Rev. Bryant Given Nod for Bishopric at Meeting

A significant sidelight to the AME was a Bishopric candidate in AME Preachers' Meeting held at Ocean City, N.J., 1948. He said that he will be the Bethel AME Church from 11 be a candidate again in 1952 when a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday was the convention meets in Chicago. expressed approval of the Rev. He received more than 100 votes Hampton J. Bryant's candidacy for in 1948, losing by a narrow margin. Bishop of the Second Episcopal District.

Being much of the meeting spent praise expressed on the activities of local churches.

Not Great Support

He told the APRO he has a large support of the district already.

the "good fellowship" show at the conference.

Enthusiastic reports were given by the Rev. J. M. Murphy, the Rev. A. J. Felix, president of the ministers' meeting on their exchange of pulpits between the St. John's AME Church and Allen AME Church last Sunday, and other individuals participating in the event.

The two ministers expressed their gratitude for the warm response of the congregations.

Ministers giving reports on their church activities were the Rev. Messrs. T. W. Jackson, H. J. Bryant, W. T. Holland, J. B. Edwards, J. E. Reese, R. R. Yvonne C. C. Brown, R. T. Leak, Harrison Redding, Gray, Felix and Powell.

Evangelists giving reports were Mesdames Ida R. Franklin, Emma J. Swann, Lillie Smith, Lena Reed and Minnie Swann.

Ministers Warned of Procrastination

The Baptist Ministerial Conference heard a stirring message against procrastination by Dr. B. L. Matthews, acting Dean of the Baptist School of Religion, Monday at the Enon Baptist Church.

The Rev. J. H. Moore opened the meeting with a strong message on the need of the Holy Spirit in the work of the church. The Rev. J. C. Peddie talked on the International Sunday School lesson, subject of which was "A Pioneer of God." He said because of Abraham's implicit faith in God, God named him the father of the faithful.

Dr. Matthews, pastor of Union Church and principal speaker, discussed "Men Who Stopped Halfway."

Telling the story of Terah who wanted to get Caan and who died in Haran, because he walked until it was too late, Dr. Matthews said, "Procrastination is not only the thief of time, it is also the chief of our spiritual blessing."

Lacked Ambition

"Terah lacked the elements of character that would have made it possible to reach caanan. He lacked ambition. No progress is possible until a man wants to better his condition.

"He lacked faith. Faith is an activating the influence in the lives of all men who have succeeded.

"Terah allowed the voice of God to die out in his soul," the minister said.

Bishop W. H. Herring Honored in NYC

There was a great gathering of members and friends of New York from Baltimore, Md. to celebrate the Third Annual Herring Day celebration in honor of Bishop W. H. Herring.

There were many testimonies of how God-had healed people of all kinds of diseases.

There were interesting papers and testimonies of Bishop Herring's achievements.

The battle of songs between New York and Baltimore Choruses was most wonderful, ending in a tie.

Mrs. Rebecca McCain sang "Go Ahead" just before the Bishop was presented to bring his annual message. His text was, "Not by Power or Might, but by My Spirit, Saith the Lord." He really preached as never before. The message was very inspiring to all.

The Y.P.W.W. Group of New York, under supervision of Mrs. Victoria Wiggins, Mrs. Bertha Pinkney, Mrs. Alma Jennings and Mr. Lee Spivey served a delicious turkey dinner.

Methodists Defend Social Action

At the Methodist Ministerial Conference held Wednesday at Sharp St. Community House the Rev. J. O. Williams, its president, asked the Civic Affairs Committee to draw up a resolution to defend the Methodist Federation for Social Action, from an attack to have it abolished.

The Rev. Mr. Williams explained that the Federation for Social Action is an unofficial organization of the church which fights discrimination and other forms of social injustice, that a move is being made to get it out of the church.

The Rev. Mr. Williams said that the Methodist Church in its work strives to reform, and that "to reform, you must have a social action program."

Conflicts Discussed

The Rev. C. E. Johnson, guest speaker, spoke on "Conflict Between Idealism and Realism," taking his text from 27th chapter of the Book of Genesis, 28th verse. He compared the conflict between Esau and Jacob to the conflict between idealism and realism of today. Various ministers reported on their activities at the meeting.

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday at the New Chapel of the H. R. Carrol Home for the Aged, 522 N. Carrollton Ave.

Residents of 4 Sections Suffering from Smog

Residents in Cherry Hill, Curtis Bay, Mt. Winans and as far as Morgan Park are suffering from the noxious smog odors prevalent in the city during the past weeks.

Walter A. Brown of Cherry Hill declared that he thinks that section suffers the most because of the terrible odors that come from the city dog pond on Calverton Rd. which sends dead animals to the incinerator to be burned.

East Baltimoreans Suffer

One Morgan Park resident reported that when the wind blows from the south, the smog is offensive to all residents in East Baltimore and the Morgan Park section.

Meanwhile, Commissioner of Health Huntington Williams has warned industrial plants in these areas that court action will be taken if the smog offense is not curbed.

It is recalled that concentrated chemical smog caused the deaths of 22 persons in Donora, Pa. in 1948.

There is a law against pollution of the air by the release of noxious fumes.

At Morgan Matriculation Convocation

Police Victim Still in Hospital

Still hospitalized since he was shot by a Northwestern district policeman on Sept. 4, Murl Gene Coplin, Morgan College student keeps a radio close to hear World Series results. The State's Attorney's office announced this week that a hearing in the case will be held following an investigation directed by the police commissioner. Coplin, shot by Officer Joseph Tomshack, suffered a broken thigh bone.

Feehley Begins and Ends Career at Northwestern

It is fitting and proper that the career of a high ranking police officer should end in the same district in which he first served as a foot patrolman.

When William F. Feehley joined the Baltimore City police force in 1916 as a transfer from the Baltimore County police force, he was assigned to patrol a beat in the Northwestern district.

The enterprising young policeman quickly attracted attention of his superiors and rapidly gained promotions until he reached his present rank of Captain and commander of the Northwestern Police District.

The recently announced decision of Captain Feehley to retire, came as a surprise to residents of North-west Baltimore.

No Reason Given

It has been announced that Commissioner Ober "requested" that Captain Feehley resign. No reason was given for the commissioner's request.

Reliable sources, however, state that the police head is irked because some patrolmen at Northwestern professed remarks made by Inspector Oscar Lusby at a roll call.

Inspector Lusby, in effect, ordered more arrests made by the uniformed policemen on the beat in an effort to curb gambling in the district. The Inspector also stated that he knew why more arrests haven't been made.

Captain Feehley said: "I don't really know why I am being retired. I know I'm not sick." He declined to comment further on the situation.

Replaced Inspector Forrest

Captain Feehley, 65, has been commander of the district since 1947, when he replaced Captain William Forrest, who was promoted to Inspector.

Before he came back to Northwestern as its commander, Captain Feehley headed the Headquarters Homicide Squad. He held that office for several years.

During his long term as homicide chief, he was responsible for the solving of solved f the city's most puzzling murders. His favorite case, however, concerns the time he was ordered to Richmond, Va., to locate the buried body of a murder victim.

"Although some people might consider that a grisly, unpleasant task, I honestly enjoyed it. Because of that trip one of the slickest murderers in the history of Baltimore was captured.

Body Carried to Va.

"You and a man had been killed in Baltimore, and his body carried to Virginia by the murderer. The corpse was buried near a road off Richmond.

"The man suspected of doing the job, had also been questioned previously for two other murders in Baltimore. We knew he was guilty, but because we couldn't get anything on him, had to release him.

"He made a fatal mistake in the Richmond case, though, of confiding in a woman whom he was living with in Baltimore on Linden Ave. He not only told her about the first two murders, but almost drew a map boasting about his third murder.

"The couple had an argument and afterwards decided to separate. As in most cases like that, the woman told the police what the man had done. With her information, we were able to arrest him.

Paid Supreme Penalty

"He paid the supreme penalty for that crime and the whole department breathed easier. He was really a slick customer."

Captain Feehley also points out that vice and major crimes have declined since he has been in command of the Northwestern district.

Sprawling over 15 square miles, and thickly populated, the Northwestern district presents a characteristic pattern of present day city life.

There are only 40 schools in the area, but more than 300 liquor establishments, it has an estimated population of 200,000 people.

Notes Trouble Spots

Although the majority of crimes in the district involve colored people, the captain is quick to point out that the Eutaw Place and Linden Ave. areas are also "trouble spots."

Both streets are populated 90 per cent by white citizens.

The battle against juvenile delinquency in the district is being stubbornly fought by Policewoman Violet Hill Whyte and the Northwestern Police Boys' Club.

The Police Boys Clubs are staffed by regularly assigned police officers, and do much to provide wholesome outlets for youngsters in the area.

Had First Colored Policemen

The first colored policemen to be appointed in Baltimore were assigned to the Northwestern District in 1939. At present, there are 14 colored policemen regularly assigned to the district with more expected soon.

A likable, silver haired person, Capt. Feehley is very well respected by the policemen in his district. Many of them are sorry to see him go and are wondering anxiously who will be his successor.

Civic leaders in the community too have expressed regret as Capt. Feehley's pending retirement. They wrote a letter to Commissioner Ober last week asking that the matter be reconsidered.

They pointed out that the captain was "always willing to receive representatives of our organizations at hearings, listen patiently, give the subject every consideration and act promptly."

The letter was signed by Mrs. Lillie M. Jackson of the NAACP; Furman L. Templeton, Urban League; Samuel Hendin and Henry R. Hornstein, the Pennsylvania Ave. Businessmen's Association; Charles Dorsey, Monumental Lodge of Elks; Lloyal Randolph, York Hotel proprietor; and Dr. Robert L. Jackson.

Human Rights Program

The Baltimore Council of the American Council on Human Rights will present a one-day program on the theme "The Challenge for An-All-Out-Drive for Greater Human Rights," Nov. 17 at the YWCA.

An interracial panel of college students will discuss the student's approach to greater human understanding. The program will also include a main speaker to be announced later. Citations for service in the field of human rights will be made.

Seller of Corn Liquor Wins Suspended Term

Admitting to selling corn liquor to plainclothes Officer Francis Miller, 51-year-old Robert Andrews, who has one leg, won a suspended sentence, Thursday, and was warned to stay on his good behavior.

The man of the 1000 block Carlton St. told Judge Joseph Sherbow that he obtained the corn liquor from a man from the South. He was given a suspended sentence of six months for the sale to the officer on Sept. 16.
