife, the former Mae Brandford.

The $2,929.03 and 125 shares of American Burglar Alarm and Messenger Company stock, then inventoried as worthless, were divided between Mrs. Mae Hurst, who received one-third, and the son, John Hurst 2nd., who received two-thirds. Mr. Hurst was executor of this estate.

Sent to Home

On Saturday, Mr. Hurst was summoned to Northwestern Police Station to explain why his grandmother Mrs. K. Bertha Hurst, 79, was found living under conditions which police described as "filth and squalor."

Policewoman Violet Hill Whyte testified that when she visited the bishop's once palatial home at 1008 W. Lafayette Ave., she found Mrs. Hurst "crawling on her hands and knees like a dog in filth and squalor."

Mrs. Whyte said, too, that the widow appeared to have the mind of a small child.

Following the hearing, an agreement was reached between Mr. Hurst and Mrs. Whyte which sent the widow to a Madison Ave. convalescent home for one month's care on a trial basis.

Many Knew Late Bishop's Wife's Plight

The neglectful treatment of the widow of John Hurst, AME bishop, which was aired in a recent court hearing for her grandson, came as a shock to most people. More, jointly owned by Dr. Hurst and his wife, the former Mae Brandford.

6 Institutions Get 4 Millions

despite mandatory increases, the sound economic and fiscal policy permits substantial tax reductions.

"I am submitting bills which would reduce the State real estate levy to the lowest in history and provide revisions in the income tax that will benefit no less than 225,000 taxpayers."

Lowest Rate in History

He said the proposed State tax rate on real and personal property of 46 cents on each $100 of assessable property is "the lowest in the history of our State, being a reduction of 6.39 cents from the rate for the current year."

The Governor proposed an appropriation of $31,697,610 for public schools, including the Department of Education and the teacher-training schools. This exceeds the 1950 appropriation by $1,674,136.

Morgan Request Slashed

Morgan State College requested $1,261,345 in operating expenses, but the Governor slashed this amount $180,121 and granted the college $1,072,224 during fiscal year 1951.

Among those seated in the balcony when the budget message was delivered was Dr. Harris D. Jenkins, Morgan College president. After the speech, Dr. Jenkins chatted briefly with the Governor in his office.

Bowie State Teachers College requested $257,483 and was allowed $237,896. This is $22,850 more than the school's 1950 budget.

Princess Anne's Need Filled

Maryland State College, an adjunct of the University of Maryland, received the exact amount it requested—$457,186 or $29,428 more than it was granted for 1950.

The college's funds are included in the $13,770,773 granted the university.

Crownsville State Hospital requested $1,868,272 and was allowed $1,737,026. Its 1950 budget was $1,632,148.

The Barrett Schools for Girls, located at Glen Burnie, requested $206,109 and was granted $163,695.

Boys Village of Maryland, formerly Cheltenham Training School for Boys, requested $219,589 and was allowed $215,593.

Henryton's Grant Indeterminate

The allowance for Henryton Hospital will come from an overall budget of $2,032,338 granted Maryland's four tuberculosis hospitals.

The exact amount each hospital will receive was not spelled out in the budget.

Public schools received the largest increase in the proposed budget.

Second largest was for the Department of Mental Hygiene, and the State's five hospitals for the mentally ill, for which an expanded program was launched in the 1949 legislative session.

Upped About One-Tenth

The total proposed appropriations for that department and the mental hospitals was $9,379,193. This is an increase of $1,003,953. In addition, a $928,632 special fund appropriation for 1950 is being carried over.

Though he drastically cut the amounts requested by most departments and agencies, Governor Lane told the Legislators he "allowed in full the total requests of the Department of Mental Hygiene and the requests for operating expenses of the four hospitals."

In addition, he included a lump sum of $500,000 to be allocated by the new Commissioner of Hygiene to the five institutions. This will be used primarily for additional personnel.

X-RAY TECHNICIAN POST OPEN AT CROWNSVILLE

A position for a laboratory and X-ray technician is open at Crownsville State Hospital, Dr. Jacob Morgantaler, superintendent, announced Friday. Applications should be made to the personnel director at the institution.

man blamed the other for the stabbing.

It was pointed out to the jury here that any statement blaming another could be used only against the person making that statement.

Prosecutors William J. O'Donnell and William Maynard argued on the other hand that both defendants were equally as responsible for the killing because they planned together to rob the driver.

Their actions during the day were traced by the prosecution which contended that Day and Lewis lounged around all day "welching and Sponging" upon their friends for wine money.

Lewis of the 1400 block Fulton Ave. was AWOL from Fort Bliss, Tex., on the night of the crime. Day lives in the 600 block of N. Carey St.

NAACP Praises 2 Va. Congressmen

Two Virginia Congressmen — Reps. S. Otis Bland and Thomas E. Fugate—have been congratulated by officials of the Virginia State Conference of Branches, NAACP, for their recent action in voting against giving the House Rules Committee complete control of legislation."

The congratulations were contained in letters sent to both men on Jan. 23. The communications were signed by Dr. J. M. Tinsley, president, and W. Lester Banks, executive secretary.

Text of the letters follows:

"The Virginia State Conference of Branches . . . congratulates you for your recent Committee (of the House) complete control of House legislation.

"It is indeed heartening to Virginians to know that some of our elected representatives are sincerely interested in seeing that the principles of our democratic society are preserved and made a workable reality in our Congress.

"May we respectfully urge you to use your influence to convince your colleagues of Virginia that they, too, must take forthright action, to make democracy work here at home. Democracy cannot be purchased at home or abroad with dollars.

"It can be strengthened into an impregnable wall of freedom and security for all peoples, here and abroad, by the translation of our written and often quoted ideals into positive and unbiased democratic action.

"We therefore strongly urge you to support H. R. 4453 (FEPC bill) and to use your power to defeat and crippling amendments that may make this necessary legislation ineffective."

'Lend an Ear' Cast Says Earful on JC at Ford's

The jim-crow policy of Ford's Theatre was assailed, this week, by the cast currently playing there in "Lend An Ear."

In correspondence to the NAACP, the group declared, "We have played at the Ford Theatre in the past, but we regret we had to return to find a jim crow policy still prevailing."

The statement added, "We hope this discriminatory practice ends immediately so that we can once again play the Ford Theatre in a free and democratic atmosphere."

The policy of the management relegates colored patrons to the second balcony. The theatre has been picketed by the NAACP and other liberal organizations for three years in protest to this situation.

One member of the "Lend An Ear" cast, Hal Linden, declared, "This policy is a disgrace."

In subsequent conversation with Mrs. Adah Jenkins, chairman of the Committee to End Segregation in Baltimore Theatres, musicians "in the show promised to continue actions by the New York with Actors Equity and the Musicians Union to help defeat the policy.

Statement Signers Named

Members of the cast signing the correspondence included:

Robert E. Dixon, Ray Thomas, Al Checco, Gloria Hamilton, Jeany Lou Law, Dorothy Babb, Rica Owen, Mr. Hackett, Margaret Jeanne;

Sybil Lamb, Gloria Evans, Florence Ford, Antoinette Guhlke, Calvin Lowell, Peter Conlow, William Skipper, Rudy Putnam, Sid Lawson, Ellen Hanley, and Garry Fleming.

Musicians who signed are Irvin Cooper, Fowler Friedlander, Walter Wagner, Kalmen Opperman, L. Martins, Bernard David, Myron Robbins, Harry Robbins, David Grudin and William Parsons.

State Legislature

ANNAPOLIS.— Unemployment relief, one of the major issues before the General Assembly now in session, is of prime importance to Maryland's minority group citizens, most of whom are at the lower end of the economic ladder.

"Though the matter is involved, it boils down to this question: How far will Maryland go in furnishing public assistance to employables?

Previously no public assistance was given them; but due to a number of hardship cases resulting from the State's policy, the special session of the Legislature in December passed a $300,000 emergency stop-gap appropriation providing aid to employables.

Legislators Under Pressure

Now the Legislators are being placed under pressure on one hand to continue this aid, and on the other hand to discontinue it.

The Council for Jobs and Relief is spearheading the fight to have the relief for employables continued.

Sam Schmerler, executive secretary of the council, has for several months been urging the Governor to make more funds available for employables and also to recommend to the Legislature a public works program to aid the unemployed.

30,000 Exhaust Benefits

"More than 30,000 Marylanders have exhausted their jobless benefits; unemployment still mounts, and relief funds are too low and inadequate."

The council is expected to head a delegation to Annapolis to urge adoption of the measures they propose.

Mr. Schmerler has also suggested that Mrs. Margaret Dockins, social worker; Linwood G. Koger, attorney; and the Rev. M. E. Holmes, evangelist, be named to a committee to study unemployment in Maryland and report to the Governor.

Pennsylvania has long had a policy of aiding employables, but only after all other resources have been exhausted. New York also has a similar policy.

Vehicle Inspection Issue

In addition to relief for employables, another controversial issue to come before the Legislature is the matter of inspection of motor vehicles in Maryland.

This proposed bill comes with the approval of the Legislative Council. It would provide a system of inspection stations throughout the State and each motorist would be charged 75 cents for an annual inspection of his vehicle.

Of the sum collected, 10 cents would go to the Department of Motor Vehicles for the inspection and maintenance of these garages, and the rest to the private garages for rendering the service.

Motor Vehicle Commissioner Arthur Brice suggested this bill, which many feel is certain to pass in the current session.

Alcoholism Group Problem

Another bill which many give a "better than even" chance to be approved is the one on alcoholism.

This bill would establish an unpaid Commission on Alcoholism, appropriate $100,000 and a maximum of $100,000 a year on clinics for chronic alcoholics throughout the State.

It is similar to Senate Bill No. 15, which was passed by both Houses during the 1949 session, but was vetoed by the Governor because no agency had been established to supervise spending of the first year's appropriations.

The new bill places supervision of the funds with the Department of Public Works.

The bill was originally recommended by the Committee for the Study of State Aid to Chronic Alcoholics, who point out that there are 10,000 Marylanders who suffer as much from alcoholism as from a sickness or disease.

Co. Lowering Phone Nos. Over 9000

Because of the rearrangement of telephone facilities in certain areas, the telephone company has begun lowering all numbers above 9000 that have Madison or Gilmor exchanges.

A spokesman for the C and P Telephone Company explained, Thursday, that in the future, all numbers over 9000 will be used exclusively on pay phones.

He added that an effort is under way to centralize the communications system, throughout the country.

Under the new setup in the Baltimore area, the spokesman said, that now, long distance operators will be able to dial directly to desired cities without the aid of an out-of-town operator.

Also, the operators will be able to tell what calls come from pay stations by the number given (any number above 9000).

Persons with phone are being affected by this change, were notified by letter several months ago.

The phone company hopes to make all changes before the alphabetical section of the phone directory goes to press, Mar. 21, the spokesman asserted.
