Capital Trio In Baltimore Tilt

Three District area schools will be represented in the Charity Football Classic, Nov. 4, at 8 p.m. between Morgan and Wilberforce in the Baltimore Memorial Stadium.

Headed by Quarterback Herman (Stump) Baylor, Cardozo will have three representatives with Fullback Paul Clark and Halfback Sidney Parker. Representing Armstrong will be Guard Dan Davis and Tackle Adam Scott.

Frederick Lewis, 185-pound tackle, and Center Sam Lucas will team up with Quarterback Paul Colbert, to round out the District representatives.

The charity tilt is sponsored by the Frontiers Club of Baltimore. Proceeds will go to the Harriett Lane Home of Hopkins Hospital, South Baltimore General Hospital, and the aged home of the Methodist, Baptist, and AME Churches.

D.C. Gridders Face Bears

Adams Scott, tackle, a graduate of Armstrong High, Washington, D.C., comes to Baltimore on Nov. 4 with the Wilberforce State College eleven to oppose Morgan in the Frontiers Club Charity Game at the City Stadium.

Paul Colbert, a back, who played The Green Wave also brings along High, Washington. He, too, may his scholastic football at Dunbar Morgan lock on the gridiron at see action when Wilberforce and Baltimore's City Stadium, Nov. 4.

Five Groups to Be Helped by Frontiers' Grid Classic

"We are grateful for the assistance being offered us by the Frontiers Club," say officials of the five institutions which will benefit from the Charity Football Classic on Nov. 4.

Support of this night tilt between the Morgan "Bears" and the Wilberforce "Green Wave" in Baltimore Memorial Stadium will pay dividends in human happiness and comfort affecting the old and young of both races in homes and hospitals.

Faced with rising prices, each has an immediate use for any additional funds.

Aged Home One Beneficiary

The N. M. Carroll Home for the Aged of the Methodist Church houses 35 persons, the oldest 103. Garrett D. Rawlings, chairman of the Carroll Home board, stated that the gift of the Frontiers Club will be used for the building fund.

On Tuesday the home awarded a contract for $65,000 worth of improvements. This sum will be spent for renovating the orginal structure at 822 N. Carrollton Ave., annex, and help pay for the recently purchased adjoining building at 824 N. Carrollton.

South Baltimore General Hospital, 1213 Light St., another beneficiary, will be enabled to work toward the equalization of the facilities housing colored patients.

To Tripple Racial Facilities

Donald Mills, hospital superintendent, said:

"We now have 12 beds in inadequate facilities for our colored patients. Our aim is to add 38 beds. This of course, will call for additional oxygen tents, dressing carts, incubators, linens and nursery facilities."

Although it failed to meet its goal in a recent fund drive, the hospital is still committed to providing equal facilities for all patients. The gift of the Frontiers Club Club will help make this a reality.

Children's Home Serves All

Opened in 1911, the Harriet Lane Home of Johns Hopkins Hospital, a third agency to benefit from the classic, is the first children's hospital in the United States.

It was established with funds from the estate of Harriet Lane Johnson, a niece of James Buchanan, former President of the United States.

"During our 49 years of operation, we have served children from all over the world," said Dr. Francis F. Schwentker, pediatrician-in-chief at the Lane Home.

This children's hospital facility treats over 200 patients a day and approximately 53,000 a year. It gives medical, welfare, social, home nursing and home visiting services. With such a tremendous patient load it operates constantly under a deficit.

It too, will welcome the Frontiers Club gift.

Two Other Aged Homes

At the time original plans were made for the Charity Football Classic, the AME Home for the Aged, another beneficiary, was located at 122 N. Aisquith St. On Sept. 1, it was moved to Kittrell, N.C., on the grounds of Kittrell College.

The fifth institution to benefit from the Nov. 4 classic is the Maryland Baptist Home for Aged Colored People, 1520 W. Lexington St., of which the Rev. Matthew Wilkerson is supervisor.

Proect Pushed Enthusiastically

The Rev. Mr. Wilkerson said funds received through this Frontiers project will be used to help meet the new requirements and regulations set up by the State and City Health Departments for additional personnel, food and nursing care for the 22 residents.

However, the Rev. Melvin C. Swan, former superintendent of the AME Home, assured the club that the money given to it could be used to purchase linens and other necessities to add to the comfort of the residents.

As interest mounts in the football game, Dr. Bernard Harris, president of the Frontiers Club, said all members working enthusiastically to put this venture across.

Among the top ticket sellers are Drs. Maurice Doles, Bruce Alleyne, Louis Harmon, Lucius Butler, George McDonald, Miles Conner, Charles Covington, and Charles Jones.

On The Limb

By GEORGE LYLE JR.

PHILADELPHIA (NNPA) Sugar Ray Robinson makes an appearance here Thursday in defense of the middleweight crown which he won at Municipal Stadium last summer when he outpounded Bob Villemain for the Pennsylvania version of the championship.

It will be his thirteenth defense and this guy Olson is reputedly a toughie. But my dough is riding on the Sugar Boy to win. After all, the biggest upset of the year has already taken place with Notre Dame getting knocked off twice.

MVP AWARD FOR SIMPSON

Harry Simpson, who has picked up the nickname, "Suitcase" out in the coast, was named the Most Valuable Player at the close of the season, by his San Diego fans.

And with the pronouncement that the Indians have an option on his services for next season it looks like the boy is on his way up, at long last.

And it was a difficult decision, that he had to make a few years ago. He was playing with the Philly Stars during the regular season and jaunting to Venezuela in the winter, where he was a very popular figure. At one time I heard from him and he had decided to remain in South America but, after a few communiques between us he took a chance and came back to the States for another try. And before the summer was over he had been sent to Wilkes Barre.

Just goes to show you, one never knows what is ahead.

Maybe now that the Macks have placed Jimmy Dykes at the helm, some more of the brethren will get a show. At least we want be able to say that Connie wouldn't give them a chance. Rumor already has it that a colored scout will be on the payroll and although I haven't any definite knowledge to base this on, it could be Billy Yancey.

Maryland State will play one Nordic club this year, Wilkes College of Wilkes Barre, Pa., on Armistice Day.

NOTE, ON O.B.

There has been a lot of talk lately about the major league's policy of ending their season on the dot. This, it is said, gives some teams an unfair advantage when they get rained out of games at the end of the year when a win might mean the difference between winning or losing the flag.

I'd suggest that the season be cut a few days in order to let those teams make up their rained out games and still have a chance to start the Series around October first.

Ray Robinson Kayos Olson

Sugarboy Defends Pa. Middleweight Title

PHILADELPHIA — Sugar Ray Robinson racked up his 120th victory in 121 ring starts over an 1-year-period here Thursday night when he stopped Carl Olson, of Honolulu, in the 12th round of a bout scheduled to go fifteen.

A disappointing crowd of 5,034 paying customers watched Robinson easily dispose of the Hawaiian 160-pound aspirant in a match that was at first dull, then interesting only because of the Harlem Daddy's workmanship.

Olson, showing considerable respect for the punching prowess of the world welterweight champion, employed a purely defensive style. Elbows held high and fists protruding, he covered his chin and jaw unusually well.

Relaxes Style

But Robinson who, incidentally, was defending his Pennsylvania middleweight crown, solved the Hawaiian's technique without much trouble. He simply pounded away at the body until late in the fight when he made Olson lower his guard to withstand the punishment.

In the eighth and ninth, Sugar Ray got solid shots at the Olson head and the latter rocked under their impact. Robbie lost the eleventh because of a low-blow penalty, but in the twelfth, he got home with a crushing right cross that dropped Olson like a log.

Referee Charley Daggert counded him out at 1:19 of the stanza.

In preliminary bouts, Shamus O'Brien, a Joe Louis sparring partner, was knocked out by Dan Burton, of Philadelphia, in two heats; Lloyd Tate, former Philadelphia amateur titlist, was dethroned by Danny Wember, of NYC, and Terry Moore, of Baltimore, chopped down Lou Pompey, of Scranton, Pa.

Crippled Morgan Eleven in Greensboro for A & T Tilt

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Morgan State College Bears arrived here early Friday to await their meeting with once-beaten A and T College in the latter's annual homecoming game.

Morgan had her record of fourteen straight games without defeat or tie, marred last weekend in the National Classic when West Virginia State held the Bears to a 6-6 stand-off.

Not only were the Bruins checked in their quest of their fifteenth consecutive win, but they were hard hit by injuries to backfield stars, George Rooks, Johnny Triplett, and Russell Young. None of this trio upon whom the Bears rank heavily for offensive punch is likely to see action against A. & T.

Coaches Gloomy

To say that the Morgan coaching staff is gloomy over this week's prospects would be an understatement. A & T has a powerhouse squad, coached by Bill Bell, former Ohio State star, and it was the North Carolina eleven that handed the Bears their last setback, 6-0, in 1948.

Then, too, the Aggies were unceremoniously dumped from the ranks of the undefeated last weekend by Florida A. & M., and will be on the rebound against Morgan, a team that all conference teams would like most to beat.

Cage Caps to Broadcast 33 Games After Nov. 1

The Washington Caps, with Earl Lloyd the first tall cager in the lineup, will have all their games broadcast over Radio Station WWDC beginning Nov. 1.

The Caps will face the Indianapolis Olympians on that date. A total of 33 games will be broadcast.
