Morgan Meets Mrs. Bethune, All Agree "She's Wonderful"

By LULA JONES GARRETT

I drew a prize assignment, Wednesday, that of covering Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune's day's State College, and to quote the First Lady "I think I'm wonderful"... this reporter thinks she is, too!

Mrs. Bethune came in about 9:30 a.m. and when I barged in upon her at the President's mansion on the campus, she was chuckling with her hostess, Mrs. Martha Jenkins, over the latter's permanently anchored brush used in aiding guests to shed the hairs deposited on the Jenkins's furniture by the Jenkins' dog.

With her had come Mrs. Jeanette Welsh Brown, of Washington, former executive director of the National Council of Women, and now holding a similar post with the National Business League. Also there was her official host for the day, Jack Bond of the college English department, and Mrs. Carl Murphy, who was to introduce her at the college assembly where she was to give one of several speeches scheduled for the day.

Looking Fit

Ms. Bethune is looking particularly fit these days, full of vigor and wit, and more spirited than in years. She laughed, joked, advised, shook hands with hundreds of students and got kissed on the cheek by scores, who just "wanted to touch" her. She even stopped a moment to give and autograph to a little Delta pledgee who was wide eyed with triumph at gaining her name in the prospective sorer's signature book.

At the home of President and Mrs. Jenkins who carefully inspected her ensemble (she's especially particular about her clothes) had a slip adjusted by Mrs. Brown, had a dog hair brushed off by Mr. Bond, picked up her famous Roosevelt cane and a luxurious reptile skin hand bag, and strolled off towards the chapel. A few second later however, she had turned over the bag to Mr. Bond with the explanation that she always relieved herself of every weight possible.

Crossing the campus she said My, how Morgan has grown. "I can't believe my eyes." Reaching the chapel, she again took a look over her ensemble, laid aside her hat, adjusted the orchid her hosts had sent her, laid her cane on a table and stepped into the chapel and on to the platform.

Warmly Welcomed

And such an ovation she drew! Faculty members said that at time its takes some urging to get the students into the chapel for these scheduled addresses. Wednesday they packed, the auditorium, filled the aisles, and crowded on the outside of the building as far as Mrs. Bethune's voice could carry.

The same held when she spoke to the Commerce Club at the afternoon session. Two shifts of students crowded the assembly room.

Nearest to such an audience on such an occasion, said the presiding officer, was the appearance of Bill Board Jackson, who drew an attendance of 50. Some 300 heard Mrs. Bethune.

Presidential Gift

But back to that famous cane. It was a gift from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who sent it to Mrs. Bethune shortly after the death of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Mrs. Roosevelt had used the cane at Yalta and when he took the oath for his last term. It had come to Mr. Roosevelt from his uncle, Mr. Delano when the latter was secretary of the Navy.

"Pure Swank"

Mrs. Bethune explains that she doesn't need the cane for walking. Says she "Some women smoke cigarettes. I like to swagger a cane."

Her last session of the day was a reception given by the Assembly Committee of Morgan. Special guests were heads of women's organizations in the city. These were augmented by student groups and a number of men. Mrs. Carol Blanton Diggs was hostess.

Throughout the day Mrs. Bethune kept up a steady flow of quips that give great insight into what has made her into the internationally known figure she is.

For instance, speaking of recently taking over the presidency of the Central Life Insurance Company, a two million dollar concern, she said "I suspect that most of them thought that there wouldn't be much to the change, just a tired old woman in the office for two or three hours a day . . . but I assure you that when I stepped in business picked up."

She is the only woman president of a Legal Reserve insurance company in the country.

In reference to being the only member of the board of the National Business League, she quipped "I always get along well with men because they think they are bossing me when they are not at all."

Speaking of personal magnetism, she said I keep my you-know-what because I never live in the past. "I'm living right in Oct. 25, 1951."

And talking of personal appearance: "Once I may have had to wash out a blouse the night before to have a fresh one next day, but I don't have to do that now."

And backing up the last point she was smartly gowned in a black frock with lace top underlaid with a soft pink. Her hair was brushed atop her head and in soft curls, the back held by a white comb to match the silver of her hair. In her ears were tiny diamonds. On one hand was a garnet ring, on the other two rings, each set with diamonds. She wore two silver bracelets, one of which had been sent from Africa by a protege, Edward Rodericque, then in the service.

Her hands, which she uses with almost the same dramatic expression as does Pearl Bailey, are beautifully manicured. She uses a pale pink polish. She takes off her glasses while speaking.

A Great Grandmother

She often boasts of her 76 years. She is inordinately proud of her four great grandchildren. And about Mr. Bethune? Folks so often wonder. He died when her only son was a very small tot.

She is also proud of her vigor. She boasts that she can out work, out walk and "out do" the average woman of 40. She's a great booster for Morehouse College. She thinks Morehouse has produced more leaders than any institution she can think of. She thinks Josephine Baker is a great artist. She thinks Mary McLeod Bethune is wonderful. I think so too!

Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, with her sturdy walking stick, strolls the Morgan College Campus where she addressed an assembly and was entertained at a tea on Wednesday. Left to right are John P. Bond, Morgan professor and program committee chairman; Mrs. Bethune, Mrs. Carl Murphy and Mrs. Lula Garrett, AFRO woman's editor.

Dollar Wins Where Plea Fails Dr. Bethune Tells Morganites

"Cease to be beggars, become dreamers!" Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune told Morgan State College students, who had filled the Christian Center Chapel to capacity, here, Wednesday.

"I found, very early," she said, "that if you have a few dollars in a bank you get a great deal more respect from the banker."

Be Collector

When you have a few banks you can collect the interest instead of pay it out; when you have a fine hotel you need not fight over being barred from another; when you become a little tax payer you started on the road towards economic independence, she advised the group.

Economic independence is the race's greatest need, today, Mrs. Bethune declared. She warned the youths against "trying to live on a scale of the man who has years of earning ahead of them." "You must sometimes endure for a season," she said. "Get a home before you become a car owner. Don't wait to get $50 to invest, invest the $1 you have," was other saps advice given by the speaker.

Outstanding Career

Dr. Bethune, who founded and served as president of the National Council of Negro Women for many years, who was an adviser to the late President Franklin Roosevelt, who built Bethune-Cookman College from a one-room school to a plant now valued at $2,000,000, is also the only woman president of a legal reserve insurance company.

She told Morgan State College students that there are more opportunities open to them now than at any time in history. They must, she said, shun sticking too close to home. Venture out into the world, she advised. She admonished them to hold fast to the hand of God, and to dedicate their lives to the delicate task of making the world a better place in which to live.

Mrs. Bethune made two speeches during her day on the campus. The first was at an assembly of all the college students. The second speech was to members, and guests, of the Commerce Club, and at which Prof. Winfred O. Bryson presided. Prof. Jack Bond presided at the chapel assembly and Mrs. Bethune was introduced by Mrs. Carl Murphy.

Social Affairs

Three social affairs marked her stay. The Commerce Club entertained at luncheon following the chapel assembly. She was guest of honor at a tea given by the Assembly Committee at four, when she met a larger group of students and heads of women's organizations of Baltimore. The last affair was a dinner party, also arranged by the committee.

ALPHAN AUXILIARY CONTRIBUTES TO HOSPITAL

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Alphan Pleasure Club held a Charity Supper at 122 N. Aisquith St., October 5. The proceeds, which amounted to $100 were presented to Mrs. Florine Washington for the Provident Hospital Campaign Fund. Mrs. Ethel Maddox is president of the group; Mrs. Ida Young was chairman of the supper, and presented the money. Howard Young is president of the club.

Gadabouting in Baltimore

Mrs. Madeline Wheeler, Stephen T. Brooks Wed

with Lula Jones Garrett

Mrs. Madeline R. Wheeler of Wilmington, Del. chose the home of her daughter, Mrs. Madeline Murphy, and son-in-law, in Cherry Hill for her marriage to Stephen T. Brooks of "Bonnie Hurst," Swift Water, Pa., Wednesday afternoon at five.

The bride, charming in orchid Italian silk, the unpressed pleats giving boldfastness to the skirt, the bodice featuring a simple v-shaped neck, added an Empire hat of orchid velvet, the crown encrusted with beads and pearls and with a short veil attached, and an orchid corsage.

She was given in marriage by her son, Arthur E. Wheeler Jr.; and attended by her daughters, Mrs. Murphy and Mrs. Mary Avant of Washington, a nephew of the bridegroom, was best man.

Mrs. Murphy wore a frock of gun metal taffeta, with a rhinestone trimmed white velvet hat and a corsage of roses. Mrs. Avant's ensemble was a quilted skirt of black taffeta embroidered in gold, a jersey top and a white hat, pearl embroidered, and gold veiling. She also wore a corsage of roses.

The ceremony was read by the Rev. James O. West of the Calvary Episcopal Church, Washington, and among those witnessing the ceremony were:

Mr. and Mrs. Madison Tignor of Washington, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Murphy Sr., Mrs. James H. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Murphy, Mrs. Olive Maxwell, Mrs. D. Arnett Murphy and Mrs. Basil Hall.

"Gal" Celebrates

On Sunday, Miles G. Harrison Jr., better known as "Gal," celebrated his second birthday at a party given by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Miles G. Harrison.

They concocted a merry-go-round theme for the decorations, including a merry-go-round cake. They took yellow for the color scheme, including the yellow silk suit, with white ruffled collar, worn by the tiny host.

Added to the gaiety were the club room (where the party was held) decorations of false faces, balloons and birthday cards. There were also movies and party records.

Guests included:

Martha Brown, Carol Ann Sheffey, Barbara and Charles Dorsey, Mickie Burwell, Robert McDaniels Jr., Dickie and Ronnie Abrams, Betty Bayamore, Philathea Hall Jr., Bonnie Randolph, Donald, Fulton, Leddy and Harold Torrence, Brenda Clark.

Adults about were:

Helen Burwell, Elise Clarke, Julia McDaniels, Leona Abrams, Marguerite and Powell Sheffy, Vonzella Miller, the Charles Dorseys, Nickie Randolph.

Philathea Hall, Clarence Henderson, Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Harris Jr., Emily Peck, Bernice Brown and Dorothy Torrence, and the baby's grandmothers, Mendames Ethel Harris and Margaret Jones.

Outdoor Picnic

And speaking of small fry doings, there was that outdoor picnic at the Catonsville home of Lucille Cephas, Saturday, for a group of youngsters.

The children had a nature hike, under guidance of Anne Pinkney, even gathered wild strawberries, picked apples from trees, roasted weinges to add to their home-baked beans and Halloween treats.

About were:

Charlene Cephas, David and John Skinner, Beverly Barrett, Jacqueline Finney, Marie, Veronica and Hardtys, Charles, Janice Waters.

Candice Scott, Robert and Patricia Payne, Michael Taylor, Charles Newkirk, Lewis Pinkney, Hill Collins, Cobertha Woodland, William Gregory and Thomas Branch.

Mothers there were:

Alice Payne, Hazel Barrett, Ruperth Waters, Vyna Skinner, Ioma Collins, Anne Pinkney, Lucile Cephas, Jessie Taylor, Elsie Scott, Florella Clark, and Jimmy LaForest.

Mrs. Christmas Feted

A bon-voyage luncheon and surprise handkerchief shower was given by Bernice McDaniels for Vashti Christmas, Saturday.

Mrs. Christmas will be leaving soon to join her husband, Pfc. Bernard Christmas, in Germany.

Attending were Glodine Adams, Vivven Burwell, Jeanette Christmas, Ella Edemy, Mary S. Harris, Elise Hunt, Lavinia Dougherty, Julia McDaniels, Phyllis Reed, Olga Rodney, Bernice Watson, Llewellyn Walker, Anethia Williams and Mamie Williams.

Canasta and pinochle tournaments were held and the prizes were won by Mesdames Mamie Williams and Ella Edemy.

Scatterbrains Meet

The Scatterbrains club had their initial meeting of the season, Saturday, at the home of Charlotte Matkins with Charlotte and Alice Pinderhughes as hostesses.

New officers elected are president, Leona Abrams; vice president, Lucille Gibson; secretary, Gwendolyn Seaborne; treasurer, Lillian Lewis; and business manager, Charlotte Watkins.

Members include Maizie Humphery, Genevieve Mason, Alice Pinderhughes, Alese Johnson, Rosa Murray, Geneviewe Roy and Anne Ferguson.

Baby gifts from the club were presented to Alice Pinderhughes and Charlotte Watkins who had new arrivals during the summer.

Date Data

Hand me down a magic carpet, so that I can, maybe, make all of these doings set for these next few days.

At one in the afternoon tomorrow (Saturday) the executive committee of the Maryland League of Women's Clubs will have its sixth annual luncheon for presidents of Women's clubs. The affair will be held at the YWCA, and will have as featured speaker Mrs. Wilson Wing, president of the League of Women Voters.

About the same time all good Morgan alumni, to say nothing of A and T fans, will be watching the kick-off in the Morgan homecoming game in Hughes Memorial Stadium.

And such an array of affairs are scheduled after the game.

The Alpha Delta chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority of Morgan State College plans homecoming tea, to which they have invited the public to drop in the lounge of Tubman, and Harper Dorms.

The tea will begin at 5 o'clock immediately following the game. The guests will be served by the "lyies," pledges of the sorority.

This year the special guests will be the high school queens, from throughout the state of Maryland.

There, too, is the homecoming dance in the College Refectory at nine; following open house hosted by President Martin D. Jenkins at his residence, and an "Alumni Meeting of high school science teachers held during the Maryland Educational Association's 30th annual convention last week at Douglass High School was enlivened by Dr. Julius Taylor's glass-blowing demonstration. In the picture above, Dr. Taylor, of the Morgan State college faculty, prepares a glass rod. Watching him are Miss Thelma Thomas, teacher at Douglass High School, Upper Marlboro; Mrs. Gladys Saunders and Mrs. Flora McMillan, teachers at Sollers Point High School.

Teachers Watch Glass-Blowing Demonstration

Mixer" (an informal get-together) of the Kleeco Club that evening.

The same afternoon Miss Jane West, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Fred R. West, will become Mrs. Douglass W. Henderson, and will receive friends at a reception given by her parents after four-thirty.

The following afternoon (Sunday) Grace Matthews and Mr. Jon (they have just invaded our town from New York House of Beauty) will show hair styles at a party at their place, 1609 W. North Avenue.

Any number of folks are dashing off to Washington for the sessions of the National Council of Women's annual Convention. A few others are bound for Tuskegee for the annual Boule of Chi Eta Phi . . . among them Mildred Gambrill and Juanita Williams, the Business and Professional Women (including Delegate Edna Rawlings and President Lillian Watty) are Birmingham, Ala. bound!

And the faculty of Coppin State Teachers College has extended invitations to a "One Woman Theatre" presenting Mercedes Gilbert at the YWCA on Thursday evening.

Pot-Pourri

Vicki Anderson, town school marm, and John H. Jones are solar bound. Have set a Thanksgiving Day ceremony and a week-end honeymoon in Manhattan.

Fanida Friend stepped out of her car, twisted her foot more than a week back, but has just learned that she has a broken bone. Now she's in, as much as one foot in cast can keep her in.

Pauline Wharton McGuinn, Jack Bond and Johnce Shephard perked up to Myersdale, Pa., last week end, for the house party given by Miss Madge Shephard. Misses Kate, Jane and Emma Shephard and Mesdames Reese and Theodore, assisted in the hosting.

Other guests were Washingtonians including Mesdames Blanche Curry, Lorraine Pinchback, Jessie Thorpkins, Hilda Evans, Venetta Childs; and Messrs. and Mesdames John Seldon and Ernest Amos Sr.

The newest member of the family of George and Arnetta Lottier was christened after the 11 a.m. service at Grace Presbyterian Church, Sunday morning. The Rev. John T. Colbert officiated. Ella Edemy, Betty Brady of Philadelphia were godmothers. Walter Dyson was godfather. And standing with the party, also, was Mrs. Walter Dyson. The baby has been named Sadie Annette (from grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Arnett Murphy.

The latter held open house and a buffet from after the church hour until six in order that members of the families and a few close friends might meet the young lady.

And in the same theme . . . the George Evannes are expecting an heir in December.

And of course you can scarcely turn a select corner, these days without one of the members of the women's committee of the Frontiers' charity football game holding out a well-manicured hand in your direction . . . in which, of course, is a ticket to the football classic to be held on Nov. 4 in Hughes Memorial Stadium. Odelle Payne is chairman of the committee and the Frontiers' wives are working like mad to do the affair up brown.

Central State College, Wilberforce, Ohio and Morgan State will supply the fire works.

Mrs. Erma Davis is president of the League.

Clubs

SOCIAL LADIES — The club held the weekly meeting with Mrs. Viola Pate, 423 Druid Hill Avenue.

The hostess entertained the members with a pre-Halloween party. William Tyree and Earnest Emory were guests for the evening. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Chaney McLaughlin, 1811 W. Lanvale St.

SPORTING DUKES — Members of the club were entertained by the president, E. Braxton of 1141 Park Avenue, recently. The club has planned a variety show to benefit Crownsville Hospital in November.

THRIFTY — rs. Madeline Perry was hostess to the Savings club on Monday night.

Guests were Mesdames Cornelia Benthol and Odgen Benthol.
