

A Carelessly Treated Cold

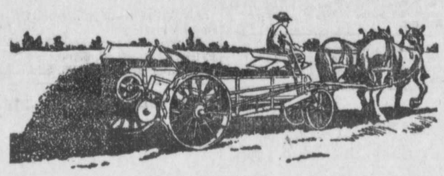

is the source of most sickness because drugged pills, syrups and alcoholic mixtures are uncertain and unsafe.

Scott's Emulsion has been relied upon by physicians for forty years as the safe and sensible remedy to suppress the cold and build up the enfeebled forces to avert throat and lung troubles.

Don't tolerate alcoholic substitutes, but insist on the Genuine Scott's Emulsion. One bottle usually lasts longer than a cold. Every druggist has it. 13 75

STEEL frame on steel wheels—that is the lasting basis on which International manure spreaders are built. All parts, including box, beater, spreading mechanism, apron, are built by experts, using best materials, from careful designs based on field tests.

Every detail is strong and durable, built for long life and ease of draft. Among the features that will interest you are these: Simple protected beater driving mechanism, all of steel; load carried on rear axle, insuring traction; reversible gear and worm; low, easily loaded box, with ample clearance underneath; end gate, preventing clogging of beater while driving to the field; etc.

All styles are in the I H C spreader line, high and low, endless and reverse apron, and various sizes for small and large farms. Our catalogues will tell you more. Write for them and let us tell you also where you may see I H C manure spreaders.

NINTH ARTICLE.

This God Man, the Lord Jesus Christ, the second Adam, came to this world to undo the work of the first Adam. All the family of the first Adam, of course including you and me, had become captives and slaves of the Devil. Jesus Christ came to redeem the whole human race—to buy men back, and the price he paid, a price beyond our comprehension, was His life, His pure, holy, obedient life—for "Christ also hath once suffered . . . that He might bring us to God." To bring us to God was the object of His sufferings and death. Sin brings in its train two consequences—guilt and suffering. When we sin we become guilty in the sight of God, and we suffer in ourselves. Our Blessed Lord died for our sins, that is, He suffered and died to take away the guilt of our lives, and so to reconcile us to God. But He does not by His death take away the suffering which comes from sin. When men sin they suffer, sooner or later; if they repent God will forgive, but they will suffer for the sin, for sin is sure to bring suffering. Suffering may not come at once, but it is bound to come by and by. Christ did not suffer to take away suffering from us; we still have the enfeebled image, still must each one share in the suffering, but the God Man has merited to take away the guilt. Because of His merits we are forgiven, the supernatural gift of grace may again be ours, but the sad enfeeblement of our natural resources, Body, soul and mind, all are injured by the sin that has been; in no degree are they as they were when God first created them in His own image, but, like the bodily strength of the converted drunkard and profligate, are enfeebled.

The Saviour's death was a "full, perfect and sufficient sacrifice, oblation and satisfaction for the lives of the whole world," that is, for the guilt, the guiltiness of all mankind. As by the disobedience of Adam misery and death came into the world, so by the obedience of Jesus Christ, the perfect Man, the second Adam, comes the restoration. Christ humbled Himself and became obedient, even unto death, and that the death of the Cross.

Turn your thoughts for a moment to the night before the first Good Friday, the night before the crucifixtion, to the olive garden just outside Jeruselum. The wall of the Temple srea runs along the brow of the hill, the olive groves are across the valley on the hillside opposite; and thither Jesus went with His disciples. There were only eleven now, for Judas, the false one, into whom the Devil had entered, had left the little band, and gone out into the night alone, to his own place, the place of the evil spirits, the busy agents of Satan, the Prince of Hell—what a heavy weight he carried, because he had sold and betrayed his loving Lord, for the paltry price of the meanest slave. The disciples look across the brook; the paschal moon is nearly full, and sheds a flood of silver light all over the Holy City. The Lord Jesus looks also; He, the word, of whom we read that in the beginning He was with God, and by whom all things were made; He, who for a thousand years had watched over the fortunes of that city as the place He had chosen to put His name there, had now become Incarnate, a man, and had lived as an outcast and a wanderer in the streets of that chosen city. "Lo, I come to do Thy will, O God", murmured the heart of the Blessed Son of Mary. He was withdrawn from the rest, and there in the deep shadow under the olive trees, bowed down and burdened with the untold weight of men's sins, yours and mine and all men's, the second Adam, the pure, holy, innocent Lord Jesus kneels upon the earth He had made; He is prostrate; He "fell upon His face." The weight upon Him bore Him down—Him, the Almighty God-man.

He was a man in all ways such as we are, yet without sin; but He had what we, mercifully, have not—He had a knowledge of that which was to be in future. All through His earthly life He had the knowledge and the thought of the agony of the Passion, Calvary and the Cross were continually present to His thoughts. Now and again He hinted at it—"The Son of man shall be betrayed . . . . . they shall kill Him." He said, "and I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me." Always the will of the man must have shrunk from it, and now this last night there comes a cry of agony from His breaking Human Heart.

More than one were there, but all save One were sleeping. Had some been watching, drowsy and dreaming, they might perchance have thought they heard the voice and tramp of armed men, for even now a great multitude with swords and staves were coming down the hill hard by, a great mob armed to arrest one lone, lovely, blessed man, who had gone about doing only good, helpful things; leaving health, peace and blessing wherever He went. But no! The voice they heard was the cry from that prostrate Form, sweating great drops of Blood beneath the shade of the olive tree, and Angels marveled as they heard the words—"O, My Father, if it be possible, let this cup"—this last cup of bitterness—let this cup "pass from me." But stop! That is not all. Listen. "With strong crying and tears," the agonized Form sobs on—"Nevertheless, not My Will, but Thine be done." The sacrifice of the will was complete. Did Satan hear? Surely he was watching. Through all the generations of earth there had been ringing in his ears, the word of God spoken in Eden—"The seed of the woman shall bruise thy head", was this man, then, at length the promised seed of the woman? Yes! The Passion had already commenced, by and through this prostrate, suffering man, men would once more taste of the Tree of Life that is in the midst of the Paradise of God. Ah! Satan, foul-fiend, demon, there is little hope for thee now! The word has gone forth, the work has begun, and this Blessed Man, Who came to undo thy work, and rescue thy captives, redeem and buy them back for God, with the price of His precious Blood and Life, will not rest until He has finished the work He came to do. Nevertheless, even now, yet once more Thou shall hear the voice of the manhood as distinct from the Godhead; once more shall the wondrous sign go forth to earth and sky and Heaven that He is in all points like as we are, save without sin; once and only once more shall the poor Human Heart of Blessed Mary's Son seem as it were to separate itself from that Godhead which in truth was so completely united with it as to make in every deed one only Person. From the tree of shame, the Cross, on Calvary there comes the cry from out of the darkness: "My God, My God, why has Thou forsaken Me?"

Now did one little ray of hope for one instant light up the heart of the great devil? If so, then indeed it must have quickly died down. On the Cross, as among the olive trees, the human will is brought into perfect harmony with the divine will; the almost despairing cry of the Forsaken One is followed by the calm determined outery into the shadow of death: "Father into Thy Hand I commend my spirit", I commend it; I give it; naught takes it from me; death hath no power over me; of my own free will I give it. I, a King, reigneth upon the Cross, My Throne, and as a King, I give to a King My Spirit. I, Myself, send and commend into the Hands of the Eternal My Life, My Spirit. "I lay it down, I have power to take it again." The great work of redemption finished, completed; offered once, and once for all, for the sins of the whole world. Once again is the way to the Tree of Life thrown open, once more may the sons of Adam put forth the hand and take, and eat and live forever.

But not if I can prevent it, said Satan, the baffled, the conquored demon; the Prince of Hell—not if I can keep it, and so from that day to this, he has gone about the world like a ramping and roaring lion seeking to draw men away from allegiance to Christ their Lord, their Saviuor, their Redeemer, their King.

Change In Duration of Terms of Chestertown Water Board.

Under and by virtue of a law passed by the General Assembly of Maryland of 1914, at the election for Commissioner of Chestertown to be held Monday, April 27th, 1914, there will be submitted to the qualified voters of Chestertown, the question contained in a Bill the provisions of which are as follows:

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 7 of Chapter 412 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland passed at the January Session of 1910, entitled "An Act to repeal Sections 4, 7, 8, and 9, of Chapter 289 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland passed at the January Session of 1908, entitled an Act to provide for the franchise of the waterworks for the town of Chestertown, in Kent County, Maryland, and to authorize the appointment of a Water Board for conducting, carrying on and maintaining same, and to issue bonds to pay therefore and to levy an annual tax for the payment of such bonds and the interest thereon."

SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 7 of Chapter 412 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, passed at the January Session of 1910, be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

SEC. 7. That on the fourth Monday in April 1915, at a regular election for a Commissioner entitled to vote for Commissioners thereof, shall elect by ballot a Water Board which shall consist of three persons, each of whom shall have the same qualifications as those required of a Commissioner of Chestertown, one of whom shall hold office for one year, one of whom shall hold office for two years, and one of whom shall hold office for three years, and until their successors are elected and qualified, and the said duly qualified voters of Chestertown, entitled to vote for Commissioners thereof.

Shall elect by ballot on the fourth Monday in April 1916, and in each year thereafter, at a regular election of a Commissioner of Chestertown, one member of said Water Board, with the qualifications above named, who shall hold office for three years and until his successor is elected and qualified, and the members of the Water Board of Chestertown to be elected as aforesaid shall qualify in the same manner as do the Commissioners of Chestertown, and said Water Board shall hold public meetings in January and July of each year. Any vacancy in said Water Board created by death, resignation or otherwise shall be filled by the Commissioners of Chestertown.

SEC. 2. And be it enacted, That at the next regular election of Commissioners of Chestertown, to be held on the fourth Monday of April, there shall be submitted to the qualified voters of Chestertown, the question whether there shall be a change in the duration of the terms of the members of the Water Board to be elected at the election to be held on the fourth Monday of April 1915, and at such election the ballots cast upon that question shall have the words "For a change in terms of Water Board," or "Against a change in term of Water Board," thereon, and if the majority of votes cast upon said question shall be "For a change in terms of Water Board," then this Act shall be effective and operative, but if the majority of the votes cast be "Against a change in terms of Water Board," then this Act shall be of no effect.

SEC. 3. And be it enacted, That this Act shall take effect from the date of its passage.

By order of
CHESTERTOWN WATER BOARD.
