LITTLE PIGS MAY MAKE BIG MONEY

Bushel Of Corn Will Make Ten Pounds Of Pork and Keep Farm Fertile.

C. L. OPPERMAN.

Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Milk is more digestible for little pigs than any other food. They should not have any coarse feeds at first. When they are two weeks old they may have a little shelled corn and some slop in a trough by themselves. They should have plenty of trough room so as not to crowd each other and make runts. Little pigs, to be kept in good growing condition should have good pasture and some grain feed. They are especially fond of grass, clover, alfalfa and soy beans and when fed in addition a grain mixture of one part of corn and two parts of shorts at the rate of four and a half to five pounds a day per 100 pounds weight will make good; cheap pork at an astonishing rate.

When the pig is five to seven months old he is ready to fatten and finish. For this purpose, snapped ear corn and water are second to no other feeds, provided you are not going to feed longer than two months. A cement feeding floor is very desirable since it can be kept clean and does away with the danger of the pigs taking up dirt and worms with their feed. Pigs so treated should fetch the top market price at seven to ten months old.

LIME WORKS WONDERS IN MARYLAND SOIL

Makes Possible An Increased Yield Of Two Barrels Per Acre.

For the past six years Illinois farmers, under the direction of their Agricultural College have been applying the remarkable results obtained from lime tests made by the Maryland Experiment Station, the results of which were published in 1906. Experiments covering twelve years showed that the difference in yield between land unlimed and land treated with lime carbonate or ground shells was in an average of four corn crops, five barrels per acre. The least difference shown between unlimed land and any other form of lime used was three barrels, in four crops of corn or an average increase of from three-fourths to one and a quarter barrels of corn per acre a year. So far an investment of two to three dollars an acre the return per year was $4 to $6 and for four crops for the same investment in lime, $16 to $24. These results are obtainable on most unlimed soils of Southern Maryland and would mean an increase in income to the average farm of $200 to $400 a year as the case might be. If only one-fourth of the cultivated lands of Maryland showed a similar response to the use of lime it would make possible an annual increase in the net returns from the farms of over five millions of dollars. Such results would certainly justify the investment of $25,000 in soil investigations as proposed by the Governor in his message to the Legislature.

POTATO SEED FROM NORTH NOT NEEDED

Seed Grown In Garrett County Gives Higher Yields Than Northern Grown.

T. H. WHITE.

Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

In the spring of 1911, Jas. D. Harvey of Deer Park, Garrett County, forwarded to the Maryland Experiment Station a sample of the Empire State potato. He said it grew especially well under his conditions, and he had been growing it without change of seed for thirty years. It was planted alongside of a sample of the same variety from a dealer in Northern New York. The growth and appearance were almost the same. They withstood the drouth better than many of the other varieties and were the best yielders of that season. The Garrett County seed yielded at the rate of twenty bushels per acre more than the New York seed.

Experiments begun as early as the spring of 1908 along this line indicate that the cool climate Northern seed is grown in accounts for its superiority over home grown seed. So the good results from Garrett County seed are probably due to the cooler climate it is grown in. There is no good reason why farmers living in the mountainous districts of Maryland should not supply the Eastern and tidewater counties with better seed than can be grown in Maine. This could, of course, best be done by concerns or associations that could handle the potato seed in carload lots and keep Maryland money in the State.

MARYLAND'S POSSIBILITIES.

The net return from her 50,000 farms should be doubled.

Her two millions of acres of uncultivated and swamp land could be increased in value tenfold.

Her average yield of corn could be increased two barrels per acre, and this would give to the farmers nearly four million dollars more per year.

ONLY ONE "BEST"

Chestertown People Give Credit Where Credit is Due.

People of Chestertown who suffer with weak kidneys and bad backs want a kidney remedy that can be depended upon. Doan's Kidney Pills is a medicine for the kidneys only, and one that is backed by willing testimony of Chestertown people. Here's a case:

Mrs. Frank Robinson, Front St., Chestertown, Md., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills certainly live up to the claims made for them. They benefited after doctors' medicine and all else had failed. I was often dizzy and nervous and my back and head ached. The kidney secretions also annoyed me. When I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills, I immediately got a supply and they did their work well, giving me prompt and satisfactory relief. I am now strong and well."

Mrs. Robinson is only one of many Chestertown people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Robinson had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores.
