NAACP Drive Set in Montgomery

NORBECK, MD. — The Montgomery County chapter of the NAACP met last Thursday at the YMCA and made plans for a membership drive with a goal of 500 members.

The president, Mrs. Webster Sewell, appointed Mrs. Geraldean J. Elliby and Mrs. Margaret T. Jones as co-chairman of the program committee. Mrs. Eugene Stewart submitted a skit she had written entitled, "The Affairs of a Membership Captain."

The next meeting will be held Oct. 5 at 8:30 p.m. at the Lincoln High School in Rockville, Md. All interested persons are invited to attend.

They Hit the Bigtime on 'Love'

The Four Tunes first skyrocketed into prominence when they teamed with Savannah Churchill on the RCA Victor hit, "I Wanna Be Loved." "Careless Love," "Confess" and "Lonesome Road" are among some of their tunes which have already passed the 500,000 mark in sales.

Carter, Vet Stage Star, Scores in Arena's 'Mice'

PAUL WILLIAMS

WASHINGTON

If you haven't yet visited the Arena Stage at the old Hippodrome, Ninth and New York Ave., N.W., now is a good time to do so.

Besides finding out what central staging is all about, you'll see a production of John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men" which you won't forget easily. You'll also have a chance to witness the talents of a colored actor who was treading the boards with distinction long before either "Mice" or the theatre-in-the-round achieved their present popularity.

This actor is Jack Carter, who lives right here in Washington and who was an outstanding performer years ago when New York's Lafayette Players made a name for themselves in New York, Philadelphia, and Washington.

Wealth of Experience

He was leading man with the Players for seven years, and brings his breadth of experience and depth of feeling effectively to bear on his role with the company at the Arena Stage.

First-nighters on Monday applauded his characterization of Crooks, the stable hand, and downtown critics have given him a "standout" rating in their reviews.

Crooks is one of the few characters in American drama who tells white men plainly where they get off.

"You won't even let me sleep in the bunkhouse," he says with emphatic bitterness. Yet, underlying his frank resentment and his brusqueness is the deep and universal human longing for companionship which he cannot deny or forget.

Provides Arresting Scenes

Mr. Carter's full understanding of this role and his portrayal of it in all its pathos provide one of the arresting scenes of the play.

He also intensifies and underlines the basic theme of the piece which has to do with human loneliness as typified in a bunch of hard-bitten ranch-hands, haunted by the solitude and insecurity of their existence.

Two of them, George and his slow-witted pal Lennie aren't like the rest, however. They have traveled together, and a dream of getting a little farm of their own someday, where they won't be dependent on anyone and where Lennie, big in brawn and small in brain, will take care of the rabbits.

An Absorbing Story

What happens to this dream is material for a suspenseful and absorbing story which has already had popular successes as a novel, a movie, and a production on the proscenium stage. It loses none of its impact and poignancy on the Arena Stage.

The play is the second produced at Arena, which opened with "She Stoops to Conquer" three weeks ago, and affords a significant display of the skill and versatility of the Arena actors.

Lester Rawlins and Henry Oliver, in particular, who appeared in the earlier production, are excellent as George and Lennie, respectively. A newcomer, Forrest Monroe, formerly with "Faith of Our Fathers," also did a splendid job as Candy.

Other new members in the cast include Henry Daniolowicz, Tobe Felder, and Harry Scully. Dorothea Jackson and Stuart Smith both had appeared in "She Stoops to Conquer."

Tiny Bounces Back Into the $3,000 Class

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Tiny Bradshaw, fanning with some of his newspaper friends between sets of his dance here last Friday night, was suddenly brought up with a start when one of the fourth estaters put the query, "How do you account for your great comeback?"

According to the effervescent entertainer, he hadn't thought of his present success as a "comeback." Still he admitted it was just that.

"You see," he said, "I've never been out of action so I don't feel it is a comeback. Unlike Joe Louis I've never been away or out of the game. True things were a little skimpy but I never doubted that I'd be on top again."

Less than a year ago Bradshaw was having difficulty demanding —and collecting—$250 per week. He now feels it a slow week that doesn't act better than $3,500, a return to the position he held when he was a headliner in the plush-lined Cotton Club and Connie's Inn days in New York.

3 D.C. Gi's Killed in Korean war

WASHINGTON

Three Washington area youths have been listed as killed and two others injured in the Korean fighting in the Defense Department Casualty Lists issued this week.

Listed as killed in action on Aug. 23 is Pfc. Ned Hinnant Jr., of 6500 K St., Jefferson Heights, Md., according to a telegram received recently by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Hinnant. He was with the 24th Infantry Regiment, his parents said.

He entered the Army on Jan. 1 1948, and was trained at Fort Dix, N. J. He was shipped to California in May and shortly afterwards left for Japan. A native of Wilton, N. C., Private Hinnant came to Washington in 1935. He attended Fairmont Heights, Md., High School.

Broaddus World War II Vet

Sgt. Walter T. Broaddus, 33, of 5430 Bass Pl., S.E., and Cpl. John P. Johnson, 20, of 1210 S St., N.W., were the other two local GI's listed killed in action.

Sergeant Broaddus, according to his wife, Mrs. Ida Corrine Broaddus, had been in Korea only two weeks. He entered service in 1941, and during World War II served in Europe, China, Japan and Korea with the 94th Engineers.

After the outbreak of the Korean conflict he was transferred from his engineering unit at Fort Belvoir, Va., to the 24th Regiment.

Son of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Whiting of Middletown, N. Y., Sergeant Broaddus was the father of two children, Catherine and Walter Thomas Jr. He was married to the former Miss Ida Corrine Stanfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Stanfield, of Montclair, N. J., in 1942.

Johnson Phelps Graduate

Corporal Johnson is a native of Richmond, Va., but has lived in Washington most of his life, his grief-stricken wife, Mrs. Beatrice Johnson, told the AFRO on Thursday. He entered the Army about 30 months ago, she said.

Corporal Johnson is a graduate of Shaw Junior and Phelps Vocational Schools.

Non-Coms Wounded

The wounded men are Sgt. Nathaniel McCall, 32, an orphan whose only relatives live in the District; and Pfc. Albert J. Johnson, 21, of 315 D St., S.E.

Sergeant McCall was reported to have been slightly wounded while fighting in Korea with the 24th Infantry Regiment. His aunt, Mrs. Emma L. Jones, of 1626 15th St., N.W., said she received a letter from him saying that "he would be up and around in a few days."

He enlisted in the Army in 1942, and was stationed in Australia for several years. Except for about 90 days, he has been in the Army since he first enlisted. He is a native of Leesburg, Fla.

Johnson Randall School Grad

Private Johnson, who also was with the 24th Infantry Regiment, wrote his parents that he was suffering from a slight hand wound.

He entered the Army in December, 1948, and went overseas to Japan in May, 1949. He has a twin brother, Thomas, who was with the Air Force in World War II.

Private Johnson is a native of Oxon Hill, Md. He attended Randall Junior High Schol in Washington.

Vet License Law Blessing to Many

Veterans of World War II are taking advantage of the New Jersey law which grants to any war veteran the right to sell all kinds of merchandise from door-to-door in any town, city, borough or hamlet in the State.

The law was enacted in 1904 and amended in 1934, 1936 and 1943.

It authorizes the county clerk of the 21 counties to issue upon application a license to a war veteran who served honorably in the United States Army or Navy during a war in which the United States engaged.

9,000 Permits Issued

Applications for license are forwarded by the county clerk to the chief of Staff, N.J. Department of Defense, Trenton N.J., for check of war service and also to determine if the applicant was ever issued a license and whether it was cancelled.

Licenses granted to date total 9,676.

Hundreds of young men veterans of World War II, aided by Federal or State war veterans loans have acquired automotive equipment for transportation of salable merchandise.

Many such veterans are engaged in selling farm products, seafood and other edibles.

Some licensed veterans with auto truck are engaged in the fish, oyster and clam business, transporting from the seashore to inland towns and cities with resultant profitable business.

The War Veterans License Law requires that an applicant must have been a resident of the State for at least six months and of the country three months.

An applicant must have served honorably in the U. S. armed forces during a war, campaign, uprising or occupation.

Licenses are issued free of cost.

The War Dept. credits New Jersey with 142,224 persons who served in the Army-Navy during World War I, and 971,070 during World War II.

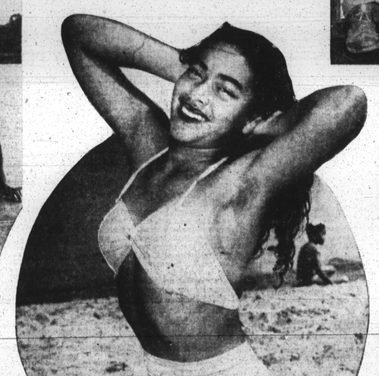
REGATTA TIME AT COLUMBIA BEACH

Seen reclining on Columbia Beach during the water carnival and regatta on Labor Day is Miss Beverely West of 2229 South Seminary Rd., Arlington, Va., who was among the crowd enjoying the Labor Day festival.

Also among those enjoying the final summer sports at Columbia Beach were: Mr. and Mrs. William H. Smith, 6 Lincoln Ave., Catonsville, Md.; guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earl S. Britt, 1810 Fulton Ave., Baltimore, Md. He was to race in the regatta but no other cruisers entered the competition.

Top honors for out-board racing went to Robert McMurdock Jr., and James Shepherd, 1250 Irving St., N.W., seen in their prize winning boat.



Winners for the in-board motor racing went to M. Beckley and Harvey Rosen of Highland Beach.

A pretty nymph snapped on the sands was Miss Alva H. Allen, 2229 M St., N.E., who was one of the members of the queen's court, presided over by Miss Barbara Ann Miller.

Above, S. O. Nixon, a judge, reads the rules of the races to Dr. John Turner, Robert McMurdock, William Miner, and Dr. Robert Murdock. Below, another charming guest at the races was Miss Helen Austin Tyler, 626 Rock Creek Church Rd., Washington.

Dr. Ethel Nixon Mounsey and family are surrounded by a host of friends and guests who observed the races, among whom are: Mrs. Edith Miner and family; Mrs. Grayce Jones and family and Eric Mondesire and Donald Reape, both of New York.

Among other spectators at the regatta were, left to right: Adrine Featherstone, Lois Turner, Arlene Marshall, all of Washington; Raquel West and Beverely West 2229 Seminary Rd., Arlington, Va.; Katherine Marshal, Vilma Branson, and Joan Stockton of Washington.
