Boy Killed in Fall in Path of Train

PHILADELPHIA

A West Philadelphia boy was killed when he fell down a 40-foot embankment into the path of a Pennsylvania Railroad local train, last Thursday afternoon.

Victim of the tragedy was Frank Harrison, 8, one of the five children of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harrison, 3942 Parrish St.

Investigators said the boy and several others were playing at 40th St. and Mantua Ave. when he fell down the embankment. The train, operated by J. H. Weiss, of Jeffersonville, hurled his body 100 feet.

They'll Reign at Morgan-W. Va. State Classic

but in doing so his slipper fell off.

Boy Struck by Slipper

A 7-year-old boy standing near the swings, Ralph Howard of the 900 block Mulberry St., picked up the slipper, testimony revealed, and was struck by it when Mr. Temple pulled it from his hands.

Mrs. Johnson and Mr. Temple then proceeded to wrap a heavy chain around the swings and secure them with an Army-type lock. At 7:40 p.m., the police had not arrived, Mrs. Johnson said, so she went home.

Mr. Temple said that he went and sat on his front steps. Looking up, he saw the Howard boy, accompanied by a gang of youths, headed toward him, he testified.

Police Halt Violence

The boy's brother, 18-year-old Emory Howard, Mr. Temple stated, approached him with his hand in his hip pocket.

The tenant testified that as Emory came closer, he (Temple) kicked him, knocking the youth off balance. Mr. Temple said that Emory snatched a brick and hurled it at him, smashing the door of his house.

Hustling away from the angry gang, Mr. Temple ran to a police car that just reached the scene. The tenant set the time of police arrival at 7:50 p.m., roughly 10 minutes after the initial call was made.

Manager Reports Vandalism

Warren Weaver, the project manager, told Magistrate Thomas L. Fitzpatrick that use of the swings after hours has been a pressing problem since their installation in une.

At that time, there were 15 locks for the swings, he said, but they have been broken by vandals during the night, so only three are left.

The activities of neighborhood gangs are so malicious, Mr. Weaver stated, that children living in the projects are in constant fear of beatings. Mr. Weaver revealed that the Howards are former tenants in the project.

Police Vigilance Urged

Magistrate Fitzpatrick suggested that policemen on the project beat investigate acts of vandalism and the activities of the gangs.

The magistrate dismissed assault charges against Mr. Temple and Emory Howard. He warned Howard that his actions "could have incited a riot."

Boy Scout Drive Gets Under Way

A city-wide roll call of Boy Scouts is now being conducted in connection with the nation Scout inventory which ends Oct. 15. During this period Scout officials will inspect each unit and gate it according to appearance on individual coats and their performances during the past year.

The roll call will include all members of the Scout family-cubs, Boy Scouts and explorers.

Recruiting Campaign

An effort is also being made to extend the Scout program to a larger number of boys. This will be done by recruiting new members for existing Scout units and forming new organizations in areas not new under the influence of Scouting.

An all-day round-up will be held at Morgan State College Oct. 7. It will be climaxed by a football game between Morgan and Lincoln University. The scouts will be guest at the game and will be allowed to bring two friends.

Birth Records Bureau Schedules Interviews

Confidential interviews for persons wishing to correct birth records will be held Wednesday from 5 to 7 p.m. in the office of the Bureau of Vital Records on the first floor of the Municipal Building, Holliday and Lexington Sts.

This service, which is offered semi-monthly, is designed to assist persons wishing to correct birth certificates of children, particularly in cases of legitimation, adoption and paternity.

New $55,000 AME Hemingway Temple

This is the architect's drawing of the $55,000 Hemingway Temple AME Church building being erected at Cherry Hill. Edifice is named for Bishop L. H. Hemingway, area prelate, and will be equipped with $20,000 worth of furnishings. The congregation of the church, of which the Rev. Melvin Swann is pastor, was organized in May.

Clear Ground for $55,000 AME Chapel in Cherry Hill

The bulldozer cleared the ground this week, for the foundation to be laid in the construction of the $55,000 Hemingway Temple AME Church at Cherry Hill.

The church is the first of any denomination to be constructed in that area. It was organized in May, and has some 50 members. The Rev. M. C. Swann is pastor.

During construction of the new edifice, which will have $20,000 worth of equipment, and 19 memorial windows in memory of outstanding deceased Baltimore ministers, the congregation is worshiping in a vacant store loaned gratis by a neighborhood property owner, the pastor said.

Electric Organ

The Rev. Mr. Swann added that the electric organ of the church will be dedicated in honor of the late Bishop W. Sampson Brooks, once pastor of Bethel AME Church.

He revealed that although the Conference of the AME Church is paying for the $55,000 building, the members are furnishing the equipment.

The conference, the minister explained, is building the church as a missionary project, and it is the second church actually to be constructed by the AME Church in 130 years.

The other was Ebenezer AME Church located in South Baltimore, the Rev. Mr. Swann stated.

The new edifice is named for Bishop L. H. Hemingway who officiated at ground breaking ceremonies this summer.

Its two floors will include in addition to the chapel, a pastor's room, reception room, board room, study, secretary's office, choir nursery, cloak room;

A kitchen complete with steam table, cafeteria style; and a large basement room which can be subdivided into smaller meeting rooms.

The church building will be located at Woodview Rd. and Bookert Drive.
