Town Drops Doldrums Sets Fast Fall Pace

By Lula Jones Garrett

When it rains, hereabout, it pours.

The social calendar may be as bleak as a January morn, then all of a sudden things begin to pop. For instance, skip the next two weeks, then take the week end of the 27th.

The Silhouettes (wives of Kappa men) have set their annual barn dance for that Friday night, at Morgan Hall, where they will don farm garb and frolic—to the tune of a fee—to garner funds for their scholarship project.

The same evening the Companions (they're the gals who work their fingers right down to their well manicured nails to provide Incubators for Provident Hospital) will dance, formally, at Biddle Hall. Twill be their tenth anniversary, and the ball is being designed with a Parisian flavor, preceded by cocktails, et al.

The same weekend Chi Eta Phi Sorority, holding the fifth annual Boule here, will break out in a rash of affairs, including sessions from the 27th through the 29th at the YWCA, and a luncheon deluxe in the reception room of the Douglas Memorial Church.

Lou Lockerman is arranging the latter affair, and has garnered Dr. Ethel Nixon, Johns Hopkins psychiatrist, as speaker. The Boule program is in charge of a committee headed by Panida Friend, and include Mrs. Lockerman, Vivian Pendleton, Mabel Hawkins, Hazel Bailey, Lillian Slater, Ella Hughes and Mozelle Dickerson.

MUSICAL TEA SET

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Musical Arts Institute has set their membership tea for Sunday afternoon, the 15th, at the Institute. The program will be under direction of Hans Flexners, director of the Institute, and will be followed by a social hour, explained President Alice Arrington, this week.

Daisy Bailey is chairman of the membership committee this year.

Next Saturday, the 14th, the executive committee of the Maryland League of Women's Clubs will hold the fifth "President's luncheon" at the YWCA, this year having as speaker Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, past president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Guests at this annual affair are presidents of clubs belonging to the League, and this session will be devoted to the consideration of responsibility of presidents in making organizations effective.

And earlier than this affair, the Chipperettes will have cocktails in the Blue Room of the York Hotel. The eleventh is the date. The hostesses are Nicky Randolph, Frances Wood, Ellsworth Rhetta, Louis Robinson, Arnetta Lottier, Vonnelia Miller, Cita Finney, Bernadine Harrison and Pauline Caulk.

And come Sunday, Dr. and Mrs. A. U. Porte's whose son is to be christened at St. James Episcopal Church, will receive at their Caroline Street home following the ritual.

So much for what is to come... on to the news of this week:

MRS. McPHERSON HOSTESS

Mary Catherine McPherson had the prettiest cocktailer on Wednesday evening for her house guest, Edna Seay of Brooklyn, national president of the Jack and Jill Club of America.

Her table was something to photograph in color, and you could, with justness, have included the hostess (in cafe lace and matching sandals); the honoree (in svelte black crepe with a touch of stark white embroidery at the decolletee neckline) and the whole shebang of guests in the picture.

Mrs. Seay had been on a southern tour, getting up a new chapter in Albany, Ga., visiting one in Virginia, and was here to discuss plans for the annual convention which will be held in this city the first week end in June.

Vernice Wynn, national secretary-treasurer, was hostess to the convention committee on Monday, when Mrs. Seay conferred with the local president, Sadie Marshall; and the convention chairman, Ida Smith. At the dinner party given by Mrs. Wynn that evening the honoree was joined by her husband, George Seay. The Wynn family and Mrs. Marshall were others present.

On Tuesday the program committee held a meeting, at which time the national program chairman, Sarah Scott of Philadelphia, joined the group. Mrs. Seay and Mrs. Scott were honorees at a dinner party at the YWCA, preceded by cocktails at the home of Mrs. Smith. Olga Parker and Bernice Monroe, co-chairmen of the convention committee; Mrs. Marshall; Mrs. Wynn and Helen Lee were others at dinner.

At Mrs. McPherson's were: Hilda Higgins, Verda Welcome, Lydia Musgrove, Sadie Marshall, Ida Smith, Helen Lee, Evelyn Bass, Olivivia Dixon, Dr. Gladys Jones, Dorothy Atkins, Olga Parker, Lulu Patterson, Louise Lamb, Monterey Clay, Alyce Young, Vernice Wynn, Josephine Rogers and Senora Reckling.

Dr. Luna Moshoe entertained the Michigan Club on Thursday evening. The group is composed of couples, of which either the wife or husband is a graduate an alumnus of the University of Michigan. Erma Davis is president and timate aim of the club is towards a scholarship fund.

The Baltimore Club of the National Association of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, at its meeting within the week elected President Lillian Watty, Delores Hunt and Emma Hilson as delegates to the national convention which will be held in Newark, N.J. the last week end in this month.

Edna Thrower is alternate.

Chief feature of the evening was a political panel with representatives from the League of Women Voters, Joseph Neal and Mrs. Bernice Moore as speakers. The forum was arranged by Veta Greg. Their card party is set for this Friday evening.

LINKS MEET

Marie Bourne entertained the Links at her home in Frederick at the opening meeting Saturday. President Audrey Butler welcomed members and discussed the program for the coming year.

The chapter will participate in two special projects outlined by the national including serving as a vigilance committee alert to unfavorable publicity which seeks to stereotype the group and stage a quiet unpublicize campaign, among students of all school levels, from elementary through high, to influence conduct and citizenship.

Their projects on the local front will continue to be the Interdenominational Nursery, inmates of the homes for the aged, and a cocktail party to aid in their scholarship fund.

Officers for the year are:

Mrs. Butler, president; Mae Adams, vice president; Bea Butler, treasurer; Etta Phifer, secretary; and committee chairmen: Mrs. Adams, program; Mrs. Bourne, constitution; Florence Gloster, civic; Catherine Adams, publicity; Pearlie Pennington, inter cultural; Mrs. Beatrice Butler, finance; Xaveria McDonald, social; and Theresa Waters, special activities.

Following the business session Mrs. Bourne served supper to the above, also member Lillian Berry.

Walter Pinderhughes is seriously ill in Johns Hopkins Hospital—diabetes the malady. In town the past week were the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Carlisle Stewart of Chicago. Mrs. Stewart, you recall, won the Joe Louis golf trophy, this year. They had been to Washington to enter their daughter, Barbara, in Howard Medical School and came here for a visit with the John H. Murphys Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Young were hosts at dinner, Sunday, to Jerome Osborne of Washington. Mr. Osborne had spent the summer in Michigan, and is readying to return to Mexico, where he has spent the past four winters. The Youngs had just celebrated a silver wedding anniversary.

The Monumental Golf Club held forth at the Kleeko Club, this week, discussed plans for entertaining the Atlantic City team on the 15th. The Omega men held forth for their wives at a party at the same club Wednesday evening. Some hundred or more guests inspected the New Albert Theatre, Wednesday night, seeing "Macbeth" and later having cocktails with the management under the able hosting of Carlton Douglass, William Haines, Leon Ellison, Bernice Weeden and Mrs. M. Hopkins.

Mrs. Ulysses Glover took her daughter, Ulyssia, and perked off to Norfolk, Va. to visit with her family. Misses Emma, Jane and Kate Sheppard of this city and Myerzdale, Pa., in New York last week, saw something of Hyde Park as well as Hartford, Conn., where they were dined by Dr. and Mrs. D. Pugbsley. With them was their brother, Theodore.

CLUB DATA

On Wednesday evening members of the Stork Club met at the Eden Street home of Esther LaForest, to hear Isabel Berger of the Children's Experimental Theatre talk on creative dramatics for children.

About were:

Evelyn Bass, president; Charlotte Hackett, Irene Templeton, Mae Williams, Catherine Greene, Elsie Dotson, Llewellyn Walker, Ethel Covington, Marguerite Daniels, Jean Turpin, Elsie Robinson, Gladys Presstwidge, Mary Patterson and Olga Parker.

Clara Hallon was a guest.

YOU CAN'T PRINT THAT!

One of the town's better known couples is keeping crossed fingers for fear their choice disguise bubble of being an ideal married pair will burst before they plan to spring, if on their close friends to say nothing of their interested neighbors. Despite their constant being out together, etc., their marriage has been washed for seven years.

While they are busy loves-doving in public for their friend's benefit their lawyer have been quietly dividing their community property. After the severing she will be wed to an old flame of years standing and he will marry a young chick whom he met during World War II when the local contingent of gals took over the post office and most of what went with it . . . that is if she is still available.

Drift of the affair though is that the Chick, tired of waiting for his move, is moving in another direction, and Friend Wife won't let Hubby explain the situation for fear one leak will result in a total leak.

Not All Work for Jack and Jill President

Slow-Cooking Menus May Be Quickest Way to Jiffy Meal

Quick meals aren't always the ones that cook in the shortest time. Some of the speediest are those that can be put together in a jiffy, then put into the oven to cook while you sew a fine seam or clean the hall closet without dashing in every few minutes to take a look.

Next time you have a tedious baking squash stuffed with sausage plus scalloped potatoes and baked apples. Quick-to-make slaw completes the meal. Acorn squash are ideal for stuffing and provide meat and vegetable in one neat package. Thy take an hour to cook, but once they're stowed in the oven, you can forget them.

Acorn Squash With Sausage

Wash squash and split. Remove seeds and fibers with a spoon. Place in a baking dish or pan in an inch of water with the cut side down. Bake in a 350 degree oven while you prepare apples, potatoes and sausage balls. Brown the sausage lightly and pour off the fat. Turn the squash over and fill the centers with sausage. Now put your dinner in the oven and forget it for 30 to 45 minutes.

Some day soon you'll probably be baking a ham. Put acorn squash with the hollows filled with butter and maple syrup alongside it in the oven. Broccoli with lemon butter fits this menu.

When you buy acorn squash look for very firm dark green ones. If they're yellow they may be stringy and if the skin is even slightly soft they're not as good as they should be. The same goes for Hubbard, those bumpy giants that are about the lowest priced vegetable you can buy. They may be streaked with yellow however, and still be good.

Never boil either acorn or Hubbard squash in quantities of water. If you don't bake, steam them in about an inch of water in a tightly covered pan and over a low heat. Then scoop out the richly flavored inside and beat with butter, a little cream and a dash of salt. A little brown sugar and ginger give a second helping flavor.
