MARYLAND WEEK.

Promises To Be Far Ahead of Previous Years. November 18-22, 1913.

The annual meeting and exhibition of the Maryland State Horticultural Society and affiliated agricultural associations, including Md. Crop Improvement Assn., Md. State Dairymen's Assn., and Md. State Bookeeper's Assn. at the Fifth Regiment Armory, Baltimore, "Maryland Week", Nov. 18-22, promises to be the greatest in the history of the Association. The program for the week is about completed, and will be published shortly.

Many speakers of national reputation have accepted to address the Society. Some of those are Sen. Holke Smith; A. V. Lover; Prof. L. C. Corbett, Asst, Chief Bureau of Plant Industry, Dr. D. W. Fletcher; Prof. J. C. Johnson of Virginia; Mr. V. V. Farnsworth, of Waterville, Ohio; Judge Arthur D. Hayes, of Washington, D. C., and others.

The program of the Md. Crop Improvement Association is instructive. The exhibition, which covers 60,000 square feet, promises to be the most elaborate ever placed in the Armory. A special Floral Commitee of the Baltimore Florists' Club are planning a unique and elaborate floral exhibition in the center of the Armory. Each Association is planning to have a series of demonstrations is progress in the exhibition during the week, including tree planting and pruning, apple packing, corn and wheat judging and selection, demonstration of dairy-barns and apparatus, treatment of wood lots by the State Forestry Service, and other educational features. The Baltimore City Board of Trade is taking much interest in the meeting and show, and are co-oporating with the management for its success. The Board of Trade will entertain all the farmers and fruit growers that attend the meetings at a Luncheon, Automobile Ride through the interesting sections of the City, and will also take all the visitors on a trip around Baltimore's great harbor.

The Baltimore School Board have accepted an invitation to arrange for the school children of the city to visit the exhibition to all fruit growers and visitors in Washington during "Fruit Week" in that city, to come over to Baltimore and visit the show in the Armory.

Everything promises for "Maryland Week" this year to be the most enthusiastic, more largely attended, and most successful of this anuual affair ever held in the State.

Hallowe'en Party.

Edgewater, the cozy home of Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins Burgess, was thrown open for one of the most charming entertainments in Kent society for many years to the witches and numerous friends of Mrs. Burgess' popular and attractive daughter, Miss Rhetta B. Warfield, on Friday night, Hallowe'en. It being Hallowe'en, the decorations and games were in keeping with the occasion. A large jack-'o-lantern greeted us at the door, and once inside we found ourselves veritably lost amid a scene as weird and grotesque as one felt safe to enter. The guests were ushered in by ghosts, Misses Rhetta B. Warfield and Isabel Jones, and the old witch, Miss Jane Gilpin Rives, of Baltimore, who sat by her tent in the rear of the hall. Bowers of autumn leaves and large branches of trees framed cozy corners in every direction. At first sight, most tempting indeed, yet looking again, we found a witch or ghost always ready to place upon us their icy hand and wreak vengeance. Guided only by the light of jack-'o-lanterns sending their ominous rays through sharp teeth and glaring eyes we quietly stole from room to room trusting son where to escape the witches ever present.

The mask costumes were rich and the merriment was unbounded trying to find who each other could be as the ridiculously masked figures stole around the house. A large moon rose above the corn stalks and branches in the parlor.

At mid-night the guests were a ushered into the dining room where they were brought back to earthly thoughts by the beautifully laid table groaning beneath its load of dainty refreshments. In the center of the table was an immense pumpkin with its carved faces looking at one from every side, and between, over, under and around these faces were pasted images so arranged as to look as if each were afraid that the other would soon have it in its grasp. Above and around the pumpkin were banks of chrysanthemums and fruit. From each corner of the table to the center-piece in the ceiling, from which the witches' cauldron hung, were twisted yellow and black ribbons, while here and there about the table were many curios, their eyes aglow with the spirit of the occasion. The witch with her cauldron sat in a recess in the hall and told fortunes. As the wee small hours began to lengthen all voted this one of the most enjoyable evenings ever spent, and bade good morning to the happy host and hostess. Those invited were:

Mr. and Mrs. Allan A. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. George Beck, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Earle Nicholson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Skirven, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Merritt Kenley, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Willson, Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Scott Beck, Dr. and Mrs. Frank B. EXTRACTING TEETH WITHOUT PAIN

BEGINNING MONDAY NOVEMBER 10 AND UNTIL SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 15, Sixteenth Birthday Week

At Baltimore's Best Store

¶ We believe this store was the first in Baltimore to celebrate its anniversaries by offering merchandise attractions of a most remarkable sort.

¶ Our first anniversary, fifteen years ago, was the talk of Baltimore for weeks.

¶ Our sixteenth birthday celebration, which begins Monday, November 10 and ends on Saturday, November 15, will be the greatest value-giving event of the year 1913.

¶ If you can possibly do so, we urge you to come to Baltimore during Anniversary Week. You will be able to save a good many times the cost of your railroad or steamboat fare on the wonderful bargains which will be offered at this store every day of that week of celebration.

¶ It is impossible to print detailed news of the offerings here—but, with each of our forty-five departments putting forward its most attractive merchandise at fractional prices, you are sure to find many things that it will pay you to buy.

¶ Remember the date—and come here for your share of the good things!
