Probably no other remedy affords such prompt and permanent relief as Scott's Emulsion; it checks the cough, heals the linings of the throat and bronchial tubes and strengthens the lungs to avert tuberculosis. APPEAL TO ALL DEMOCRATS!

The place for all Democrats to settle their disputes is in the primary. When Democrats have spoken in a primary contest, then the will of the majority should rule. One who participates in a primary is in honor bound to support the nominees. Everyone who is disappointed should bury his disappointment and get behind the entire ticket. Fortunately for the election of the ticket this time all factions and shades of factions are represented on the ticket.

A man who calls himself an "Anti-Organization Democrat" is not worthy of the name if he will go to the polls at the primary and then not support the entire ticket nominated. A man who calls himself an "Organization Democrat" and then votes against any part of the ticket because some Anti-Organization candidates are nominated should know how little of a Democrat he is. The friends of both should point out to them the harm such conduct is likely to cause.

There is only one thing at the present time for every Democrat to do, and that is to fight the Republican ticket from top to bottom.

The Republicans and Urie are busy day and night. Are we to sit still and passively help them by our lack of interest to gain the ascendency in the county?

For the welfare of the county and its best interests, we appeal to every voter in the last primary to come out on election day and vote the entire Democratic ticket.

Yours respectfully,
HOWARD TURNER,
ROBERT A. SHALLCROSS,
T. BENJ. CREW,

POULTRY NOTES.

Feed in Its Relation to The Egg Yield.

When And What to Provide For The Laying Stock.

In continuing our articles from last month relative to the feeding for egg yield, particularly during the winter months, it is necessary to touch upon the time for feeding. On this point many differ, but much success has attended the following method:

Feed a mixed grain ration as early in the morning as the hen can see to pick up the grains. A good balanced ration for the morning meal will be found in a mixture as follows: One-fourth wheat, one-fourth hulled oats, one-fifth cracked corn and the balance of millet seed, barley and buckwheat. Scatter this in the litter, which has been provided in a quantity which they will clean up by noon. At the same time give them some form of green food, such as cabbage, turnips, beets or mangels. The mangels contain a good deal of water and will not taint the eggs, as do the other vegetables if fed in too large a quantity.

If it is impossible to feed either of the vegetables mentioned, then sprout some oats and feed them. Indeed, it will materially help matters to feed the sprouted oats in addition to vegetables. They are good and at the same time cheap. If you cannot get either the vegetables or sprout the oats, then the green food may be supplied by the feeding of clover or alfafa leaves and these are, indeed, splendid substitutes.

After the hens clean up the grains scattered in the litter the noon day has arrived and now is the time for the mash feed. This is prepared by mixing equal parts, by measure, of wheat, bran middlings, cornmeal, ground oats and one-fifth beef scrap. This is equally good if fed dry or moist. If mixed moist, or what is commonly called wet mash, it is well to use hot milk or water, but in no case have it too hot nor too wet. Wet mash should be mixed to a crumbly consistency and only warm. If sour milk or buttermilk can be obtained it will add greatly to the value of this feed. Place the mash in troughs prepared for the purpose and under no circumstances throw it upon the ground, as it will become dirty and more or less of it wasted. This same mixture may be fed dry. When given in this form it should also be fed in troughs or in hoppers prepared for the purpose.

The evening meal should consist of grain food exclusively and in this feeding the proportions of corn should be increased to nearly one-half of the mixture. Especially is this true when the weather is extremely cold, as it serves to warm the body while the hens are roosting over night. Never feed whole corn to the laying stock, have it cracked. The whole grain is all right when fattening, but should not be given to the laying hens.—Baltimore American.

LORD DEWEY'S RECORD

Making the mile by quarters in 30, 1.01, 1.31 3-4, 2.03 3-4, Lord Dewey by Admiral Dewey-Extacy, owned jointly by Dr. J. C. McCoy, of Kirkwood, and C. W. Baker of Aberdeen, Md., has reduced his own record. After winning there $10,000 stakes in succession he started against time as Lexington, Ky. Very few trotters have trotted so fast a first quarter in a mile over the Lexington track, as it is the slowest quarter of the four. Only three trotting stallions have faster records than Lord Dewey—The Harvester, 2.01; Cresceus, 2.02 1-4, and Billy Burk, 2.03 1-4. The last two named are now owned in Europe, so that Lord Dewey, with the single exception of The Harvester, is the fastest trotting stallion now owned in America.

He has been retired from the turf, and will spend the rest of his life in the stud. An offer of $45,000 has been refused for him. Two days after his record performance he was taken sick with the prevailing epidemic, but the case was not serious.

His sire had a record of 2.04 1-4.
