Langston Hughes's Drama Makes Bow

Co-starring Muriel Rahn and Lawrence Tibbett, "The Barrier," opened in Washington, Tuesday night featuring a musical score by Jan Meyerowitz. The drama is based on Langston Hughes's "Mulatto," in which Abbie Mitchell played Cora, the role taken by Miss Rahn. Above, Miss Rahn and Mr. Hughes read a telegram of congratulations from Miss Mitchell.

10 Choral Groups Slated for Severna Park Rally

SEVERNA PARK, Md.—The third anniversary of the Love One Another Group will be held at the Town Neck Methodist Church on Sunday.

Choral groups appearing on the program will be the son Sextet, Napolis Harmoneers, Asbury Gospel Choir, Mount Moriah Gospel Choir, all of Annapolis; the Conway Trio of Odenton, the Golden Light Quartet, the Jerusalem Four, the Diamond Jubilee Quartet and the Echo Gospel Singers, all of Baltimore, and the Silver Spring Choir of Silver Spring.

The Rev. S. T. Brown is pastor of the church. Mrs. Rachel Cook, manager, and Mrs. Colbert, secretary.

Do You Recognize This Man?

Washingtonians who were reading local newspapers 25 years ago may remember this picture. It shows Langston Hughes when he worked as a bus boy at the Wardman Park Hotel here, where his poetic talents were discovered by Poet Vachel Lindsay. This week Mr. Hughes, now a successful author, returned to the Capital for the opening at the New Gayety Theatre of "The Barrier," a musical drama based on his play, "Mulatto."

Mrs. Hedgeman to Talk on Need for Volunteers

She will speak at an open forum of the Center, 1513 U St., N.W., on Monday, Oct. 2 at 8 p.m.

24th Gets Two Dressed Only in Underwear

WITH THE 24TH INFANTRY IN SOUTH KOREA—Two teenage North Koreans surrendered to the 24th Infantry Regiment here this week, and regimental headquarters saw in their surrender further evidence that the enemy is getting desperate in his need of men.

The two youngsters, 17 and 18 years old, were dressed only in North Korean Army underwear.

They said that to avoid conscription in the Communist Army they had fled to the hills from their home in North Korea but had been captured when they left the hills in search of food.

No Chance to Practice

They told intelligence officers that when captured they were drilled for one week and then practiced mountain climbing. They were not given a rifle until the first day they were sent in battle, they said.

They escaped, they told an interpreter, when they were ordered to chop up some branches with which to camouflage their foxholes.

"We left our guns and pretended to be going to do as we were told. Once out of sight we ran off, throwing off our uniforms as we ran.

"Soon we saw American troops. We waved white towels over our heads and surrendered."

The youths were fed their first full meal in weeks by the men of the 24th. They had been given one rice ball a day with the North Koreans, they said.

The 24th also captured a 42-year-old farmer last week who said he had been conscripted Aug. 22.

Voorhees vs. St. Paul

DENMARK, S.C. — The Tigers of Voorhees School and Junior College open the 1950 football team at home against St. Paul's Polytechnic Institute of Lawrenceville, Va., on October 7. Last year, in a season which saw Voorhees go undefeated, the South Carolina team trounced the Saints, 19-6, on the Virginia school's home grounds.

NEW GOVERNMENT SECRETARY:

Virgin Islands Post Goes to W. Va. Man

WASHINGTON

A Howard University Law School graduate of the class of 1924 was named by President Truman this week to the government secretaryship for the Virgin Islands.

Daniel W. Ambrose Jr., 54, of Huntington, W.Va., who has been employed in the State auditor's office since 1937, with the exception of four years from June, 1940, until 1944, was given the post.

Mr. Ambrose has served as delegate-at-large to the Democratic National Convention from West Virginia at each of the quadrennial gatherings since 1936.

Heads Bar Group

He was at one time regional director of the National Bar Association and is at present president of the Mountain State Bar Association.

Mr. Ambrose is a member of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity and was at one time polemarch of the Charleston, W.Va., alumni chapter.

Married, he is the father of three children.

He will take over the post formerly held by Morris F. DeCastro, who was named governor earlier this year.

In winning the nomination, Mr. Ambrose was supported by Sen. Matthew Neely (Dem., W.Va.) and Rep. William L. Dawson, top Negro minority leader in the Democratic Party.

Phooey on the Fight! Women Set the Drama

By LULA JONES GARRETT

NEW YORK—Your brothers may tell you that there's was not the old ring-to-the-fight—that—the—former bouts had, but I'll bet your sisters found drama-a-plenty on the front.

But then the drama was distinctly to the distaff side and had more to do with throwing glamour than throwing punches.

Marva Shows Up

We (the gals) were as excited as punch when the former Mrs. Joe Louis turned up on the scene early in the day, the rumored rift in Mrs. Louis being right in there, and a couple of would-be's about also to give full measure. We also wanted to know what continued the new Champion was drawing for to which we didn't even get a gallery seat, however.

Marva tripped into Yankee Stadium about 10 minutes before the championship bout began. She picked all of her usual fashion punch. Her smart black frock flaunted the new flyaway panel. Her hat was a wide black sailor set to the fore on her clipped curls. Her accessories were black and she tied the whole together with a stole of silver-blu-mink. She was still quite an eyeful.

She and her new husband, Dr. Albert (Ted) Spaulding, occupied ringside seats. They and their party which included Lillian and Burell Keithley and Jessie Thornton, all of Detroit, also had a suite in the Theresa Hotel, as she had in the old days.

Enter Carol

Not five minutes after Dr. and Mrs. Spaulding had taken their seats, in glided model Carol Faulkner, who the gossips are saying will become Mrs. Joseph Bastrop any day now, even if the principals are not backing up the rumor with statements.

And I mean glided. Her intricately cut high heeled bronze sandals scarcely seemed to touch the ground as she tripped to her ring side seat.

Her frock was a brown crepe tunic affair, the tunic and skirt bottom edged in bronze steel bead fringe. And that slight tilt of her hips, a characteristic Faulkner walk certainly did nothing to lessen the attractiveness of that figure poured into the frock.

Wrapped about her shoulders was an armful of sable scarves.

She wore no hat. Her hair, still being worn long, was piled in an elaborate coiffure atop her head. The million-dollar Faulkner smile completed the picture.

More Glamour

Well, so much for the stars of the show. The other members of the cast added to the glamour of the scene. Mrs. Jean Jones, in front row Double-J Ranch, her Countess Mme. Ch. Lanvin, in suave black and a silver-blu-mink stole to top all stoles, swathing her shoulders and swinging to the very tip of her skirt. A tiny black cloche partly covering her gold-blond hair.

With her and Mr. Jones was Mr. David Battle of Detroit, smart in black and silver fox. Washington's Jean Clore in pale pink flannel suit and fox scarves. The Carl Hunters of the Bronx were also seen, she adding to the scene in a beige suit, full-length silver fox jacket and navy accessories. Latest news, the designer in gray velvet with a silver-mink stole.

Pitt Quartet Scores

A smartly garbed party from Pittsburgh included Mrs. Birdie Dunlap, who wore a spice costume suit, the reversible coat lined with broadtail; Mrs. Juanita Bates in black velvet suit and mink stole; Mrs. Gladys Beverly a blue mohair cape above her taupe suit, the latter embroidered in bronze steel beads; and Miss Margaret Hines in brown American broadtail furs over a smart brown suit.

Then there were Mrs. Nan Jackson of New York in an ultra smart red suit and blond mink cape, and Mrs. Mary Simkins, Washington restaurant owner, in gray wool, black accessories and silver fox jacket, who flew up to the fight and was flying back immediately afterwards.

Calm in Manhattan

The town folks took the fight non-chalantly, chiefly with a cock-tail and a seat at their own telecasts. Bill Graham threw a party. But the out-of-towners piled into town, had themselves a time at the usual haunts.

Among those glimpsed were: Dr. J. T. Jones, who has been practicing medicine in Charleston, W.Va., for the past 30 years; Mr. William Jones, Dayton, Ohio mortician; the Lamert Robertses of Chicago, the Sonnie Wilson of Detroit, Florette Duncan of Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. W. Keaton of Milwaukee, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Williams of Grand Rapids, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. Wiggins Jones, Sylvester Washington and George Hardley of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Bryant, up from Jacksonville, Fla., Julia Jones, down from Boston, Dr. J. Billings of Marvillion, Ohio, Silas Hall of Washington, C. G. Price of Los Angeles, Al Gladney of Washington, Mrs. Steve Brown and Mrs. Marie Brown of Charleston, W. Va., Walter Johnson of Washington.

From Columbus

A party including Mesdames Elmore Lattimore, Susie Garrett, Kathzie Bryant and Nannie Parks from Columbus, Ohio, the Robert C. Greenes of Buffalo, N.Y., Thomas Watts of Chicago, Dr. and Mrs. Robert P. Bennett of Detroit, James Hicks of Parole, Md., William Thomas, Washington.
