Peaches 'N Cream Dessert Choice for Local Housewives

By VIRGINIA C. SHERBURNE

Peaches 'n cream should be the dessert choice for local housewives this week!

Bushels and bushels of this juicy luscious fruit are pouring into Baltimore from Maryland and Pennsylvania orchards, according to Virginia C. Sherburne, Food Economist for the Baltimore Office of the State Department of Markets.

The peak of the season is this week, so plan to eat and preserve all you want. Prices are low and quality excellent.

Look for peaches that are unblemished and fresh-looking. The blush does not necessarily denote maturity. The flesh should be firm and solid, neither too hard nor too soft. Avoid shrunken, spotted or wormy peaches.

Contain 4 Vitamins

Peaches rank high from the health standpoint. They contain vitamins A, B, C and G and are also a good source of minerals. They are low in calories, too, which makes them ideal for between-meal snacks.

Though many people contend that the only way to eat fresh peaches is with plenty of good sweet cream, they are also good in shortcakes, frozen desserts and salads.

Peaches are delicious when canned or frozen and make excellent preserves and pickles, too. So remember to put peaches at the top of your grocery list this week, for good eating the year round!

Cantaloupes Plentiful

Maryland cantaloupes continue to be plentiful and low in price. Apples are another fruit "buy" this week.

In the vegetable department, Maryland sweet corn, nearby tomatoes, New York, New Jersey and Maryland lima beans, nearby potatoes and New Jersey and Maryland green peppers are tops on the "best buy" list.

Maryland grown sweet potatoes are available now. The sweet potato crop is heavy this year and this popular vegetable is expected to be plentiful during the fall.

Meat prices remain fairly steady. Receipts of grass-fed cattle are more liberal, so lower grades of beef are expected to be more plentiful. Hams, sausage, bacon and poultry are all good values.

Lamp prices are down slightly. Grade A small eggs from this year's pullets are a good value now. All egg prices are reasonable as compared with higher priced meats.

Tempting Peach Dishes

GLAZED PEACHES

2 whole ripe peaches, ½ cup currant jelly, ½ cup apple jelly.

Plunge whole peaches in boiling water and remove skin as you peel tomatoes. Melt apple and currant jelly in top of double boiler. Cool and pour over peaches. Serve very cold. Serves two. Any other tart jelly may be used in place of apple and currant jelly.

BAKED PEACHES

Place a layer of whole or peach halves in a shallow baking dish. Sprinkle with brown sugar and dot with butter. Repeat until dish is filled. Bake until peaches are tender. Serve with cream, hard sauce or custard.

Easy Does It

Cut trips from dining room to the kitchen by using trays or carts for bringing in dishes as well as carrying them out.

Dishes should be scraped as soon as they're cleared from the table and rinsed right after scraping to remove most of the food that can be dislodged. Stack the same sized dishes together.

You'll save both time and energy washing silverware if you have a small pan of hot water and suds sitting in the kitchen sink when these are removed. They can be placed right in the pan to soak and almost clean themselves.

Place dishes at the side of the sink in the order they're going to be washed, and your dishwashing will zip along at a fast pace. Glasses and silverware are nearest to you, plates and cups next, then pots and pans.

If your sink is low so that you have to stoop to get at the dishes, fix a rack at the bottom to cut down stooping.

If you're right handed, keep washing water at the right, rinsing water to left. You can then wash with right hand while left hand rinses.

If you rinse by letting steaming water cover the dishes for about two minutes, then you have heated the dish thoroughly and can put it in a rack to dry in a very brief time.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Halibut Bake
(Serves 4)

½ pound salt pork, sliced thin
1 small onion, sliced
1 bay leaf
2-4 halibut steaks
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup finely crushed cracker crumbs
1 tablespoon paprika

Cut half of salt pork in small pieces and arrange in baking pan. Cover with onion slices. Place some bay leaf on each onion slice. Place halibut steaks on top of salt pork and onion, then sprinkle fish with lemon juice. Top with cracker crumbs and sprinkle with paprika. Lay remaining pork strips over top. Bake in a moderate (375° F.) oven for about 40 minutes.

Turkey Dinner for Labor Day

WASHINGTON

A turkey dinner for the Labor Day week end is suggested by marketing specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, because large supplies of turkeys are expected on markets early this fall.

Many of these early birds will be family size — about 6 to 12 pounds ready-to-cook weight.

Many markets this fall also will have turkey fryers — the tender young birds about three months old which may be split for broiling, disjointed for frying, or stuffed whole for a small tender roast.

Turkey fryers weigh from 2½ to 6 pounds, ready-to-cook. Later in the fall, especially around Thanksgiving time, more of the big turkeys, ranging from 10 to 25 pounds, will be featured.

Look for Label

When buying turkeys this fall, the specialists suggest that the housewife look for the new U. S. Grade, ready-to-cook label as a guide to quality and convenience.

Turkeys tagged U. S. Grade A are high quality—no deformities like crooked breastbones; well-fleshed with meaty breast and legs; fat well distributed under the skin; all or practically all, pinfeathers removed; only very small bruises

Largest Crop of Sweet Potatoes in Four Years Due This Autumn

The largest crop of sweet potatoes in four years, estimated at 50,322,000 bushels, is due this fall. The time for the housewife to buy at most favorable prices is at the peak of the freshly harvested supplies.

That period is expected from about Sept. 18 through Oct. 14, marketing specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture say.

After November most of the sweet potatoes in stores are the cured ones which come from storage.

Freshly harvested sweet potatoes usually cost less in retail stores than the cured potatoes for sale later in the winter.

This is because of the heat treatment and special handling required in curing potatoes to make them keep, also because of storage losses and the expense of storage itself.

If a bird has been graded B simply because of a crooked breastbone or too many pinfeathers, it still offers meatiness, tenderness and attractive appearance after roasting, and the family pocketbook may benefit from its lower price per pound.

If any of the bird's parts are torn in the skin allowed.

A U. S. Grade B turkey falls short in one or more of these requirements, yet may be the thrifty buy.

'CREAM' THEM WITH CARNATION—To Glorify Canned Soups!
Here's how to give extra flavor to your favorite canned soup. Follow the regular directions on the can—but use Carnation Evaporated Milk diluted 50-50 with water instead of ordinary milk or water. For an even "creamier" soup, use Carnation undiluted. Double-rich Carnation is the thrifty way to "cream" any canned soup.

NEW! Double Goodness for Packaged Puddings!
It's quick—it's easy—and it's thrifty! Add to 1 package of your favorite pudding 1 cup of Carnation Evaporated Milk and 1 cup of water. Heat according to package directions. Chill. As an extra treat, serve with Whipped Carnation topping. (Chill ¼ cup Carnation Milk until it is icy-cold, fold in 2 teaspoons lemon juice and 2 teaspoons sugar for quick, easy whipping.)

ENRICH ALL YOUR MEALS WITH THE MILK "FROM CONTENTED COWS"
—says FREDA C. DE KNIGHT, Food Editor of Savory Magazine and Author of "A Date with a Dish."

ONLY WATER IS REMOVED from Carnation Evaporated Milk—nothing but Vitamin D is added. Yet no other form of milk has so many uses!
USE IT LIKE CREAM—in coffee, on cereals, for whipped toppings. Undiluted Carnation whips easily when well chilled.
WHEN YOUR RECIPE SAYS "MILK"—just restore part of the water removed by evaporation. Diluted 50-50, Carnation is homogenized whole milk that's richer than your own state standard for Grade A milk!
