Schoolmarm Turns Scriptwriter

AIR-LANES TO AIR-WAVES:

Md. Teacher Quit Job for Career in Radio

When Horace Greeley wrote the famous words, "Go West Young Man," he saw in the virgin country a land of great opportunity.

Miss Mildred Dawes, 2534 Madison Ave., is not a young man, but she's taking a tip from Greeley and is heading west.

The popular young school teacher, who dabbles in radio script writing during her spare time, has succumbed to the lure of the airwaves, resigned her job and is heading for the greener fields of Chicago.

50 Scripts Accepted

Miss Dawes, who wrote her first radio script five years ago, has since written approximately 50 scripts that have been used on various radio programs. She is also in constant demand as a narrator at fashion shows.

Clarence Carter, director of the Carson School of Modeling, said of Miss Dawes, "She's a wonderful ad libber and a superior announcer."

Miss Dawes, who lives with her mother, Mrs. Lula Dawes in their Madison Ave. apartment, says that she has always been interested in writing, but she began writing and directing plays for children at Banneker School No. 113.

Worked for Civic Groups

As time passed her yen for writing and announcing grew stronger and she turned out radio scripts for the Citizen's Planning and Housing Association, Tuberculosis Association, The Girl Scouts and numerous other civic groups.

She worked with Anne Mercer's Little Folk's Theatre Group, did radio acting with the Greenwich Theatre and was narrator for the Carson School of Modeling graduation, Hendin's Hollywood Fashion AFRO fashion show and did spots announcing for local theatres.

In July, Miss Dawes flew to Chicago to study speech at Northwestern University and the elaborate broadcasting setup within the Chicago school system.

Free-Lance Work Clicks

During her 2-month stay in Chicago, Miss Dawes free-lanced radio scripts which are still being used by "Randy Gilly", station—and decided to forsake teaching for radio.

Immediately upon returning to Baltimore she tendered her resignation from the city school system.

The Dawes-written scripts are always scripts that carry a message, she opines. "There are many people I hope to reach in my work and I think that I've made the proper move to reach them."

In Chicago, Miss Dawes plans to free-lance scripts, study at Northwestern and eventually get into the Chicago school system—as a radio script-writer.

Next Saturday, Mildred Dawes will board a plane and wing west. Miss Mildred Dawes, who forsook the classroom to devote her time to the writing of radio scripts, injects her personality into a new script. She will insert the air-lanes to the air-waves—her first date.

Head of Walker Post at Legion Convention

WASHINGTON

Douglas C. Richardson, commander of James E. Walker Post 26 of the American Legion, is on the West Coast this week, attending the annual convention of the Legion in Los Angeles.

Mr. Richardson, who lives at 118 S St. N.W., is a veteran of World War I. He was recently re-elected commander of the Walker Post, where he has been a member for several years.

Goldie Green, Soprano, in Sunday Recital at Enon will appear here in recital on Sunday at Enon Baptist Church, at 5 o'clock, accompanied by Sara Paeff of the Paeff Quartet.

Miss Green, daughter of Mrs. Goldie Green and the late Rev. J. H. Green of Baltimore, is a winner of the Marian Anderson Scholarship.

In 1946, Miss Green was awarded another scholarship to the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia from which she graduated last May. In 1949, she was selected to represent her school in its anniversary program at the Academy of Music, where she sang the role of Tatiana in Russian from Tanchaikowsky's "Eugene Onegin," under the conductorship of the famous Eugene Ormandy.

In October of 1949, she received the J.W.G.G.'s award. Following a series of competitive auditions, she was presented in a formal recital at Town Hall in April when she sang to a capacity house.

When she appears here Sunday under sponsorship of the Baltimore Music Guild of the National Association of Negro Musicians, Inc., she will include on her program works from Stradella, Caccini, Scarlatti, Schumann, Brahms, Strauss and Bellini.

Pressure Mounts Against Ford's Jim Crow Policy

Muriel Rahn, star of "The Barrier" and Langston Hughes, author of the play that recently by-passed Baltimore's Ford's Theatre, endorsed the NAACP this week, in its fight against the jim-crow policy of the local playhouse.

Mr. Hughes wrote Mrs. Lillie Jackson, president of the Baltimore NAACP, that "for colored actors to perform in theatres where their own friends and relatives may not purchase seats as desired causes both the artiste and the colored people humiliation."

He declared, "I am happy that my play is not being performed in Baltimore under existing conditions."

Miss Rahn Hits Policy

Miss Rahn hit at the fact that discrimination on the part of the theatre management is denying music-lovers and theatre-goers the privilege of seeing and hearing her distinguished co-star, Lawrence Tibbett.

"I am glad I will not suffer the humiliation of appearing in a theatre which denies free access to people of all creeds and colors," Miss Rahn asserted.

Meanwhile, the NAACP and the Committee for Non-Segregation in Baltimore Theatres, released a statement that scored the conditions at Ford's. The statement was signed by some 100 colored and white citizens.

Theatre Has Responsibility

The statement pointed out that the theatre, like the museum and the library has the responsibility of serving the entire community. This cannot be done, it went on, when there is segregation and discrimination.

Other places of culture in Baltimore that are opened to all races include the Lyric, Maryland, Civic and Hilltop Theatres, the auditoriums of the Peabody Conservatory, the Baltimore Museum of Art and the Enoch Pratt Library, the statement added.
